

This Book is one Thing hims is an other steel not this Book Vor fear of another Mil ming low Morth his is mitting bir Tibrary of the Theological Seminary, PRINCETON, N. J. From the Library of Dr. Charles Hodge. Section 1481

$E \quad L \quad I \quad H \quad U$

ORAN

ENQUIRY

INTO THE

Principal Scope and Design

OF THE

B O O K of 3 O B.

By WALTER HODGES, D.D. Provost of Oriel College, Oxford.

This is his Name vobereby be shall be called, The Lord OUR RIGHTEOUS. NESS. Jer. XXIII. 6.

And unto the Church of the Laodiceans write, These Things saith THE AMEN, THE FAITHFUL and TRUE WITNESS—Because thou sayes, I am rich, and increased with Goods, and have Need of Nothing, and knowes not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked; I counfel thee to buy of me Gold tried in the Fire, that thou mayes he rich, and white Raiment, that thou mayes he cloathed, and that the Shame of thy Nakedness do not appear, and anoint thine Eyes with Eye-Salve, that thou mayes see

Rev. III. 14—17.

The Prophets and the Apostles, those darker and more clear Evangelists, do so unanimously and assiduously celebrate the Messiah, that when I read and confer them, I sometimes sancy myself present at our Saviour's triumphant Entrance into Hierusalem, where both those, that went before him, and those, that followed after him, sung Hosannah to the Son of David.

The truly bonourable and learned Mr. Boyle upon the Style of the Holy Scriptures.

THE SECOND EDITION.

LONDON:

Printed for JAMES HODGES, over-against St. Magnus's Church, London-Bridge. M.DCC.LI.

WA SIO

ENQUIER

THE OTHER

OF THE

a o A O

FIRE ODE COLDE

Preliminary Discourse.

the Church of God under three principal Divisions, which may be termed its different States or Modes of Exi-ftance. The first is described under the Title of the Patriarchal Dispensation, reaching from Adam to the Publication of the Laws at Mount Sinai. The second commences at the Delivery and Promulgation of those various Ordinances which were given to the sews or Israelites by the Ministry of Moses, and is therefore called the Mosaic Dispensation; which continued in force till our Lord declared upon the Cross—It is sinished. Under the last Period is comprehended all that Space of Time which hath already passed, and is to come between the two Advents of Christ, distinguished in the Scriptures by the Phrase of the last or latter Days.

As the following Sheets treat principally of Events and Transactions which are supposed to have happened under the first Stage of the three just mentioned, and what may be called the original Condition and Government of the Christian Church, it is proper, I think, to remind the Reader of some Particulars concerning it.

During this State, the Church had a Rule of Faith and Practice, according to which Believers lievers, then called the Sons of God, were to form their Conduct, and upon the Observation of it to apply the Promise, and to trust in God for what was afterwards called The fure Mercies of David. Abraham, we are expressly told, made this Application, and looked for a City, whose Builder and Maker was God - that he law the Day of Christ, and from that View was filled with the highest Joy. There are indeed so many plain Proofs of a revealed Religion, of an instituted public Worship and Ritual upon the Mediatorial Scheme being then in use, as leave no Room for any reasonable Doubt, though many Doubts and Objections have been raifed by unreasonable Men. The Sacrifices of Cain and Abel were offered very foon after the Fall; and from God's accepting one and rejecting the other, may be fairly inferred that there were some given Laws concerning fuch Offerings, the due Observation of which rendered the Service of Abel acceptable, as the Neglect and Contempt of them was the Reason of God's rejecting the Offering of Cain. Upon the Birth of Enos, the Son of Seth, we are told that Men called upon the * Name Tehovah.

* Mr. Smith, in his Essay upon the Sunday-Sabbath, printed in the Year 1694, and dedicated to Queen Mary, cites great and approved Authorities for rendring these Words as they occur in Gen. XII. 8. being the very same as here in Gen. V. 26. to call or preach IN or OF the Name Jehovah. "The Hebrew and LXX, says he, lead to that Sense—Vocavit in Nomine Domini, He called, or PREACHED IN the Name of the Lord—that is, he professed the true Worship of God."

Jehovah, in which Name the Doctrine of the Redemption might perhaps be farther opened: fo that when the People were affembled to invoke this Name in their public Worship, they could not be left to their own Imagination as to the Form and Rites of this Worship or Invocation, much less be ignorant of their Object of Adoration. I shall not presume to affert what might be intimated in the Communication of this Name; but the Jews seem to have been under fearful Apprehensions of a Discovery here, by the great Pains they have taken to prevent any, the Rabbies teaching their Disciples that the Word is not to be pronounced, though the Scriptures feem to fix an honourable Mark upon the Persons and Time when this blessed Name was invoked as the true Object of Worship. Whether we are to obey God; rather than fuch as have made use of all Artifices to obscure and hide the Chriitian Sense of the holy Books, let Christian Believers judge. By the Text faying, that Men began at that Time to call upon the Name Jebovab.

"God." So Malvenda — Prædicavit DE Nomine Jehovæ, He preach'd OF the Name of God. So Pifcator and Ainsworth, "Charah, clamare — To call to "God is to pray, to call to Men is to preach; and "from Charah seems to be derived unguaren, to preach "or proclaim." Hence one would think that the Mystery of Christianity, or Scheme of Redemption, was wrapped up in the Name Jehovah, as the unfolding, or expounding it seems to have been the Subject Matter of what may be called the Patriarchal Sermons, which were probably delivered every Sabbath-day for the Edification and Consolation of the Church of God.

hovah, some suppose that there was an Interruption of the regular Service upon the Death of Abel till Seth was qualified for, and appointed to the sacerdotal Function. An Objection has been made to what is here said in the Text concerning. Men's calling upon the Name Jehovah at this Time from another Passage, Exod. VI. 3. where we read—And I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, by the Name of God almighty, but by my Name Jehovah was I not known unto them. But the latter Clause of this Verse requires, I presume, an interrogative Construction, and so to be rendered—And by my Name * Iehovah was not I known to them?

The

* It is faid of Abraham expressly Gen. XII. 8. That he builded an Altar unto Jehovah, and called upon the Name Jehovah, in the very Words which are used in the last Verse of Gen. IV. We read in Gen. XXVI. 25. That Isaac builded an Altar at Beer-Sheba, and called upon the Name Jehovah, the very fame Words used here as in Gen. IV. and XIIth above cited. The Lord made himself known to Facob in the Vision of the Ladder by the Name Fehovah, and faid Gen. XXVIII. 13. I am the Lord (Jehovah in the Original) God (Elahi, Foederator, Covenanter) of thy Father. The Reader may judge now whether the Lord was known or no to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob by his Name Jehovah, and must, I think, approve of what is above suggested concerning the Expediency or Necessity of rendring the Clause in Exedus above produced interrogatively. Besides, there is no Word in the Original to justify this exceptive but in the English Translation: is the Hebrew, which ought to be rendered - nonne, vel annon, etiam - See Mascleff's Observation upon the Construction of this. Adverb, and the Original of Malachi II. 15. See likewife the Phrase of invoking in the Name Jehovah, Zephaniah III. 9.

The Distinction of clean and unclean Beasts; before the Flood is a Demonstration that a Bodyof Laws had been given, and was then in Force, touching the Particulars of an appointed public-Worship; and the Account of Noah's Sacrifice: immediately after his Deliverance, without any new Direction, is an unanswerable Confirmation of this great Truth. Though this Text of Scripture stands out so full to Observation, yet it has been taken so little Notice of by a certain Set of Writers, that I shall here transcribe it as conclusive Evidence in the Case before us.

Gen. VIII. Ver. 20. And Noah builded an Altar unto the Lord, and took of every clean Beast and of every clean Fowl, and offered burnt Offerings upon the Altar.

God fays of Abraham, Gen XXVI. 5. Abraham, obeyed my Voice, and kept my Charge, my Commandments, my Statutes, and my Laws. These Expressions comprehend the various Branches and Divisions, whereby that Body of Laws, which was given at Sinai, was in its feveral Branches described and distinguished. Here are specified MiTSOTH Pracepta, *CHuKOTH Statuta, and even TOROTH Leges. We are told, that the first of these Expressions fignifies principally negative or prokibitory Laws, though it is used in its Root for A 3 * " Significat non simpliciter præcipere, sed mandato " interdicere." Gen. II. 16. 1 Kings II. 3. fee Leigh upon this Root.

giving

giving any Commandment with Authority and Power to bind. It is likewise said in Leigh, upon the Word translated Statutes, that the Hebrews called the Ceremonial Laws CHuKKIM. and that the Hebrew CHoK usually denoteth the Rules, Decrees, and Ordinances about God's Worship, as the Decree of the Passover, the Decree of dreffing the Lamps, of the Priest's Office and Garments, of the Sacrifices, &c. TOROTH, here translated Laws, fignifies, I suppose, the whole Body of positive Laws or the revealed Will of God, commanded to be observed for the Government and Discipline of his Church in general, and to direct the Conduct of each individual Believer. The Word TOR is expounded Dispositio, Forma, Series, Ordo, Ratio: from whence, I suppose, the Word TORAH is derived, by which Name the Jews describe the Pentateuch, as being an orderly Disposition of Precepts. Leigh fays likewise that TORIM (from the fingular TOR) fignifies, Gemma Ordine dispositæ et colligatæ, Ornamenti Genus, tranflated in our English Bible, Cant. I. 10. Rows of Jewels: Such are the divine Laws to fuch as obey them, the most precious and valuable Gems that can adorn the Faithful. Here then we have Evidence not to be questioned, that the Patriarchal Church had their Ritual, affirmative and negative Laws and Precepts, a regular Torab or Body of Laws to direct their Obedience, to which they were bound to conform their Conduct in all Parts of Duty. Accordingly we find that * Facob, Gen. XLVI. 1, offered Sacrifices at Beer-Sheba, that he erected and confecrated Altars in many Places, and left the Memorials of a fixed and well-known Manner of Worship by building what we may call Churches, where he was honoured with the divine Presence and Appearance. The Names of these Places, so fet apart for divine Service, speak the same Thing as was intended by their being given them at the Time of their Dedication. Beth-EL is the House of God, Peni-EL the Faces of God +, so called, I think, from the Cherubic Faces placed therein-So of divers others. I shall rest this Point upon what hath been faid, without troubling the Reader or myself with more Citations to the same Purpose. The moral Law may be presumed to be as full and compleat in its Kind, as was That which related to Matters of Faith, which looked altogether towards a Redeemer. Nay, fome difinterested Writers of great Authority have afferted, that this Law was as clearly revealed, and practifed upon as right Motives and Principles among the Patriarchs, as it hath been amongst Christians since the Publication of the Gospel. A 4

* It is faid Gen. XXXI. 54. Jacob offered Sacrifice upon the Mount (or killed Beafts, faith the Margin of our Bible — Mactavit Victimam, fays the Version of Pagninus) and his Brethren were called to eat Bread with him (LeCHeM) i. e. to partake of the Sacrifice, and thereby join in that religious Assembly.

† Pfalm LXXXI. 5.

Gospel. * Eusebius brings Authorities for this Opinion from the Book of Job, which may be called the Patriarchal Bible.

The Reader may see a more ample Display and minute Deduction of the Patriarchal Tenets in the learned Heidegger, and many other Authors, who have purposely treated of this Subject. But the Ignorance, or designed Misrepresentation of the Jews must appear to their Confusion from the above short Account of this Matter. These Men are not ashamed to call this Space of Time, from Adam to Moses, by * See Demonstrat. Evang. Lib. I. Chap. V, VI, VII. I hope the Reader will peruse these three Chapters, as he will receive fuller Satisfaction from thence than can be had from a few Extracts, and it is of great Importance to fee this Point well stated and settled. He says, that the Patriarchal Religion, and That which was univerfally fpread by Christ, was plainly in Substance one and the same; that the Word of God, whom we call Christ, was known to them as well as to us; that their and our Religion is one common Religion; that this Christ was named God, Lord, and the lingel of God; that he appeared to Abraham, and other Patriarchs, the Friends of God; that it is not just or lawful to say or suppose it was any other but him, who, after due Trial, answered Fob; that on this Account Believers before Moses's Time were called Christs, applying to them what the Psalmist fays, Touch not mine Anointed, Christos meos, &c. that the Law or Testament given to the Patriarchs was of a more excellent Kind than what was given by Moses, to cure the Jewish Nation of their Love of idolatrous and fuperstitious Customs, which they learnt in, and brought from Egypt. He afterwards cites and compares several Passages of exalted Morality in the Book of Job with those delivered in the Sermon on the Mount, which are full in Point, but are too long to be inferted here.

the Name * of Emptiness and Desolation, using the fame Word to describe it (ToHU) as we read in Genesis to set forth the chaotic State of the material World, translated in our Bible, without Form. Hence they would intimate and infer an analogous Resemblance between the infant State of Nature and Religion, and they would draw this Conclusion from the Positions cited in the Margin-That as Nature lay in a confused, shapeless Mass, like the Aristotelian Materia prima, till Light gave her Form and Comeliness; fo Darkness, Idolatry, and Superstition reigned. till the inspired Light in the Hand of Moles dispelled and banished such Darkness, together with her Concomitants, introducing in their Places Law, Order, and a just Disposition of all Things, according to the above given Interpretation of the Word TORAH. For this Reason they call Moses THE Lawgiver, as being the first who had any just Claim to that Title: Sometimes he is called THE Engraver (derived from CHoK) from the Exaration, I suppose, of the two Tables. They are indeed graciously pleased to allow, that Noah had some Sort of Direction in Matters of great Consequence to the Preservation and Peace of Mankind, under the Title of

<sup>* &</sup>quot;Traditio Domus Elihæ — Sex mille Annos durat "Mundus: Bis mille Annis Inanitas & Vastitas—Bis "item mille Annis Lex, TORAH—Denique bis mille Annis Dies Christi." Witz. Judæus Christianizans, pag. 189. where the Original is set down.

of the * feven Precepts of Noah—Grotius and Selden will give any Reader a full Account of them—But these Affertions must appear, I think, from the Scripture Authority here cited, to be Rabbinical Fictions and lying Fables, too absurd to need a more special Resutation.

The State of Religion having been so far confidered, and sufficient, undeniable Evidence having been produced, that a Rule of Faith and Practice was revealed and given to the Church throughout the Patriarchal Dispensation, by which the whole Duty of Man was taught and limited, which Rule was observed and obeyed by the Beni Elabim, or Sons of God; let us view the opposite Scheme, the Rise and Progress of Insidelity, how it began and grew, during this Period, among the Sons of Adam, called in after Times the Sons of Belial.

As true Religion was founded upon, and always confifted in an Obedience to the declared Will of God, so the Rise and Progress of Irreligion was, and hath in all Times been an Opposition to such declared Will of God. The latter hath appeared in as many Shapes as its Founder, who hath upon Occasion transformed bimself into an Angel of Light. Accordingly an Appearance of fair Reafoning, and an engaging, assumed Concern for the Cause of Truth, and the Happiness of Man, have been the most fatal Instruments made use of to destroy him. As this Opposition is now best known known by the Name of DEISM, I shall use that Word in what I have to observe upon this Subject. Deism was very near coeval with Revelation. Upon the Declaration of God's Will to Adam, and the Terms of his Acceptance, the Founder of Deism appeared to contradict and oppose the divine Precepts. Hath God, says he, faid? &c. you shall not surely die-instructing hereby his Children of all Ages in that Kind of Sophistry, which hath been used to evade and pervert the plainest Doctrines and Precepts which have been written for the Government of human Actions. Modern Deifts might have varied the Phrase a little as to the Letter, though the Sense and Intention would be the fame-They might have faid that Death, as fuch, strictly and properly speaking, would not be the Consequence of their eating of this Fruit. But lest a bare, flat Contradiction, or filly Diffinction should not succeed, he promifed Wisdom, and an Equality of Underflanding with the supreme Powers *. The Confequence of this, they knew, would be Independency, and a Right to examine the Reasonableness of the Laws of God: Nay in such Case, the Right of Legislation itself was rendered doubtful, if not entirely subverted, as giving and receiving Laws implies superior Authority and Subjection. However, this Logic with all its Absurdities then

* See Heidegger, Witz, &c. concerning these.

pre-

* You shall be as Gods, &c. The Translators here feem unawares to allow the plural Interpretation of Elahim.

prevailed, and, notwithstanding its satal Consequences from that Time, hath seldom sailed at any Time since under the Management of the same Sophister. From his Success against Adam, his Followers were called in the first Ages, from Adam in his vanquished State, Sons of Adam; and from the Effect of Disobedience, and as a Title descriptive of his great Victory, he seems to have assumed the Name of * HaRUM. The Text tells

* We may now determine who founded the Temple of Haram. Tournefort tells us, Vol. II. pag. 311.8°. Edit. "They, viz. the Mahometans, look upon the "Temple of Haram, which is that of Mecha, as the Work of Abraham." Some learned Arabians, in Order to disguise their true Founder, might pretend that Haram by an easy Transposition of Letters was the same Name with Abraham. But as this Solution is attended with as great a Falsehood and Absurdity as any in the Alcoran, the Devil must be allowed his Mark of Ownership and Claim under his own Name Haram: For whoever will compare the Ages of Abraham and Mahomet, must have the Credulity of an Infidel to believe that Abraham could found the Temple of Mecha. But abfurd as this Mahometan Fiction appears to be, Tournefort is pleased to fay, Vol. II. pag. 283 .- " If Mahomet had not had "the Folly to affect to pass for the Messenger of God, " his Religion had not differed from Socinianism;" and at pag. 301, he gives Instances of their Sentiments in Favour of some Parts of our Religion—In their Invocations and Benedictions—After Mahomet follows— Salvation and Bleffing upon thee, Jefus Christ, the "Breath of God, &c .- upon thec, David, the Mo-"narch established by God, &c.—upon thee, Adam, the Purity of God." But I leave this Point to be settled between these two Allies, as well as what Degree of Relation they bear to HaRUM and each other. And above, &c. and the Root of it fignifies to make naked. The ancient Egyptian Theology ferves greatly to illustrate this Point; and the Memory of this Victor and Victory seems to have been preserved and continued amongst the Sons of Adam, or what one may call the conquered Provinces, for many Ages, under the pompous Title of * Hermes Trismegistus. The former seems to be derived from the just mentioned Hebrew Root; and the latter was probably assumed by the grand Usurper and Deceiver upon the Enlargement of his Power and Dominion, the Title of Ter (Tris or Tres) maximus serving to persuade his Worshippers that he was not inserior to that Being, as Bellarmin and Socinus agreed in many Particulars, his Claim may be likewise stated and determined at the same Time.

to

* The Reader may consult Stillingsseet's Orig. Sacr. upon this Hermes, and the Authorities cited there. Abbé Banier will likewise help him to other Writers upon this Subject. Dr. Stukely says in his Abury, pag. 98. "Many" think that Mercury was no mortal Man." But he was such a Thief, that he stole Hercules's Club to make a better Figure, and appear a God of Strength as well-as Cunning, as may be seen in the Representations of him exhibited by P. Montfaucon. Hercules indeed (of Tyre) was even with him, by taking upon himself one of the Attributes, which seems properly to belong to the true Mercury, as Dr. Stukely sets down the Title of Melicartus as belonging to the Tyrian Hercules: For this Word plainly signifies King of the Earth (MeLeCH AReTS) or Prince of this World.

. If the Reader should prefer Fuller's Etymology of Melicerta, he must please himself.

to whom alone that Name could properly belong, who was though Three yet One, Three Persons yet One God, plural and yet fingular. same Hermes was Deus Mercurius, Eloquentia, Fraudis, Commercii, Aftutiæ Deus, cujus Insigne est Serpens, Caduceus-The Prince of false Oratory, Pimps, and Projectors of all Kinds, Inventor of the most ingenious and injurious Frauds, the greatest Assistant in all the various Acts of Lewdnefs, and the most entertaining Harlequin in all the various and foulest Scenes of Debauchery. His Orators are fuch as confound the original and distinct Colours of Justice and Truth, by the Arts and base Mixture of false Logic and false These are the true Children of the Rhetorick. grand Deceiver, who from the Bar, and sometimes from the Pulpit, recommend themselves, and many a bad Cause and Opinion to the Approbation of deluded Judgments; whereby the civil Rights of Mankind are subverted, and the Foundations of Christianity may be, without a special Providence, destroyed. The Petasus, or Wings upon his Hat, the Caduceus; or Wand with the Serpents winding round it, which are the Infignia or Attributes of Hermes, declare his Parentage and Extract; and the Poets feem to have fetched from hence their Icarus, who, in attempting to foar beyond his limited Region, fell from the forbidden Place he attempted to reach, and lay floundering in the Waters, a contemptible Object, and Emblem of baffled Pride and profane fane Ambition. Mr. Hutchinson supposes that Hermes, or Mercury, was no other than that Power. in the Air, by which Motion is continued after the Body is parted from the first impulsive Cause of its Motion, and fo fignifies in its Root to proiest or throw forwards. This unaccountable Power was worshipped, when all Idolatry confifted in paying divine Worship to the natural Agents, or fecond Caufes in this System, by the Name of * Aram, Jos. XIII. 27. which may be wrote Haram: He cites the Lexicons for the Derivation of the Word, and the Formation of Epung from it. Admitting this to be true (as I would not fet up my weak Judgment against so able a Master in this Kind of Learning) I see no Reafon why the theological Account of this Matter (as That above given may be called) may not be received as well as the philosophical, to answer the feveral Descriptions of this their God. Name of the Idol in Josuah (upon which Mr. Hutchinson founds his Reasoning) is The That in general upon which the theological is built is ערום: The initial Letters of each, though not the fame, are of the fame Organ, and the latter Part of each, when the Words are analysed, will be found to be the very fame, from RUM, be was lifted up, &c. or RaMaH, he projected. The former Syllables of these Words wonderfully fully agree, by a Consent of Ideas, to describe the true Mercury. One fignifies he caused to see; i. e. opened their Eyes, likewise to conceive; and its Noun is the Word for * Mountain, a proper Emblem of the Swelling and Barrenness of a proud Mind: The first Syllable of the latter is from the Verb to make naked, likewise to watch to do another burt. As the philosophical Idolatry was of so short a Duration, it would be wrong to exclude that Sense and Interpretation of the Heathen Theology in this Respect, which slourished and prevailed through so many Countries and Ages.

* הרח הרח The Temple of Haram, a City of the Amerites, so called from this their Object of Worship.

Here we see the Origin of the illustrious Hermes, who hath filled the Books of the Ancients with Accounts of his Tricks and famed Exploits. His being furnished with Wings on his Head and Feet are expressive Emblems of the Seat of his Dominion, as they are of use only in the Air, and are therefore properly descriptive of, and point out to us the Prince of the Power of the Air, moving to and fro with Activity and Celerity, like a Bird of Prey, seeking whom he may devour. It is agreed, I think, that this Mercury was

* St. Jerom's Application of this Emblem in his Comment upon Job XIV. 18. is very remarkable and apposite. "Montem ergo istum, Diabolum, sive Super- biæ Hominem sentire debemus, qui contra Deum, ut Mons, Elatione Mentis tumescit; & ita se erigendo, cadit in præceps ut dessuat, & solutus in Pulverem ad inhilum deducitur." D. Hieron. Tom. VIII. Ed. Par. MDLXXIX. pag. 38. The Mountain in Is. XL. 4. is to be interpreted to the same Sense.

was of Egyptian Extract, and is therefore placed among the Sons of Ham. Whatever Judgment the Reader may pass upon what hath now been offered him, as a probable Conjecture of the old Serpent and the first Mercury's being one and the fame; we may; from the concurring Descriptions above given, be very fure that Satan, who by Subtlety deceived Eve, was the same Being who continued to work afterwards in the Sons of Adam, and was the Father of those Children of Disobedience, whose high Impieties and Acts of Violence brought a general Destruction upon Mankind. Fratricide and Polygamy foon shewed his prevailing Power; and if the Opinion of learned Men be admitted concerning the Sacrifice of Cain and Abel, he must have been very bufy in the Application of his first fuccessful Oratory. For if Cain was rejected upon his not offering an expiatory Sacrifice, and thereby disclaiming any Need of an Atonement to be made for him, he must have opposed the revealed Means of Grace and Pardon, and have fet up for Self-fufficiency, and so be the First-born of Satan, or the first Deist after the Restoration of Mankind. It will be the same, if we suppose that he might charge himfelf with Sins of Ignorance and Error, if he thought that a * fimple Repentance alone

* See three Sermons upon this Subject by Mr. Hollotoay, printed at Oxford. I wish that learned Author could be compelled to publish many valuable Workswhich he keeps at home ready worked off: They would

was fufficient to intitle him to his Pardon, and wash away all Guilt; for this was throwing off all Dependency, and faying, that God was obliged to do what is never expected by any reasonable Man from another. Hope and Dependence are different Things - A constant Offender cannot depend upon constant Forgiveness, and is not sure that he shall have Time or Grace to ask it. But if his Presumption should flatter him so far, even his Hope, which is the last Anchor, may, as the just Punishment of Presumption, be removed, and give Place to Despair, which we read was the unhappy Case of Cain. But the Memory of this dreadful Stroke was foon loft, and a general Infatuation brought on a general Judgment. One would have thought, that fuch a Judgment-fuch a Punishment - was sufficient to secure the future Obedience of Mankind, and effectually to have destroyed the Empire of Satan: Besides, Man hereby received all additional Demonstrations of the Sovereignty of the supreme Being, and of the forming and controlling Power of Jehovah Elahim. If the Inhabitants of the old World had been made to believe that Things were always in the fame Condition they then appeared in, in an eternal Succession of Causes and Effects (how abfurd foever fuch a Supposition must be to right Reason) or that they were formed and subsisted by the Agency of certain Powers in the he highly ferviceable to the Christian World in interpreting the Hebrew Scriptures, and in promoting and facilitating the Knowlege of the facred Language.

the natural and material World; the Destruction of these Agents, and all the Hosts of them must * undeceive them, and give demonstrative Evidence, that he who built all Things was God. The Foundations of TeBeL, the very Heavens were destroyed, the Earth with its Frame dissolved, and thereby Man had the Satisfaction of seeing by what Power it was formed; by the gradual Steps taken in its Reformation. The Airs and Waters had so changed Places, that the Inhabitants of the Air had Nothing to fublift by but the Breath, the Word of God; who need defire no other, no better Subfiftence: Every Part of the Universe was restored to its former Use and Splendor, and by fuch a Display of infinite Power and Goodness the very Foundations of Deism or Infidelity feemed to be quite rooted up: Noah and his Family, who could not look into Futurity, might well fout for Joy. But that Instrument of Satan, human Imagination, was foon fet to work again, and prevailed to fuch a Degree, that in about 100 Years the Affair at Babel happened; where there appeared fuch a Spirit of Rebellion against the most High, such audacious Pride, as required the special Interposition of almighty Power to check it, and prevent the ruinous Confequences of it: The Lord said, now Nothing will be restrained from them, which they bave bave imagined to do. Man was again preserved by a miraculous Expedient, and Order was made to spring out of Consusion, when the true Religion began to rear its Head among the Sons of God, in the Line of Shem. It is to be observed, that the Builders of Babel are expressly styled in the Original the Sons of Adam, according to the above-mentioned general religious Division of Mankind in the Patriarchal Times, though in our English Bible they are called Ver. 5. of this Chapter, Children of Men.

* This Evidence and ocular Demonstration gave the holy Family in the Ark, and in them their Posterity, an additional Proof of the Creation and Creator of this World.

About 400 Years afterwards, Idolatry had fo overspread the Earth, and the Sons of Adam fo far out-numbered the Sons of God, and covered the light Paths of true Religion, that it was deemed necessary to call * Abraham out of his Country, from amongst his idolatrous Kindred and Neighbours, in Order to preserve in his Family the true Worship of God, and thereby point out the Way to the Redeemer in the Sacrifices and several Rites, which + Abraham had observed and obeyed. The new Rite of Circumcifion, when performed in due Time and Manner, was to diffinguish this Family; that Men might know by fuch an Initiation where the true Religion refided, and by fubmitting to it become the Sons of God. The History of the Church, from the Time of this Institution and Separation to the Ministry of Moses at Sinai, need not be repeated here, as they were probably governed governed by the Laws and Institutions abovementioned. But I would observe here, that these made the principal Part of that Body which was given by Moses to the Israelites; whereas many have supposed that an entire new Set of Laws were at that Time first published by Moses. But the Mosaic Dispensation consisted in the Union and Incorporation of two Bodies of Laws, viz. fuch as were in Force under the Patriarchal Difpensation, and what were first given at Sinai. St. Paul, I think, describes both, alluding to the specific Difference of them. He calls the FOR-MER a School-Master to bring us to Christ, which was furely as useful and necessary in the Patriarchal as Fewish State; the LATTER was added because of Transgressions. * Eusebius seems to

* Gen. XII. + Gen. XXVI. 5.

* Eusebius says there were other Appointments and Institutions before the Law: What were added, and given by Moses, were not made for the Fathers. The Former, he fays, composed the New Covenant, or what was renewed upon the Abrogation of the Latter, and was That whereby Abraham, fob, and all the Friends of God were governed before the Mosaic Law, and makes one common Religion with the Christian; whereas That of Moses was a Law intervening between the Patriarchal and Christian Dispensations, εν τω μελαξυ παρεισελθων νομος, as a Guardian and Governor of Infants and imperfect, Souls, and " ferved (adds Eusebius) as a Physician to " cure the whole Jewish Nation of that Egyptian Dis-" ease (viz. Idolatry) under which they laboured"—with much more to this purpose. Demonstr. Evang. Lib. I. Cap. IV, V, VI. He doth not fay in express Words, that the Patriarchal Covenant, or religious Institutions given to Enoch, Abraham, &c. made a Part of the Jewish have had this Distinction in his Eye in what he delivers upon this Subject *. What is therefore firictly and properly called the Law of Mofes must be those additional Precepts, which were given to cure the idolatrous Ufages which had been learnt in Egypt and elsewhere, and to preferve them from any the like Infection. A short Specimen of my Meaning may affift the curious Reader to separate and distinguish these different Laws in many Places, and will justify my Obfervation. We read Deut. XIV. 1. Te are the Children of the Lord your God; ye shall not cut yourselves, nor make any Baldness between your Eyes for the Dead: Which Words plainly imply, that a State of Existence after Death was generally supposed in those Days. Other Laws of this Nature are referred to by Ezek. XLIV. 17. which are, I think, unquestionably new additional Laws, added because of Transgression, to keep them from concurring.

Law, but the Bible proves that very fully. The additional Statutes delivered by Moses are those called by St. Peter, a Yoke which neither the then Jews, nor their Fathers, were able to bear. Acts XV. 10.

* If it be allowed, that the Book of Job gives us a full View of all the important Doctrines and Precepts of the Patriarchal Religion (which feems to be very probable, and therefore deserving the Name of the Patriarchal Bible) it may serve as a pretty sure Touchstone to distinguish what may properly be called the Law of Moses, or what was added by way of, or for Transgression, and that other Part which was in Use and Force before the general Promulgation of both Bodies of Laws together at Mount Sinai.

concurring with the Nations in fuch idolatrous Ceremonies and Usages as they had been tempted to practise.

I was once induced to think, that Ezek. XX. 25. was to be interpreted of these additional Laws, where God fays, Wherefore I gave them also Statutes that were not good [ and fudgments whereby they sould not live. But upon reviewing this Text, I am persuaded that all the blasphemous, infidel Objections and Inferences, built upon the present English Translation and Sound of the Words, will vanish upon a nearer Inspection of the Original, and the plain Meaning of the Hebrew Words. The Word for good has feveral confistent Meanings, to be applyed differently according to the general Sense of the Pasfage where it is used. It signified in its first Usage, when God declares that such or such an act of Creation was good, what answered the Intention of the Creator, and is used in a natural not moral Sense. It signifies likewise what is agreeable and acceptable, as may be seen in Marius de Calasio, &c. Both these Senses are comprized under this Expression, as used in this Passage in Ezekiel. God gave his People Statutes which did not, through their Perverseness, answer the Intention of the Legislator, and such as were not agreeable or acceptable to them. The latter Part of the Verse, Judgments whereby they should not live, ought, I conceive, to be rendered, And Judgments they will not live in, or according to B 4 them, them, as the Prefix I fignifies. Hereby the impious Charge of God's having given his own People bad Laws, to be the Means only of their Destruction, is seen to be without Foundation. The Words look forward by the prefixed to the Verb translated live (and are rendered therefore by Montanus—non vivent) predicting the Apostacy of the Jews in Times that were to come.

In the following Part of Deut. XIV. the Precepts of the old former Law concerning Sacrifices, and the Rites of public Worship, are repeated and re-enacted. Circumcision is expressly referred to the Patriarchal State for its Origin by our Lord himself. Moses therefore gave unto you Circumcision, not because it is of Moses, but of the Fathers. John VII. 22.

From this short History of Believers and Unbelievers in the first Period of the Church, it is plain that no Charge of Partiality, or not affording sufficient Means of Instruction to all Mankind, can lie against God. Religion was twice universal; and when it was inclosed, it was out of Mercy to Man, that it might not be altogether lost. Besides, in a Time of Darkness and Inattention to any Thing truly great or good, the spiritual as well as material Light, by being collected into one distinguished Orb, served more for Use and for Beauty—It commanded a greater Veneration and Esteem—and excited its distant Admirers to a nearer Contemplation of it, and Approach Approach towards it, in Order to be Partakers of its comfortable and enlivening Rays.

Many Moderns may possibly here demand, where was natural Religion during this State of Things, as no Mention is made of it, as it is now commonly understood, in what hath been here faid, unless the Sons of Adam were guided by something of that Kind in the Acts above related of them? But if this be not admitted, I answer, That I have laid before the Reader fuch a State of Religion as I found described in my Bible, and if it be not there, he must feek it among the feveral Pretenders to this Power of fetting forth the Law of Nature: God, I hope, will incline and enable me to obey his revealed Will, and make me thankful for it. It it be still asked. Is there then no natural Religion? After what hath been faid upon this Subject by many good and great Men, it will not become me to answer in the Negative, neither is this a Place to be particular. If I may be allowed a Conjecture (and all is so where we have no positive Direction) It is as follows:

In the State of Innocence, there was probably in Adam a spiritual Instinct, analogous to the animal, whereby he was directed to embrace every Thing that was offered for the Improvement and Support of the spiritual Life, and to reject every Thing that tended to its Diminution and Extinction. This innate Principle and friendly Biass I would call Φρονημα πυτυματος; as the

the other which usurped the Place of this upon the Fall of Man was what our Article styles Φρουημα σαρκος: But this Faculty, I prefume, was in itself quite passive, till it received from without Materials of different Kinds, commonly called Ideas, to work upon. Whenever this happened, it became active, and had Powers, corresponding to those in the animal Frame, of apprehending, digefting, and converting into its proper Nourishment whatever was received into it. There was indeed a wide Difference between their Operations, necessarily flowing from the effential Properties and Constitution of each. The principal Offices of the animal Frame were involuntary and necessary Workings; whereas those of the ruling Principle were the Result of a well-informed Understanding and uncorrupted Judgment: The Food of the former was the Fruit of the Garden; That of the latter every Word that proceeded out of the Mouth of God, whether it opened the Uses and Beauties of the first or the second Paradifiacal State. These were the Data whereupon it was to reason, from whence it was to gather all its choice and refreshing Supplies. When external Ideas were offered to this pure Principle, and received with Approbation, after they were examined by proper Data, a Kind of Law was hereby established, and Man was obliged to aft by this Authority, this Conjunction being that Co-science or Conscience which claimed an Obedience. The Report of these

when

when joined, or the Dictate of Conscience, hath been called Synterésis, Conservation, as it is, when properly confulted and attended to, the Preservation of that Being wherein it rules. But as this pure Principle and clear Table of the Mind was foon stained and obscured, this original Law of Nature, which subfifted during the State of Innocence, feems to be lost in the Law of the Members, or changed for one of a spurious Kind which retained little more than the Name. But it must be said even of this first Law of Nature. and those Powers of which it consisted, that it was not of Man, but of God, from whom its Data and active Faculty were immediately derived; fo that it might be faid to Man in his best Estate, If thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory as if thou hadst not received it? But in this happy State Man was not naturally disposed to glory or boaft, or to throw off his Dependency upon the Author of his Being and of all the Advantages of it. But the Adversary of Mankind, by fubtle Infinuations, and a false State of the Law of Nature, fo far prevailed over him, as to feduce him to a Condition of Slavery and Infamy. By fetting up a Distinction and Difference between that Law which we have just taken a View of, and what hath been fince called positive Institutions, he effected the Purpose of his Envy and Malice: He was probably very witty upon the Occasion, about a Man's forfeiting Happiness by eating eating a little Fruit. Whereupon he had a fair Opportunity of appealing to that Law of Reafon and Conscience, which by being in Man feemed to be more his own, and thereby of flattering him into his own Destruction. From the Time of this Perversion of the true and original Law of Nature, we must look for it as it was changed in its Separation, and after it assumed its Independency, and a Right of fitting in Judgment over the politive, fince written Laws of God. From the Time of their Separation, or fetting up different Claims of Obedience, we must date the Rise of Deism, which we have called, an Opposition to the revealed Will of God, and must therefore look for it among the Sons of Adam; where it will be found in the History of its Effects, above fet forth, and may be farther feen in the Inventions of Men in the Service of God. either by taking Place of, or mixing with the instituted Rites, or by setting up a new Object of Worship. Had there been any infallible Rule of Action placed in the human Breast, it must have appeared during this Period, and been as well known as a Tree by its Fruits. But the Firstfruits of this Law in its best Estate, when it was persuaded to leave Revelation, and set up by and for itself, were, instead of the promised Effects of God-like Powers and Capacities, Shame and Death: And if it was fo dangerous and destructive a Guide when it was in its highest Perfection, what can be expected from it when impaired impaired and covered by Guilt? In Mercy to Mankind, this Table, or supposed inherent Law of Nature, was not indeed quite darkened, or fo lost to all Sensation as not to apprehend, or attend to fome strong Notices and Applications that might be made to it; and even now, when Acts of the greatest Inhumanity, Impiety, and Ingratitude are proposed to it, it will often shrink back with Abhorrence and Detestation: But even in these Cases, prudent Men are not willing to rely wholly upon the fole Security of the Law of Nature, without the Affistance of human Laws. And God, who knows us better than we do ourselves, and has a greater Regard for his ungrateful Creatures than they have, or can have for themselves, has been pleased to add the Sanction of his revealed Will for our Preservation. What then are we to think of fuch Christians as are willing to prefer this blinded Guide to the perfect Law of Liberty, to the only infallible Light of Revelation? Instead of the clear and beautiful Simplicity, and authorized Sufficiency of the Holy Scriptures, Christian Men, I wish I could not say, Christian * Ministers are recommending

* In the Book intitled, Christianity as old as the Creation, which is esteemed as one of the most able Defences of Deism, it must be observed, that the Author received his best Support, and strongest Evidence from many Passages extracted from our most eminent Divines, in what they have injudiciously afferted concerning the Law of Nature, falsely so called. Sir Thomas Ridley tells mending a more fure Word or Law of Nature, formed to puzzle, instead of informing the Understanding, leading its deluded Followers into fuch a Maze of Error, as they can never find the Way out of without the Hand of Grace and Providence to conduct them. They are to reason without Data, and form Demonstrations without Evidence: Their task is harder than what was imposed upon the Children of Israel in Egypt, as they are to find out the deep Things of God by the Sufficiency and Powers of a shallow Understanding, without Materials or proper Ideas to work upon. Instead of the easy, engaging Dress of Christianity, a frightful Figure is recommended, fet off with enigmatical Emblems, Problems, Corollaries, and various mathematical Delineations, to describe and recommend an unbeaten, intricate Path to Virtue and true Religion. Certain immutable Relations and Fitnesses of Things are to be proved in the first Place, and to compose the Catechism and first Instructions of a Christian Man. Upon this Plan, such only can be admitted into the true Church as are able to form or comprehend the laboured Demonstrations of the supreme Being, and the incomprehensible us, in his View of the Civil and Ecclefiastical Law, first printed 1607, that "The Law of Nature is that "which Nature hath taught every living Creature, as the Care and Defence of every Creature's Life, Define of Liberty, the Conjunction of Male and Female for Procreation sake." More extensive Definitions of the Law of Nature cannot be easily defended.

prehensible Perfection of the Deity; so that it must be as hard for a Man to enter this Way into the Kingdom of Heaven, as for a Cable to pass through the Eye of a Needle: So strait have such Men made the Way leading to life, that few indeed can find it!

This Way of raising and enlarging the Christian Edifice by metaphyfical Reveries, and attempting to explain the Nature of the first and univerfal Cause (which is quite out of our Reach) in Order to learn the Powers and relative Duties of fuch fecond Caufes as are placed within our Reach. and upon which we may build fecurely, puts me in mind of a * certain Projector in the Academy of Lagado, mentioned by Capt. Gulliver, This wonderful Architect had contrived a new Method of building Houses, by beginning at the Roof, and working downwards to the Foundation: He justified this Practice, it seems, by the Workings of two ingenious Infects, the Bee and the Spider. Our theological Projectors who form airy Castles upon sublime, unsupported Abstractions, thus beginning at the Roof, have but little Relation to the useful Bee; the Spider may be their Pattern and Representative,

Who spins a slimsy Web, its slender Store, And labours till it clouds itself all o'er.

English Poet. Such

* Gulliver's Travels, Part III.

Such a fet of metaphylico-mathematico-theological Spinners, and their Works, are divinely defcribed and marked out by the Prophet Isaiab for our Derision and Avoidance, as an useless Triber employed in vain Pursuits, bufily working in several dark Corners, and at last producing from their own Brains some poor, thin stuff, sit only to entangle fuch weak, volatile Animals as take a Pleasure in buzzing about this Snare till they are caught and destroyed in it: They weave the Spider's Web, &c. Their Webs shall not become Garments, neither shall they cover themselves with their Works. Isaiah LIX. 5, 6. Their Productions cannot cover Iniquity, or put on Righteousness, though that is the only Cloathing that can be our Comfort and Ornament, both a Robe and a Diadem.

Happy had it been for the Church of Christ, could Captain Gulliver have translated these laborious Operators to Laputa, and settled them there with proper Flappers to attend them. Believers might have made farther Advances in solid, useful Reasoning upon, and in illustrating the great Truths of Christianity, had they kept close to that invariable, as well as intelligible Rule of Faith and Practice, which is exhibited to us in the Holy Writings. Whereas this rival Law, which sets up itself as an universal Law, the same in all Places and Times, will be found to be as * uncertain as it is abstruse: So that if, after all our Pains, we are not sure of its Direction, what a Vexation must it be to have been long occupied in a ridiculous, fruitless Pursuit? And truly this Law seems to change with the Climate—Leibnitz says one Thing—Clarke another; so that a Religion of Nature delineated here may be of no farther Use than the Delineation of Mr. Benj. Wilkes's English Moths and Butterslies. This Image and Allusion easily occurs, inasmuch

23

* An Extract from Mr. Whiston's Memoirs, Page 277, relating to Mr. Chubb, who was revered as one of the chief Patrons of natural Religion, as it is contradiftinguished to Revelation, may serve to shew how far the Law of Nature may be depended upon as a fixed, invariable, and immutable Rule of Action, speaking at all Times consistently, and teaching the same Thing.

After Mr. Whiston's acquainting the Reader, "That upon Mr. Chubb's becoming a Socinian, he had wrote him a friendly Letter, containing a Caution, and a Prediction; that he would turn a Sceptick;" He adds, It was not, I think, very long after, that I was informed, that what I foreboded proved true, and that Mr. Chubb was become a great Sceptick, not only in se revealed, but in natural Religion also; and had writ-" ten against Men's Obligations to pray to God, as what could not be justified by Reason; though he did not then disown the Obligation to Thanksgiving for Mercies received; though, I imagine, a very little Al-66 teration in a Train of Thoughts might as well have determined for Prayer and against Thanksgiving." It appears from this Account, that the Author of the excellent Answer to Mr. Chubb's four Dissertations, published in the Year 1746, would probably have been greatly disappointed, had Mr. Chubb complied with his concluding Exhortation, which was, " to employ his " Thoughts as this Law of Nature may be aptly termed a Moth and a Butterfly, from its daily confuming, by infenfible Degrees, the Vitals of revealed Religion, though it owes all the Life it has to it, and borrows its most beautiful Colours from it.

But when natural Religion means that Sense of a superintending Providence, which arises from just Observations * of the Constitution and Course

of

"Thoughts and Pen in explaining and defending our common Religion, the Religion of Nature." Had these two Antagonists exhibited each his Plan of the Law of Nature, the Difference, perhaps, would have been as wide and remarkable in their Sentiments concerning natural, here called common, as it was in their Comments upon revealed Religion.

* Bishop Butler's elaborate Treatise upon Analogy, &c. may be of great Service to fuch as have Capacities and Abilities to make a right Use of, and improve the Confiderations therein fuggested for making the natural World a School of Instruction, to qualify us for the better understanding of, and for facilitating our Assent to revealed Truths. Dr. Denne has likewise published fome ingenious Sermons, preached at Mr. Fairchild's Lecture, wherein the Wisdom, Goodness, &c. of the divine Being are inferred from the Contemplation of the vegetable Creation. Mr. Ray, and other Writers in the fame Way, will occur to the Reader upon a little Recollection: But it would be inexcufable to omit upon this Occasion a particular Mention of Dr. Derham's Physico-Theology and Astro-Theology. But as the Words Natural Religion are generally understood, they feem to be very near what we call a Contradiction in Terms, like a fovereign Subject, independent Creature, corporeal Spirit, &c.-Man being herein supposed to be the Legislator and Subject of Legislation—the Power who exacts Obedience, and the Subject who is to pay itfuperior of Things in the visible Creation, it is one of the noblest Helps and serviceable Assistants, which the Mind of Man can make use of in its religious Progress and Enquiries. By comparing the Book of Nature with the Book of God, we shall find abundant Evidence of the great Truths of our Religion, and fuch as are very sufficient for rational Creatures in a State of Probation, who ought not to expect what is called Demonstration. The Instructions, given for the Information of Manare adapted to the Nature of a Creature compounded of Spirit and Matter. Such Ideas therefore as are fuggested to him for the Exercise of his Understanding have generally a theological or spiritual, and a physical Sense, in Order to furnish him with sufficient, though not perfect or adequate Conceptions of Things divine; and this feems to be the general Scheme of Providence with Regard to the gradual Improvement and Advancement of human Nature. As every thing in the Tabernacle was formed after an heavenly Pattern, so the whole material World was probably intended to give us proper, analogous Representations of That which we are preparing for: And I doubt not but the Wisdom and Goodness of God will more amply excite our Wonder and Love, when we shall be able to view distinctly the Method he has taken in makfuperior and inferior to himself in the same Respect and Kind, ing the visible Creation as serviceable towards the Pleasure and Increase of the Soul, as the Preservation and Delight of the Body of Man. From St. Paul we may learn, that fuch were culpable who did not make a right Application of this Evidence, without being particularly told the mystical or spiritual Meaning of each natural Production: The invisible Things of God from the Creation of the World are clearly seen, being understood by the Things that are made, even his eternal Power and Godhead. But those alone, I conceive, were without Excuse for this Neglect, who had fufficient Data to reason upon. Without such, Men can only gaze with a flupid Admiration upon the Uses and Beauties of Nature, as many Nations in India and Africk feem now to do, without drawing any useful, or however truly religious Conclusions from a bare View of them. This Observation seems to be warranted by the Word made use of by St. Paul in his Introduction of the Declaration just cited; where he does not mention the Nations in general or univerfally, but the Greek, i. e. fuch as lived in Luce Afia, and must therefore probably have had fufficient Data by Tradition, and Communication with the Fews, who must have been known to the Greeks in all those Parts, as well as the Religion of the Hebrews was after the Scriptures were translated into the Greek Tongue. These Men are therefore said, in the last Verse of this Chapter, to know the Judgment of God: And I humbly apprehend, . that that by the Gentiles mentioned in the 14th Verse of the next Chapter, such of them only are to be understood as lived in these Parts where Learning was cultivated, and where scattered Rays of the inspired Light pointed out some of the grand Truths of true Religion; many Gentiles being sed by these Crumbs which fell from the plentiful Table of the Lord, or the inexhaustible Stores of the holy Books; the Word Gentiles being here used in Contradistinction only to that of Jews, as the Word Greek was in the former Chapter *. For the same Reason, I mean the super-

C 2 ing

* But two other Scriptures put this Matter out of all Doubt, and fully prove what I have laid down with Caution. We read Acts VIII. that the Eunuch, who was a great Officer under Candace, Queen of Ethiopia, came to Jerufalem to worship: And it was so usual for some Gentiles so to do, that the outward Court was called the Court of the Gentiles, where they brought their Sacrifices to the Lord; and many of them were so addicted to the Service of God, that Haggai called our Saviour Desiderium Gentium: It will not be said, I presume, that the Law of Nature, as called so in contradistinction to Revelation, prompted this Desire.

St. John tells us, XII. 20. And there were certain Greeks among them that came up to worship at the Feast. The Reader may find something more upon this Subject in Bishop Overall's Convocation Book, p. 99.

From these cited Scriptures I think, that the Greeks and Gentiles, mentioned by St. Paul, Rom. Ist and IId Chap. were amongst those Gentiles who were acquainted with the Religion of the Jews. When these are said by Nature to do the Things contained in the Law, may, I conceive, be meant, That by their natural Situation, or being uncircumcised, and as such in a State of Nature, fuperior Advantages which the Heathens enjoyed in this Part of the World above others, the Corintbians were fo feverely rebuked by St. Paul for not making a right Use of natural Knowlege. They are called * Fools, for not applying an obvious Instance of a Refurrection and Revival in natural Bodies to explain and reconcile the Refurrection of the human Body, which was one of the great Mysteries of Religion. The Holy Ghost leaves a free, moral Agent, after laying before him proper Materials, and giving fufficient Instructions and Affistance, to the Workings of a Mind so furnished; and does not always specify the several religious Uses, which the various Parts and Operations of Nature are defigned to ferve. If Man takes care to act within Bounds, and not contradict what is fully they could not be faid to have the Law, that is, to be intitled to the Benefits of it, as the Beni Berith, or Sons of the Covenant; but as they did the Things contained in the Law, and shewed the Work of the Law written in their Hearts, by frequently hearing and meditating upon it, should be justified by the Merits of the common Saviour, as well as the Sons of Circumcifion, Nature in this Place is, I am firmly perfuaded, only used in contradiffinction to Covenant, there being few or no Heathens who did Things contained in the Law, who had no direct or indirect Instruction from it: These latter indeed were farther diftinguished by the Appellation of Barbarians, fuch as the Hottentots, &c. are reprefented to be by modern Travellers, without any Notion of a God; which shews the Necessity of fixing a limited Sense to the Apostle's Expression-by Nature. * 1 Cor. XV. 36.

fully, explicitely written or revealed, he may be allowed, nay he ought to make the natural World subservient to the better Knowlege of the spiritual*. True Philosophy will be a safe Foundation,

C 4 whereupon

* A learned Physician of the last Century hath finely illustrated this Point. "Solomon's Wisdom, faith this " excellent Writer, stayed not in the Creatures, though "he perfectly knew fo great a Variety; but did " from them only (as it were) take its Rise, and mount " higher than the Cedars, even into Heaven itself, and there only could find its Rest, from whence it had its " first Beginning, like the Spirit of Man, returning to "God that gave it. Let no Man think he hath fuffi-" cient Knowlege in natural Things, who hath not by "them been directed to divine, or that he hath viewed " the Creatures enough, who hath not been led through 66 them to the Creator. Nor shall ever any one have " my Consent to pass for a Philosopher, who keeps 66 himself so ignorant of the Scripture, as with Devo-" tion to admire that Academical Inscription, αγνως Θεω. "Knowlege natural and spiritual are not so contrary one to another but that they may very well agree to-" gether and cohabit in the fame Mansion; nay, they " are greatly conductive to the Growth and Promotion " of each other." And a little lower - " As Hiram " was eminent in Tyre for his Wisdom, Understanding, " and Cunning in all Manner of Workmanship, yet " that which crowned all his Excellencies, and reof nowned him to this very Day, was, that he came to "the Adorning of the Temple of God at Ferusalem; 66 So those learned Men who exercise themselves in na-" tural Philosophy alone, produce only News-books for " the present Generation, and so a little Time doth " confume all together: Whereas the Labour that is " taken in the Word of God (in the Search and Applicc cation of true Philosophy) is of a far more durable " Nature, and is like to run parallel with everlasting "Truth." Portrast of old Age-in a Paraphrase of the first fix Verses of the XIIth Chapter of Ecclesiastes. By John Smith, M. D. Printed MDCLXVI.

whereupon may be built much true Divinity. A Religion so established, and supported by what we may call the two Books of God, will be like the Patriarch's Ladder; its Foot may be upon Earth, but it rifes gradually through the feveral Stages of the elementary and celestial Worlds, through the moral and ecclefiaftical States, till its Head be triumphantly lost in the highest Heaven. As this Method of Building is recommended upon Apostolical Authority, it must, I conceive, be safer than That which teaches to begin at the Roof. Thus have I given the Reader my Opinion concerning the Law of Nature, which he is at Liberty to admit or reject. But I cannot dismiss the Subject without a few more Observations, as they seem to press upon me, and demand a particular Notice. We have feen, that the Law of Nature, as above described, (fince falfely called the Law of Reason) was the Medium, or connecting Tie, which united Satan and the Sons of Adam in a firm Confederacy by the Cement of the Doctrine of Independency, which prompted them to withdraw their Allegiance and due Homage from the supreme Being. The Doctrine of an infallible Oracle refiding within the Breast of Man placed the human Nature in a most exalted Point of View, commanding a greater Honour, and fetting it off with a more high and extensive Privilege, than the external Ornament of any imposed Urim or Thummim could do by being fixed only in one Place, or upon upon the Breast of one Man, and that Man a Prieft. The watchful Adversary of human Happiness most certainly made use of this Occasion and Argument to introduce that Confusion which was necessary for the effectuating his Scheme. and overturning that Order, which was established for the Government of the Church of God. He. might plaufibly urge, as his Children have fince done, that all Men feem to be born to the fame Privileges and Honours, whatever exclusive Right might be pretended to by Priestcraft, or any particular Defignation of a Melchizedekian or Aaronical Priesthood. Men possessed with fuch Opinions became deaf to all true Eloquence and right Reasoning; neither were the most alarming Punishments of any Use towards recovering them from fo bewitching a Frenzy. The general Deluge, the Destruction of Sodom. the Confusion at Babel, the Egyptian Slavery could not cure this inveterate and pleafing Distemper of the Mind. It continued to be the ruling Principle and epidemic Disease, which conflantly infefted Mankind, endeavouring to corrupt and destroy the Sons of God. So long indeed as the Belief of God's creating the World and redeeming Man subsisted, Satan could not make fuch Advances towards establishing an universal Monarchy as the Prince of this World defired.

New Objects of Worship were therefore set up, to efface the Memory and Sense of these Blessings

Bleffings and the Giver of them. For this Purpose, external and internal Idolatry were recommended by the fubtle Arch-Rebel; the former confifting in paying a divine Adoration to the Powers and Host of Heaven, without ascending to the Maker of them, and thereby taking away the Honour due only to the Creator; the latter, by puffing Man up with Notions of inherent Holiness, and I know not what felf-fufficient Opinions of his own Excellencies and Abilities, tending to persuade him to reject the proffered Terms of Grace and Salvation. Upon this Scheme, Man thinks himself too wise to ask Affistance, too perfect to need a Redeemer. The former Idolatry captivated the lower and more gross Part of the human Species, who were to be caught with visible and splendid Objects of Adoration; the latter was adapted to the more refined and wife Part, who extravagantly admired, and fell down before the Image of their own Excellency, as reflected from the false magnifying Glass of a vain Imagination. The most eminent and distinguished Part of Mankind have fallen by this very Delusion, as the Son of the Morning did. It has acted indeed, like its Author, under various Shapes, but is always to be known by the fure Mark of its opposing the revealed Will of God in some Respect or other, Its Followers have likewife gone under various Titles and Denominations, though agreeing in one capital Design, That of setting up human Wifdom, Wisdom, and its Dictates, above all that is called God, or the declared Will of God. In different Ages these Operators have been called Magians, Pharisees, Stoicks, Gnosticks, Puritans, Hermits, Socinians, Deists, and of late the growing Sect of whom Phileleutherus Lipsiensis has given a good Account. One Line will set forth the high Impiety of these Sons of Adam; * Vietrix Causa Deis placuit, sed Vieta Catoni.

Lucan.

Where the Superiority of an obstinate, opinionative, sowered Suicide over the righteous Judge of all the Earth is afferted; and the World hath been driven to Ruin and Misery by such slatulent Puffs as this. What is more shameful and astonishing is, that such Principles have spread and increased to such a Degree, as even to intercept the Rays of the Gospel Light, gaining more Followers to this Idol of Self, than the infallible Guide and Voice of Revelation can attract. Spartan and Roman Virtue have hereupon met with so venerable a Reception among Men, that it seems to the Generality to be of a nobler Kind, and more exalted Character, than that which is taught and commanded in the holy Books; nay, * What Paterculus fays of this same Cato is almost as hyperbolical—" Homo Virtuti simillimus, omnibus humanis Vitiis immunis, semper Fortunam in sua Potestate habuit." Lib. II. C. XXXV.

I may appeal, I fear, to the Judgment of the present Generation, whether the Name of a virtuous old Roman doth not command an higher Esteem and Reverence than that of a primitive Christian, and must therefore be highly preferable to any modern Professor of Christianity, olos DUB. BPOTOI EIGIV. The necessary Consequence of this. false Taste must be an Emulation of the Heathen and a depreciating Idea of the Christian Institution; the Books of the former, where their Heroes are immortalized, and the Rules are contained whereupon they were supposed to be formed, will of course be most admired and studied; and as these rise in Credit, the inspired Writings will be neglected, and gradually lose their Use and Authority. This Inference may be trusted to common Observation, and is too well proved by unhappy Experience and domestic Evidence. But both Kinds of Idolatry came down to the Age of Fob Hand in Hand with united Force, as will be feen in the following Sheets, which must, I think, shew the Reader the Propriety of my laying before him the above introductory History of Deism. Both of them likewife still subsist too visibly and powerfully in the * neighbouring Countries, and the latter has committed strange Havock in this our clean and well-

* As I was writing this Part of the Preliminary Difcourse, a Friend brought me a News-paper, containing a remarkable Article, not unworthy public Notice: It runs in these Words—well-dreffed Vineyard, threatning not only the Fences, but the very Roots and Productions of An Attempt to preserve it in this Respect will, I hope, apologize for the present Undertaking. Before I take leave of this Subject, it may.

A Piece, intitled Manners, has lately been burnt at Paris by the Hands of the common Hangman, in virtue of an Arret of Parliament. The Tendency of "this Work was-To establish natural Religion on the "Ruin of all external Worship, and so free Mankind from all Laws human and divine, that he might attend only to the Light of his own Mind. With this View, the 44 Author begins by endeavouring to make the Laws pass 66 for arbitrary Institutions, which are sometimes contrary to Virtue, or, at least, of which the Observation is of no "Account in the Constitution of what he calls Good Man-" ners. In the fame Idea he openly attacks all that is most 66 facred, censures, without Reserve, the Precepts and Ce-" remonies of the ancient Law, and the Rites and Sacra-

London Evening Post, Thursday. May 19. 1748. This is an excellent Picture of Deifin in Miniature. The Publication of this Scheme was, it feems, premature, to speak in the Style of a News-paper, and the Growth of the growing Sect was thereby checked. The Sower of these Tares mistook a little his Meridian, and was too hafty in committing his Seeds to a Soil which was not quite, though nearly perhaps prepared for their Reception. In general he shewed his Sagacity in the Choice of his Ground and Climate, Superstition and Irreligion being generally observed to be the reciprocal Causes and Effects of each other.

As there have been different Accounts of this Performance, I shall give the Reader, in a Postscript, such an Extract from the Original, printed at Paris, procured from thence by M. Vaillant, as may enable him to judge whether the Author be a Christian or a Deist, whether he be a Friend to any Denomination of Christians, or an Enemy to all revealed Religion.

" ments of the New."

may be proper to say something concerning these two Sorts of high Treason against the Majesty of Heaven here mentioned, with Regard to the Danger of each, and that Degree of Punishment which will follow the Commission of either, especially as the latter seems to be the prevailing Crime of this Age and Country.

The proportionable Guilt of Idol or Image Worship, and the Worship of Self, may be unquestionably estimated and determined by what happened to Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, who was a notorious Offender in both Instances. He fet up a golden Image in the Plains of Dura, and commanded an universal Homage to be paid to it. A ready Obedience was paid to this Command, a few inflexible Persons only excepted. What fuch an Image and Temptation might dos even at this Time, in Europe (South Britain excepted) is more fafe perhaps to imagine than experience. But great as this Crime and High Treason against the King of Heaven was, it was not punished with immediate Excision. But when the vain, boafting Monarch came to declare for himself, by setting up his own Glory and Independency in these remarkable Expressions-Is not this great Babylon that I have built for the House of the Kingdom, by the Might of my Power, and for the Honour of my Majesty? While the Word was in the King's Mouth, there fell a Voice from Heaven, faying, O King Nebuchadnezzar, to thee it is spoken. The Kingdom is departed from from thee, &c. And the same Hour was the Thing sulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar, &c*.

Besides the two general Divisions of Idolatry just mentioned, each Species hath its feveral Subdivisions, with different Degrees of Guilt, and confequently liable to different Degrees of Punishment. Nebuchadnezzar's Self-Idolatry was punished in the Manner above related, and a terrible one it was: But what is that Self-Idolater to expect, who will vaunt, That this perfect System of Religion I have built, for the Pattern and Direction of all Kingdoms, by the Might or Strength of my intellectual Powers, and for the Honour of the supreme Majesty of Reason? The Deist goes much farther than the idolatrous King, as the Work he boafts of, as his own, is of a more exalted Nature, and peculiarly the Work of God alone; so that he must expect to be diftinguished in his Punishment. The King was taken from amongst Men, and placed, with the Heart of a Beast, amongst Beasts for seven Years: But the others, who are not contented with magnifying themselves or Arts merely human. are constantly reviling the Works or Books of the Most High, must expect a more severe Judgment. Instead of having the Heart of Beasts, and dwelling with them for feven Years, they will be perpetually excluded from the divine Prefence, and be condemned to a diabolical Heart in order to converse with the infernal, blaspheming Crew to all Eternity. By these Terrors of the Lord would I willingly persuade Men, and prevent a dreadful Catastrophe, which will unavoidably attend Insidelity unrepented of; where it is aggravated with the high Guilt of Apostacy: For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly Gist; and were made Partakers of the Holy Ghost, And have tasted the good Word of God, and the Powers of the World to come; If they shall fall away, to renew them again unto Repentance: seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open Shame, Heb. VI. 4, &c.

But HE, to whom All Things are possible, will, I hope, give these Wretches, vile as they are, a new Heart, and Grace to join the King of Babylon in his noble Acknowlegement upon the Recovery of his Heart and Nature-Now I Nebuchadnezzar praise, and extol, and bonour the King of Heaven, all whose Works are Truth, and bis Ways Judgment, and those that walk in Pride he is able to abase *. The Resemblance between this Conclusion, and that of Elibu, induced me to be more particular upon this remarkable Story, which in one Part of it confirms likewise another great Doctrine, which the following Work was intended to establish; I mean the two Natures of Christ, which are prefigured, I think, in Daniel's History of the burning fiery Furnace. By the Form of the fourth (Person) being like the Son of God

God, is furely intimated the divine Extract and human Appearance of the promifed Redeemer. If it be asked, how could an Heathen King, and Idolater, be so well acquainted with this Character as to declare, upon first Sight, that such a Perfon was hereby represented, it may be answered, That it appears from this History, that the King had taken some Pains to be acquainted with the Particulars of the Jewish People and Religion. upon their being brought Captive to Babylon, Dan. I. 19. In truth, in the Conversation which passed between the inquisitive King and the zealous Jews with whom he communed, the Person of their Leader and Protector was in all probability fo exactly described, as he had exhibited himself to them, that the King immediately acknowleged the Person who answered that Description. It is reasonable likewise to suppose from preceding Facts, that the Appearances of our Lord were more frequent under any very great State of Affliction, which was then their Case, to support their Faith and Constancy, and that he always appeared in the same Form, to be the better known and distinguished.

The Reader must indulge me in one pleasing Inference and Reslection, suggested by the Consideration of this amazing History. As the Presence of that wonderful Person did so visibly and effectually protect his three steady Servants who sirmly trusted in him, that, walking in the midst of the Fire, they had no Hurt; So will he as surely preserve his faithful People from the Flames of a burning World, when he shall appear among them at the last and general fiery Trial; their Bodies, though for some time bound and settered in the Grave, shall be released, and arise afresh and entire; they shall have no Hurt, neither shall the Fire have Power over them.

If these Sheets should be peeped into, and this Book chance to be opened in this Place by any polite Readers, who would rather be directed by a fine Poet and a Layman, than pay any Regard to a plain Writer and a Priest, I would refer such to Mr. Dryden's Account of the Law of Nature in the Presace to his Religio Laici.

Truly I am apt to think, that the revealed "Religion, which was taught by Noab to all " his Sons, might continue for some Ages in the whole Posterity. That afterwards it was in-" cluded wholly in the Family of Shem is manifest: "But when the Progenies of Cham and Japhet " fwarmed into Colonies, and those Colonies were subdivided into many others, in Process " of Time their Descendants lost by little and « little the primitive and purer Rites of divine Worship, retaining only the Notion of one "Deity; to which succeeding Generations added others: for Men took their Degrees in those " Ages from Conquerors to Gods. Revelation being thus eclipfed to almost all Mankind, " the Light of Nature, as the next in Dignity, was fubstituted; and That is it which St. Paul concludes to be the Rule of the Heathens, " and by which they are hereafter to be judged. 16 If my Supposition be true, then the Confequence which I have affumed in my Poem may be also true; namely, that Deism, or " the Principles of Natural Worship are only "the faint Remnants or dying Flames of re-" vealed Religion in the Posterity of Noah: " And that our Modern Philosophers, nay and " fome of our philosophising Divines, have too much exalted the Faculties of our Souls, when they have maintained, that by their Force " Mankind has been able to find out that there " is one supreme Agent or intellectual Being, " which we call God; that Praise and Prayer " are his due Worship; and the rest of those "Deducements, which, I am confident, are the " remote Effects of Revelation, and unattain-" able by our Discourse, I mean as simply con-" fidered, and without the Benefit of divine " Illumination. So that we have not lifted up " ourselves to God by the weak Pinions of our "Reason, but he has been pleased to descend to " us; and what Socrates faid of him, what Plato " writ, and the rest of the Heathen Philosophers of feveral Nations, is all no more than the · Twilight of Revelation, after the Sun of it " was fet in the Race of Noah. That there is " Something above us, some Principle of Mo-" tion, our Reason can apprehend, though it " cannot discover what it is by its own Virtue. D 2

" concludes

" And indeed 'tis very improbable that we, who by the Strength of our Faculties cannot enter into the Knowlege of any Being, not so much as of our own, should be able to find out by them that fupreme Nature, which we cannot " otherwise define than by faying it is Infinite; " as if Infinite were definable, or Infinity a Sub-" ject for our narrow Understanding. They who would prove Religion by Reason do but weaken the Cause, which they endeavour to " fupport: 'Tis to take away the Pillar from our Faith, and to prop it only with a Twig; 'tis to defign a Tower like that of Babel, which, " if it were possible (as it is not) to reach " Heaven, would come to Nothing by the Con-" fusion of the Workmen. For every Man is building a feveral Way, impotently conceited of his own Model and his own Materials: "Reason is always striving, and always at a " loss; and of necessity it must so come to pass, " while 'tis exercifed about That which is not its " proper Object. Let us be content at last to " know God by his own Methods, at least fo " much of him, as he is pleased to reveal to us in the facred Scriptures: To apprehend them " to be the Word of God, is all our Reason has " to do; for all beyond it is the Work of Faith, which is the Seal of Heaven impressed upon " our human Understanding."

Some Observations concerning the Cherubim are set down in the following Sheets; which may appear appear new to many Readers; I defire such to consider them, and what I am now about to add for the better Understanding and Illustration of that Subject, with Seriousnels and Impartiality: When that is done, they must be left to their own Judgment.

When the first Symbol, or * Tree of the living Ones (given during the State of Innocence) was removed, a Change of Condition introduced a Change of the Symbol, fuitable to the Alteration made in Man's new Estate. Herein was represented the Wrath of God against Sin, and the Punishment due to it, by a Flame and Appearance

* The Tree of Life, or the Tree of the living Ones, in Paradife, was, I humbly think, equally the representative Symbol of the three Persons of the Deity, as they were equally concerned in the Creation of Man; fo that eating the Fruit of this Tree was preferving a facramental Union and Communion between God and Man: Whereas after the Fall, when the Tree of Life, or the living Ones, is typically mentioned, the fecond Person or Redeemer is principally understood thereby, as He was principally the Healer of the Nations, and thereby the Giver or Restorer of Life.

I would here observe, that the Conjecture concerning the Oak's being the fymbolical Tree of Life, or the living Ones, appears, I think, to be the Opinion of the ancient Fewish Church, from what is faid in the Targum of Onkelos in the Chaldee Paraphrase on Gen. III. 8. which fays expressly, that our first Parents hid themselves in the Middle of the OAK, אילי. Some Lexicographers indeed have made this Word an Appellative instead of Proper Name, and to fignify Tree in general, but without any Reason, I think, or Authority; Moses has given another, and we have abundant Proof that THIS, in its true Form, is the Proper Name for the Species of OAK-Trees.

pearance of Fire in continual Circulation. Herein likewise were represented, as is supposed by learned Men upon, I think, fufficient Authority, the three Perfons of the Deity in Covenant, the Trinity in Unity: The second of them was to stop the raging Effects of the Fire by suffering instead of Man. These Figures or Emblems of the covenanting Persons are supposed to be given for the Support of Man, and for his Instruction in the Doctrine of Redemption. The Sacrifices were offered, and the Blood sprinkled before these Figures or Faces, and Atonement for Sin could not otherwise be made according to the revealed or written Reason of their Institution; and the miraculous Effects attending them, and proceeding from them, gave them a divine Veneration and Authority: So that these Symbols feemed to be necessary for the Church, from their first setting up at the Gate of Eden to the Destruction of the Jewish State, i. e. till Sacrifices ceased, and there was no farther Occasion for sprinkling the Blood of the Sacrifices before these Faces, when the real Person, who was represented by the Lion and Man (joined in these Figures) appeared, in a new Form and a fleshly Tabernacle, to put away Sin by the Sacrifice of bimself once for all. Some have dared to doubt, whether the Descriptions in Ezekiel, hereafter referred to, are applicable to these Figures in the Scriptures, &c. But when that Part relating to the covering Cherub going from the Threshold of the the House (or Temple, Beth) into all Lands is considered, the Doubt, I think, must vanish. But if this was admitted, other Doubters may say, these Figures were not such necessary Symbols as is here supposed, because the second Temple was without them.

Whether this Supposition of the second Temple's being without the Cherubic Faces be Fact, or a vulgar Error in Theology, will be submitted, after setting down some sew Remarks upon that Point.

As the Writers upon this Subject are not to be numbered, it may be sufficient to state this Matter upon the Representation of the learned Dr. Prideaux, who seems to have collected and delivered what appeared to him to be the Truth, concluding in Favour of the Jewish Tradition, that five Things were wanting in the second Temple which were in the first.

* Of the five Particulars supposed to be wanting in the second Temple, and mentioned by Dr. Prideaux, the first only is now under Consideration, viz. The Ark of the Covenant, and

D<sub>4</sub> the

* Part I. Book III. The Reader will receive great Satisfaction in confulting the learned Hulfus upon this Subject, pag. 153, 519, &c. of his Theol. Judaicæ Par. prim. de Messia. The first Talmudical Tale upon this Occasion is, that this Defect in the second Temple is intimated in Haggai I. 8. by the paragogic in being omitted in the Hebrew Word rendered I will be glorified, because the Letter is the Numeral likewise for five: They that are fond of such Stuff may have enough of it—Exuna Fabula disce ceteras.

the Mercy-Seat which was upon it, to which were joined * two Cherubim, one at each End. but both beaten out of one Piece. Before this Ark, and so before the Cherubim, the annual Atonement for Priests and People was to be made on the Day of Expiation, by sprinkling the Blood of the Sacrifice upon the Mercy Seat Eastward, and before the Mercy-Seat; and this is called an everlasting Statute, Ver. 34. i. e. I humbly conceive, to last as long as such Sacrifices should last. I would observe, that Nothing is said here. or in the Account of Bezaleel's making the Ark, to disprove the Formation of Cherubim in a former State of the Church, before the Commencement of the Jewish Polity; or that can disprove any fimilar Rite of sprinkling Blood upon a Mercy-Seat between and before it, which might, though fmaller and more portable, be fully expressed for such a Purpose, as the typical Rites used in Sacrifices seem to be equally proper and expedient under every State of Sacrifice. For the fame Reason, the Levitical Laws concerning Beafts clean and unclean, or fuch as were fit to be used and not used for these Purposes, by no Means disprove the Use of such a Distinction in the Patriarchal Times, as this Distinction is plainly set down when Noah went into the Ark. In the first Orders given to Moses, Exod. XXV. the Ark, and the Mercy-Seat with the Cherubim at each End of it, feem to be two distinct Things. The Use of the Ark is declared at Ver. 16. And thou shalt put into the Ark the Testimony which I shall give thee: So that as there was no written Law or Testimony before, there was no fuch Use for an Ark; and this agrees with St. Paul's Account, that within the Ark were the golden Pot that had Manna, and Aaron's Rod, and the Tables of the Covenant. After the facred Historian has declared the Use of the Ark, Moses has fresh Orders to make a Mercy-Seat with the Cherubim, which was to be above. upon the Ark: There, faith the Lord, I will meet with thee, and will commune with thee from above the Mercy-Seat, from between the two Cheribim, &r. whereby one must suppose, that Moses was no Stranger to the Form of them; but a few Directions were given with Regard to the Position of their Wings and Faces, which might be probably neceifary upon the Addition of other Types, &c. in the Furniture of the Tabernacle: And the Vail is ordered to be made with Cherubim, XXVI. 31, as Figures sufficiently known, without any particular Instruction. Nay, that these Figures were what was called the Testimony or Witnesses, Exod. XVI. 34. is very probable. Before the Tabernacle was made, Aaron was ordered to take a Pot, and put an Omer full of Manna therein, and lay it up before the Lord (or, to the Faces of Jehovah) then follows immediately in the next Verse, As the Lord commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up before the Testimony (or, to the Faces of the Witneffes) nesses) the Holy Ghost thereby plainly teaching us, that before the Lord and before the Testimony are the same Thing. Here the Rabbins, the more effectually to blind us, make a new Divifion and Distinction, by calling this Oracle the Schecinah, or divine Presence; and make this the fecond Thing, and therefore a diffinct Thing, wanting in the fecond Temple. Dr. Prideaux tells us from these Rabbins, when he had the Word of God before him, "All which (i. e. Cherubim, &c.) " was made out of the same Mass, without joining any of the Parts by Solder." A glorious Rabbinical Comment! " Here it was (adds the Dr.) where the Schecinab, or divine Presence, rested 66 both in the Tabernacle and in the Temple, " and was visibly feen in the Appearance of a " Cloud over it; and from hence the divine Ora-" cles were given out by an audible Voice, as " often as God was confulted in the Behalf of his " People. And hence it is that God is so often se faid in Scripture to dwell between the Cherubims on the Mercy-Seat; because there was the Seat or Throne of the visible Appearance " of his Glory among them." As the learned Dr. cites only what I have cited, and Numb. VII. 89, for the supposed Distinction of the Schecinah and the Cherubim. I leave the Reader to observe what Foundation the Rabbins had to make such a Distinction; and whether it ought not to be supposed, that God was present with his People in the fame Manner, as long as the Cherubic Faces were continued, and wherever they were regularly placed. From the Answers being given from between the Cherubim, the Divinity was not improperly said to dwell there or inhabit between, asthe Word Schecinah signifies he that doth inhabit; so that the Difference of the Cloud being above or below is as ridiculous as any other Rabbinical Dust.

The distinguished Glory between the Cherubim, and over the Mercy-Seat, shewed that our Saviour, called by the ancient Jews the second Glory (meaning, I suppose, the second Person) was the principal Agent in this Oeconomy: The Cloud or Glory being between the Cherubim, they were called by St. Paul the Cherubim of Glory.

Since therefore neither Dr. Prideaux, nor any other good Writer that has fallen in my Way, cites any Authority, but that of Rabbinical Men, for the Proof of the Ark of the Covenant and Mercy-Seat's not being in the fecond Temple; and as he does not fay from the Fewish Writers quoted by him, that the Cherubim were expressly faid by them not to be in the fecond Temple (though they were inseparable from the Mercy-Seat) these Men might possibly think that their Design in removing the Cherubim, by this Omission, might not be so easily perceived. For one Confequence of admitting this Rabbinical Legend is, that the Rites and Types of the Levitical Law were arbitrary, without any typical Meaning or Aspect; and so, by this Stratagem, they hoped to elude the Arguments drawn from them them by Christians in Support of their Scheme of Redemption, and their Notions of a Redeemer-But the Scriptures will never deceive us; and I think we have enough therein to direct our Judgment in this Matter *. As the Cherubim were made and beaten out of one Piece, the Unity of the Antitype was hereby represented; and by the Description of their Faces being one to another, or, according to the Hebrew, each Person (typical Person) towards his + Brother, the Plurality and Equality of the Persons in the divine Essence is clearly fet forth. And whereas the Text fays farther that, besides this Aspect towards each other, or each one towards his Brother, to the Mercy-Seat-ward (likewise) were the Faces of the Cherubim; the Reason of there being two Cherubim appears, that they might look upon the Mercy-Seat and the interceding High-Prieft, and at the same Time be witnessing to, and for each other their fulfilling their respective, voluntary Engagements, in graciously effectuating the Redemption of Man. It may here likewise be remarked, that the Faces are expressly said to be Le Beth, toward the House or Temple, not inward, according to the English Text in 2 Chron. III. 13. From 1 Chron. XXVIII. 18. it appears likewife that the Cherubim had a || Chariot, where-

in,

* Exod. XXXVII. 7, 9. † איש אל אחיו Vir ad Fratrem fuum. Pagnin. No Wonder that the Ape of Christ provided Chariols for the Objects of Worship set up him, for Jupiter,

divine

in, or whereupon the emblematical Figures were placed. But to proceed.

Dr. Prideaux fays, "That the Author of the " Book Cozri justly faith, that the Ark, with the " Mercy-Seat and Cherubim, were the Founda-" tion, Root, Heart, and Marrow of the whole "Temple and all the Levitical Worship therein " performed; and therefore, had there Nothing " else of the first Temple been wanting in the " fecond but the Ark only, this alone would have been Reason enough for the old Men to have " wept, when they remembered the first Tem-" ple in which it was, and also the Saying of " Haggai, that the fecond Temple was as No-" thing in Comparison of the first." Had these Necessaries been wanting (and the Book of Cozri feems by the above Expressions to allow them to be Necessaries) not only old, but all Men had Reason to weep, as the most material Part of the Worship, for the taking away Sin, could not have been performed according to the original,

Juno, Apollo, &c. This Chariot, or Mercabah, has given infinite Trouble to the Rabbies to explain away the Meaning of it by various abfurd Tales and Fictions; but the Application of Ezekiel's Descriptions of this Matter is more fixed and determined by it. The ZeBI likewise mentioned by Ezekiel, and taken notice of in the following Work, is hereby farther explained, this Chariot being probably a Currus cameratus with rich Work, not unlike the Canopy of the Heavens, with all the Host of them, described forming a perfect celestial Sphere, with the supreme Ruler and principal Agent in this System upon it, as it were upon an Horse.

divine Appointment: The Rabbi, to effect his Purpose of removing these Emblems out of the Way, does not feem by this Account to be aware of this fatal Confequence. But Dr. Prideaux supposes, upon the Authority of Lightfoot and the Rabbies cited by Lightfoot, that in the fecond Temple there was an Ark made of the same Shape and Dimensions with the first; but though fuch a one was fubflituted for the Sake of the Service that was annually to be performed before it, yet it had none of the Prerogatives or Honours which were conferred upon the first. However, if it was a true Copy, the Cherubic Faces must have been there; but all this feems to be gratis distum, as every thing of this Nature is which is not founded upon Scripture Authority. But the Doctor reasons farther, to establish this Opinion, and says, " That the first 46 Ark being made by God's Appointment, and the fecond being appointed and substituted by " Man only, is the Reason of the different Powers and Honours belonging to each." That there was fuch a Substitution as above supposed, is, I think, without Proof or folid Foundation; that the Structure of the fecond Temple and the Furniture of it were merely the Work of Man, is contrary to the Scripture Account. Zerubbabel and Joshuab had two Prophets, Haggai and Zechariah, with them, by one of whom they were particularly ordered and encouraged to the Building of that Temple, and doubtless instructed also, where where it was wanted, as to the Pattern of all beavenly Things they were to build from.

The Weeping of the old Men could not be on the Account of these facred Emblems being wanting, as these Tears were shed upon the *Foundation's being laid, before they knew what was to be put into it; and as to what is cited from the Prophet Haggai, it proves only that it was in fome Respects (not specifying the Deficiency supposed by Rabbinical Men) much inferior to Solomon's Temple: The Workmanship and Materials were probably less rich and curious, as Dr. Prideaux has accurately and particularly shewn. But it is unreasonable, not to say impious, to suppose that any thing was wanting that was necessary for the punctual Performance of God's instituted Worship, especially as the Work was under the Care and Direction of two of his Prophets: One of them particularly mentions + fome spiritual Emblems of an high Nature which were in this Temple; and it is wicked to suppose, that the " Foundation, Root, and Marrow of the whole "Temple and all the Levitical Worship therein " performed," as the Book of Cozri speaks, should

* Ezra III. 12.

+ What be these two Olive-Branches, which, through the two golden Pipes, empty the golden Oyl out of them-selves? And he answered me and said, Knowest thou not what these be? And I said, No, my Lord. Then said he, These are the two anointed Ones, that stand by the Lord of the whole Earth. Zech. IV. 12, &c.

should be left out *. As the Scriptures therefore have not removed them, and have given us fufficient Reasons for supposing them there, let us keep them, and maintain their Situation, fince they were as necessary under the second Temple as under the first. What the second Temple wanted in exterior Ornaments and Costliness would be abundantly made up by the Honour of its receiving, and being filled with the real Prefence of its Lord, instead of Emblems and typical Appearances. Let us hear what is faid in the divine Oracles before we dismiss this Subject, since this Point feems to be stated, and clearly settled in the IXth Chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews; the Substance of which, with Regard to the Point before us, I shall here give, desiring the Reader

to

<sup>* 1</sup> Kings VIII. 8, is to me a positive Proof that the Ark, Mercy-Seat, Staves, &c. were in the second Temple; where, after the Enumeration of these Particulars, it is added, And there they are unto this Day. It is agreed among Believers, that Ezra was the Person who was divinely authorized to fettle the Jewish Canon of the Scriptures, and that many of the explanatory Additions, inserted in the Text, were added upon divine Authority by him: The Reader may see many of these supposed Instances in Dr. Prideaux; and I humbly think that the Words here mentioned are fuch, as it would be abfurd to fay at the very Time of these Things being put into Solomon's Temple, or foon afterwards, That there they are unto this Day, which plainly must be understood of some future Day long afterwards. Now if Ezra may be supposed to say this by the Influence of the Holy Ghost, and so these Things were in Being and their usual Place in his Time, this Dispute is, I think, at an End.

to try my Report by the Original. The Furniture of the Holy Place and the Holy of Holies feem to be distinguished in Ver. 2, 3, 4, 5. In the former Place, or Tabernacle, was the Candlestick, &c. and it was called the Sanstuary; after the second Vail was placed, between the Holy and Holy of Holies, the Tabernacle, which is called the Holiest of all, which had the golden Censer, the Ark of the Covenant, and over it the Cherubims of Glory—of which we cannot now speak particularly, xxxx µερος.

From hence I infer (for myfelf) that by the Situation of the Holy and Holy of Holies are fignified the two States of the Church, Typical and Christian; the former, when the Blood of Bulls and Goats, by Faith in the Antitype, was to take away Sin; the latter, when the Antitype should appear in the Tabernacle of human Flesh, to take away Sin by the Sacrifice of himfelf, and then to enter into the real Holy of Holies. Conformably hereunto, these different Tabernacles are distinguished only by That made with Hands, fignified by the Holy Place, Ver. 24. which had passed under various Denominations of Tent. Tabernacle, and Temple, and That made without Hands, Ver. 11. which was God incarnate, the true Melchisedek, King, Priest, and Prophet, the Maker and Ordainer of all substituted Kings, Priests, and Prophets. If the Reader shall judge this Rabbinical Story concerning the five Particulars; fo far as I have examined it, to be without sufficient Foundation, he must admit my Conclusion, that the Symbol of the Cherubin lasted to the End of Sacrifice and the Mosaic Dispensation. And this seems to receive a farther Confirmation from the Time and Circumstances of the Institution of the last Symbol which succeeded, and is to continue till the End of all Things. This Symbol is the Bread and Wine in the Lord's Supper, which was therefore ordained by our Bleffed Saviour the Night he was betrayed, because the Church would have been otherwife without fuch a Symbol, as foon as the Words it is finished had been pronounced; for all the typical and ceremonial Laws, given by Moses, were hereby expressly abrogated and repealed by the fame Authority which enacted them. I cannot well avoid taking notice of another Fewilo Artifice, which was made use of very early, to turn aside the Force of this plain Prophecy of Haggai, concerning the Glory of the second Temple's being to be greater than that of the first: The filly Rabbies, as cited by Hulfius, tell us, that this Excellency confifted only in its Duration, and at the same Time own, that it lasted no more than ten Years longer than the first. But the 'Jews in our Saviour's Time were more subtle; they plainly faw what Advantage this Prophecy, and the Completion of it by the Christian Interpretation, gave their Adversaries: They therefore contrived a Story of a third Temple, built from the Foundation (not repaired only) by Herod. Hereby Hereby they would have it thought, that our Lord's Ministry was during the State of the third Temple, and that therefore the Prophecies, which related to the fecond, could not be fulfilled in him. * Folephus gives the first Account of this third Temple, and takes care to make it quite a new Temple, not an old one repaired, enlarged, and ornamented: But he, unluckily for his Cause, fays, that this Temple of Herod was built in † eighteen Months; whereas we are informed (John II. 20.) that the Temple to which our Lord came was forty and fix Years in building, and * He that would be fully fatisfied in this Matter should read Fosephus, B. XV. Chap. 14. of the Jewish Antiquities, without relying upon any Extracts from it; and then comparing what is therein faid with St. John II. 20. and what is faid by Dr. Prideaux, &c. let him judge for himself. I will only add, that my Suspicion of the intended Design of this History concerning a new third Temple has a greater Authority than mine to support the Probability of it: Hulfius, in the Book before cited, fays, "Hic ergò (sc. Abarbenel) Templo tertio tandeni " instaurando hunc Gloriæ Excessum transcribit, atque " ita ab omni moleftià se et suos liberasse putat." pag. 521.

+ It must be owned, that afterwards, though in the fame Book and Chapter, he makes the Priests only to take up eighteen Months in finishing the holy Work, and fays, that Herod had been eight Years finishing the rest. Let the Reader compare this Account with the Scripture Account of building the first and second Temple, with what is faid before in this very Chapter of fofephus, and what St. John fays; and this Chapter of Josephus will appear, I think, to be the confused Jumble of an Historian, who knew the Truth, but wanted to warp it to ferve private Views and Applications.

and the second Temple itself, exclusive of the additional Buildings, &c. was about feven Years, pretty near the same Time with the first, according to the Scripture Account. What is faid concerning the Buildings of the Temple by the Evangelist amounts, I think, to a presumptive Proof that they were then in a State of Perfection. And as he went out of the Temple, one of his Difciples saith unto him, Master, see what Manner of Stones, and what Buildings are here. And Fesus answering said unto bim, feest thou these great Buildings? There shall not be left one Stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down. Mark XIII. 1, 2. Dr. Prideaux has taken some Pains to reconcile Josephus and St. John; but with what Success and Satisfaction, and how far his Suppositions may be admitted, will not become me to fay: And if it was in my Power to lessen the great Fame of fo venerable a Writer, it would be Ingratitude fo to do in a Person who owes so much to his Labours and Instructions. where my Bible plainly guides me, I hope, I shall never leave that facred Conductor, out of Reverence to the Person or Abilities of any Man.

When the Reader is fitting in Judgment upon this Point, and weighing the Authorities which are produced on each Side, he must allow a Place for what is said in the first Book of Maccabees, V. 1. The Nations round about heard that the Altar was built, and the Sanstuary renewed as before: The Greek for renewed is Evenauro n, Monta-nus's Latin Version dedicatum est. The Word Santtuary here, compared with other Places in this History, comprehends the whole facred Fabrick or Temple: The Words as before should, I think, be rendered as the former, ws To TROTEPOU. which is an Adjective, whose Substantive is just before fet down, viz. To aylasma, the Santtuary. The plain Inference from this Construction is, that the Temple was at this Time, in all Parts, renewed, restored, and solemnly dedicated or confecrated to the Service of God, having all Things in it necessary or expedient for the Performance of divine Worship, as the former Temple had. Our Translators, by rendring the ws 70 προτερου, as before, were probably induced fo to do upon a Supposition, that the Design of the Historian, in this Place, was only to shew that all the holy Furniture of the Temple was restored and re-confecrated, after it had been polluted and desecrated by the Abominations of Antiochus Epiphanes. But if the TO THOTEPON be a Noun Adjective, whose Substantive is το αγιασμα, then the Temple of Solomon must necessarily be referred to; and the Consequence will be, that this second Temple, after many Interruptions, facrilegious Attempts, and Invafions, was compleated anddedicated; and an annual Festival instituted to commemorate this happy Event, when the fecond Temple, with Regard to its Emblems, Uses, Ornaments, &c. was renewed and made like the first. St. John tells, us that our Lord himself E 2 honoured honoured this Festival with his Attendance; so that if this Festival was instituted in the Time of the Maccabees, about 160 Years before Christ, it cannot be supposed that our Saviour came to a third Temple, in order to celebrate the Dedication of another which was then demolished. Our Lord's being present at this Dedication is to me full Proof, that the same Temple was then standing which was perfected, purified, and dedicated in a particular Manner, by an Order for an annual Commemoration of this Blessing, in the Time of the Maccabees. I now submit this whole Affair to the Judgment of the candid Reader.

I beg leave to subjoin here, by Way of illustrating what hath been noted concerning the Cherubim, or the Cherubic Faces in the Holy of Holies, that the Word * Seraphim seems to point to

The Heavens are plainly fo called as contradiftinguished to the Earth, and as the Place of Residence of immaterial,

* Cherubin and Seraphin are therefore named in that celebrated Hymn of the Catholic Church, called Te Deum, &c. as continually crying out one to another Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of Sabaoth. The Person or Perfons who composed this Hymn seem plainly to have taken this Part from the Scriptures here cited, and by Cherubim and Seraphim to have meant Persons or Beings above all created Intelligences. For the former Clause comprehends the whole celestial Hierarchy and Chorus, however dignified or diftinguished, To thee all Angels cry aloud, The | Heavens and all the Powers therein. To compleat the Praises of the Deity, or Trinity in Unity, the bleffed Three, the Cherubim and Seraphim proclaim his Glory: These are omnipresent Powers, no way circumscribed, as the Powers therein, or of them, autw, imply.

Them who had Healing in their Wings, Mal. IV. 2. and to One more specially who was to give himself, and to be given for the Healing of the Nations, Rev. XXII. 2. The Word Seraph being used for the brazen bealing Serpent which Moses was commanded to fet up, and the mimic Oracle of Serapis, feem likewise to confirm this Coniecture. But Isaiah, Chap. VI. 3. compared with Rev. IV. 8. (and these Scriptures are compared in the marginal References of our English Bibles) make it appear undeniably who these Persons were. * I saw also, says Isaiab, the Lord sitting upon a Throne, high and lifted up, and his Train filled the Temple. Above it stood the Seraphims: each one bad fix Wings; with twain he covered his Face, and with twain be covered his Feet, and with twain be did fly. And one cryed unto another and faid, Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord of Hosts, the whole Earth is full of bis Glory, &c. In the compared Place in the Book of Revelations we read, And the four Beasts had each of them six Wings about bim, and they were full of Eyes within, and they rest not Day and Night, saying, Holy, Holy, Holy Lord God almighty, which was, and is, and is to come. And when those Beasts give Glory, and Honour, and Thanks to bim that fat on the Throne, who liveth for ever and ever, &c. &c. We see but still created and dependent Beings; whereas the supreme Being is in every Place, though he is more visible in one than another with Regard to his Acts or Blessings.

* A ferious Perusal of these Scriptures, one would think, would make a Socinian tremble, and a Christian fall prostrate and adore his Lord and Saviour.

that the Seraphim in Isaiah are the Beasts ( $\zeta\omega\alpha$ , living Creatures) in the Revelations, so that there is no Room for any Rabbinical Tales about Angels: The Trinity of Persons in the Essence, and the HeDI, witnessing to each, and calling distinctly upon and acknowleging each Person, is plainly set forth, as is the Unity by the general Chorus, Lord of Hosts, Lord God almighty, as well as King Messiah, who sat on the Throne, &c. &c.

To prevent any Miftake, and more clearly to point out who the \( \zeta \omega \) (living Things or Beings) were, the next Chapter repeats this Vision, with an Illustration and Enlargement upon the principal Subject and Object of it. As the four \( \omega \) joined only in giving Glory, &c. though the four and twenty Elders fell down and worshipped him that liveth for ever and ever, &c. fo it is faid, Chap. V. 13. Every Creature which is in Heaven (equivalent to the Te Deum Expressions of the Heavens, and all that are therein) and on the Earth, and under the Earth, and such as are in the Sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Bleffing, and Honour, and Glory, and Power be unto him that fitteth upon the Throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever. And the four ζωα said, AMEN. Their Part was only a Confirmation and Ratification of this Act of Praise and universal Worship. If it be urged, that in Ver. 8. of this Vth Chapter it is written, that the four Beafts, or ζωα, and four and twenty Elders fell down before the Lamb, and that therefore the Zwa joined in the same Act of Homage, which the Reprefentatives.

fentatives of the Trinity, or the three Persons in Covenant, cannot be supposed to have done; it may be replied, that the Word emerous, rendered fell down, does not simpliciter, absolutely, signify fuch a Kind of Prostration as is used by a Dependent towards the fupreme and independent Being, by a Creature towards the Creator; which may be well inferred from the last Verse of this Vth Chapter, compared with the 10th Verse of the IVth Chapter. In the last or 14th Verse of the Vth it is said, that the four and twenty Elders (and they ONLY) immediately after the high Approbation or AMEN of the four Beasts, ζωα, fell down, επεσαν, AND worshipped, προσεκυνησαν, bim that liveth for ever and ever. Had Emeran, fell down, implied an Act of Adoration, fuch a Tautology as the Addition of meogenuveran, worshipped, would not have appeared in such a Book, and pressed so close upon the Reader. Επεσαν signified an honourable Form of Attestation (fuch as became the Witneffes, HeDI) and an Acknowlegement of what was just and due to the Lamb that had been flain, at the same Time establishing a proper, and perpetual Doxology, to be used by the Church triumphant in its public Worship: Προσεκυνησαν described that very Act and Gesture of Homage and Worship which was, and will be expressed, and paid by the Redeemed to the great and gracious Redeemer. As both these Words are used together in the LXX Verfion of 2 Chron. XXIX. 30. an Explanation of the the original Hebrew, from whence their Sense must have been taken, will give the best Interpretation of them in this Place. The former, emesaw, is the Translation of the Verb which signifies * to bend the Head, our English Bible rendring it accordingly * 777, incurvare Verticem, 7177, Vertex Capitis; fo that eweran here must have the same Meaning with κεφαλη καθανευσομαι in Homer, Il. I. 524. or επεκgαιαινε Κεουιων, Il. II. 419. I will give the English Reader the Passage in the first Book of the Iliad in the Translation of the English Poet, after observing, that the Way of interpreting the New Testament Greek by the Hebrew, from the Translation of the LXX, hath been used by very learned Men long ago; who thereby teach us to use the Version of the LXX, as the best Lexicon to help us to explain the Greek Testament, by tracing Words to their original Roots in Hebrew, where-ever the Words occur in both Testaments. And this must be the most fure Method, fince thus we interpret Scripture by Scripture, and hereby compare two divine Originals, immediately and infallibly expressive of the Sense intended to be conveyed and revealed by the Holy Spirit. But the English Homer, in the Place above cited, speaks thus,

The NOD, that ratifies the Will divine, The faithful, fix'd, irrevocable Sign.

He spake, and awful bends his sable Brows, Shakes his ambrosial Curls, and gives the NOD, The Stamp of Fate, and Sanction of the God. High Heav'n with Trembling the dread Signal took, And all Olympus to the Centre shook.

As the pronouncing the Amen was the peculiar Part of the four  $\zeta_{\omega\alpha}$  in the Celebration of this divine Hymn, it feems to point out diffinctly how far they were concerned in the  $\epsilon_{\pi\pi\epsilon\sigma\alpha\nu}$ , falling down, above-mentioned. This Manner of affenting and ratifying is equivalent to the affenting, commanding NOD of Homer's Jupiter, whose accordingly in this Text of Chron. they bowed their Heads, which was a well-known Form even among the Heathens of expressing the Approbation and Sanction of their supposed supreme Deity: Annuit likewise expresses this same gentle Flexion of the Head in the Latin Poets, and is fo applyed to Jupiter, Eneid IX. &c. But worshipping is expressed by a Word in Hebrew, which fignifies an Incurvation and Prostration of the whole Body, kiffing the Ground, as it were, (according to the Greek) by falling flat upon it, to declare the greatest Veneration for the Object of Worship, and the lowest Opinion of the Worshipper, comparing himself with such an Object. The Eastern People therefore, where the Word was first used, and therefore supposed to be best understood, bowed down and incurvated, not the Top of the Head only, but themselves, every Part, before him, as the Heavens are continually exercised in this Incurvation, which is expressed by a Derivative of this Verb, thereby declaring the Glory of their Creator. The Reader will find in Nebem. IX. 6.

whose Part herein might probably be described in this, as well as other Respects, from the true divine Original. The four  $\zeta_{\omega\alpha}$ , or Persons represented by them, assented and ratisfied; the four and twenty Elders assented and worshipped. How then can the Amen in the Revelations be supposed necessarily to imply the Assent of created Beings? I beg leave to suppose, that Heaven and Earth might shake and resound upon the pronouncing this Amen, and the giving this ratisfying NOD of the four  $\zeta_{\omega\alpha}$ , or living Elahim.

the true Construction and Sense of this Word for Worship, where it is said in the English Version, the Host of Heaven worshippeth thee: The just Translation is, I think, the Host of the Heavens are משתחוים, in a Posture of Incurvation or continual Prostration of themselves to or before thee. Here is true natural Knowlege, and found Divinity built upon it, as a fure and intended Foundation, both uniting to refute the Idolaters of these Powers, and referring their Worshippers to the very Object they worshipped to teach them their Duty, fince that very Object was continually paying Homage to the Creator of itself and of all Things. The Noun here is in the Form of Hithpael, and fo describes the heavenly Powers of Fire, Light, and Air, reciprocally and mutually acting in and upon themselves in effecting this peculiar Rotation and Incurvation, constantly bowing themselves, and falling quite down, as it were, before their Creator. Behold a Mine of Philofophy and Theology contained in a fingle Word, when it shall be skilfully worked and laid open! But the hafty English Reader may possibly suppose, from what is said in Chap. VII. 11. of this Book, that the four Beafts concurred in paying religious Adoration and worshipping God: But the Original makes it clear, beyond all Doubt or Contradiction, that all the ANGELS who food round about (xuxla) the Throne, and round about the Elders, and round about the four Zwa [and they only here | fell before the Throne on their Faces, and worshipped God. I humbly think, that in this Vision we have a Representation of the Investiture or Inthronization of the Lamb in his supreme regal Dignity, when he shall have put all Enemies under bis Feet, and is ready to distribute proper and fuitable Rewards and Punishments. All within the Circle of the Throne were the Parties concerned in the great Scheme of Redemption, the Elders or Presbyters being, we may fairly suppose, Representatives of the happy Part of the human Race, the great Patriarchs, Prophets, and Apostles of the Church of Christ, offering the Prayers, &c. of all the Faithful, as the High-Priest did in the Sanstum Sanstorum: Observe, that their Number is not bere set down. Over and above these were the four ζωα, as they appeared to Ezekiel, and in the Sanctum Sanctorum, bearing Witness to the Lamb that was slain, and investing him with the covenanted Honours, according to the emblematical Representations in the Holy of Holies.

The Angels, all the Angels, says the Text, stood about the Throne; and it appears, upon their being permitted to see what they had so long defired to look into, they fell before the Throne on their Faces, and worshipped God: What are Scoffers and Unbelievers to expect at this Time, and upon this Appearance? From what hath been observed concerning the Distinction of the several Parts which were performed by the four  $\zeta \omega \alpha$ , and the four and twenty Elders, in the abovecited Places, we have Authority, I think, to fuppose the same Distinction in any after Passage, where that Distinction is not specified and expressed, as in the XIXth Chapter, 4th Verse, where we read, And the four and twenty Elders, and the four Beasts fell down, and worshipped God, &c. The Words for Beasts are with an Article, \* τα τεσσαρα ζωα: These may be supposed to be principally concerned in pronouncing the Amen, as the four and twenty Elders (πρεσθυ-\* Dr. Hammond was greatly puzzled and led aftray by the Rabbinical Comments of Aben Ezra, &c. upon the resource (wa, as the Reader may see upon consulting his Annotations upon the IVth Chapter of the Revelations. But the learned Doctor fays, Note (h) V. 7. "It is evident that these four Resemblances are the " fame that are fet down, Ezek. I. 10. All the Diffe-" rence is, that here is μοσχος, a Calf, which is not "there, but (as in Numbers before) an Ox is put instead " of it. But that will be eafily falved: For in the " LXX, Taveos, Bous, mooxos - Bull, Ox, Calf, fignify " the same Thing. See St. Augustine, Quast. Lib. 2. <sup>66</sup> Qu. 25. Vitulos appellant Ægyptii grandes Boves, " ut nos Pæni Pullos Gallinas cujuslibet Ætatis, &c. "In that Place of Ezekiel'tis certain that the Cherubims or Angels that attend on God are fignified." Had not the Fables about Angels (invented by the same Aben Ezra or his Accomplices, for the fame wicked Purposes of effacing the Vestiges and Evidences of the three Persons of the Essence, with the Man taken in, as purposely described in the Cherubin) blinded the Eyes of the faithful Dr. Hammond, he would probably have given us a full and clear Comment upon this Point, as he has made fuch fair Approaches towards it, though under fuch Influences.

TEPOL

τεροι) were in faying (* λεγουτες) Alleluia. Ζωα is the Translation of Ezekiel's החיות. There is no more Reason for our supposing, that is, I think, none at all, that the Elders and Beasts joined here throughout in both Parts, viz. of falling, down and worshipping, than that the Elders were more honourable than the Beafts, because mentioned before them in this Place, or than the Translators had for rendring the Word Zwa, Beafts: They have been fofter in translating in Ezek. Ist and Xth, living Creatures, though even that is an injurious Translation. The Words דמות החיות have a feminine Termination, to denote, I prefume, their being only Substitutes or emblematical Representatives of החיים, the original, true, living Ones. See what is faid of this generical Difference in the following Book.

Should these Things be so, what must be thought, or what must become of such (if any such have been) who have designedly given us such degrading Translations and Notions of the Elabim HaCHIIM? These might have done well well to have considered, that in Ezek. X. where the Description of the living Creatures, as well as in his Ist Chapter undoubtedly, I think, corresponds with the  $\tau\alpha$   $\tau \epsilon \sigma \sigma \alpha \rho \alpha$   $\zeta \omega \alpha$  in the Revelations, since they are expressed in the LXX by the same Words, they are called in Ver. 20. singular, the living Creature, English, Animal, Latin,  $\tau \epsilon \omega \omega$ , LXX,  $\tau \omega \omega$ , LXX,  $\tau \omega \omega$ , LXX,  $\tau \omega \omega$ , to denote, I pressure, the Unity of the Essence, as the plural \*Cherubim\*, in the latter Clause of the Verse,

* Dr. Hammond says, under the Note (i) V. 8 of the IVth Chapter, "In this Verse it is evident that the "Phrase full of Eyes belongs to the living Creatures" (ζωω) and not to the Wings; for so the Greek γεμοντω, "full, concludes, which agreeth with ζωω, Creatures, but cannot with πλεφυγως, Wings." By Parity of Reason and Grammar may it not be said, that λεγοθες were the πρεσβυτεροι only, who united both in the Amen and Alleluia, or falling down and worshipping, as the Greek Word λεγοθες agreeth with πρεσβυτεροι, but not with ζωω.

fet

* A Passage in Dr. Spencer's celebrated Work upon the Levitical or Ritual Laws, &c. may be of more Weight with fome People perhaps in determining this Point, than any Thing already fet down: The Reader may find it in pag. 795. Edit. Cant. 1685. " Ethnici « eodem penè modo de Cherubinis, quo de Simulacris 66 Ethnico aliquo Numine animatis, locuti videantur. " Nam Ethnici Nomen אלהים Imaginibus eorum fa-" cratioribus tribuerunt: Et Philistai, audito Cherubi-" norum Adventu in Hebraorum Castra, dixisse legun-" tur, Venit Deus, in Castra. Ethnici Simu-66 lacris eorum Numinis alicujus Præsentiam et Virtu-66 tem fingularem tribuerunt. Eos etiam eandem de " Cherubinis Opinionem concepisse, Philistaorum Ver-66 ba de Symbolis illis imprimis intelligenda, doceant, « Quis nos liberabit e Manu Deorum istorum fortium? " I Sam. IV. 8." The Reader will observe, that the Translators were obliged to render Elahim plural in this Place, because the Words for istorum fortium in Regimen with it are plural, though they had, we fee, but just above rendered it in the fingular, Deus. A judicious Writer may make a good Use of the Dean of Ely's Collections upon this Subject, though the Doctor was unfortunate in his Application of them. If the Cherubim were Copies of an Egyptian Original, how came they to be fet up at the Gate of Eden? The Doctor could not suppose, that external Idolatry was prior to this Date:

fet forth a Plurality of Persons: The four living Ones, or Ta TEGGAPA Gwa, here and in the Revelations, fet forth three Persons of the Essence, with the Man taken in, and made One with it in the Person of Christ. When I have added. that Ezekiel says that be saw this Animal under תחח, fubstituted for, or a Representative of the God of Israel, who will dare to assign him an inferior Rank of Being? I hope, I shall be always ready to fall down and worship, in the Form prescribed, the glorious Being represented by it. No Doubt, I think, can now remain, what Persons were represented and referred to by the * Cherubim in the Sanctum Sanctorum, and in Ezekiel, by the Seraphim in Isaiah, or the four Beasts, ζωα, in the Revelations.

Many

Date, though Deism, or internal Self-Idolatry, was but a very little older. I have the Satisfaction to find, that the Compilers of our Liturgy seem to have had the same Sense of the true Interpretation of the IVth Chapter of the Revelations as is above given, by ordering it to be read for the Epistle upon Trinity Sunday; which, I presume, was done from their Opinion of the Persons concerned in celebrating the Hymn therein set down, as well as their Sense and Interpretation of the Hymn itself.

* These emblematical Figures were set up, we read, at the Gate of Eden, and by being called by the same Name (Cherubim) were the same undoubtedly which were placed in the Holiest Place, and for the same Purposes: The ancient Jews had probably this Notion, from what I have read in a Pamphlet, which gives a sufficient Hint to sound such a Conjecture upon, though the Description be upon the Whole impersect. This Ac-

Many modern Interpreters of the Old Testament, having confidered the various Parts of it as a bare Narrative of Things and Persons terminating in itself, without having an Aspect to future Events and Transactions in the Christian Church, I was induced to observe this injurious Treatment of these holy Books, and point out fome Particulars, wherein the infpired and profane Writings essentially differed, and whereby they were to be carefully diftinguished. There is a literal and a spiritual Sense to be attended to, and the latter comprehends various Branches and Sub-divisions. Profane Books are to be literally understood, without any spiritual Meaning, and they exhibit every Thing in the Letter that is necessary for a sufficient Understanding of them; but the facred Books cannot be fo underflood, the Letter being no better than the Shell which contains the spiritual Sense, or inclosed Kernel: This therefore must be the first and the nobleft count however ferves to disprove the Fables and Inventions about Angels, &c. In this Pamphlet, published 1689, intitled, God's Covenant Displayed, by John Alexander, a converted Jew, with the Reasons of his Conversion, the Reader will find what follows, pag. 26. I will not be bold, yet it is not against the Analogy of Faith to think, that the Cherubim likewise standing at the Entrance of Paradise, after Man's Banishment, was the second Person of the Deity, by his slaming Sword (his Word, Heb. IV. 12, 14.) to undeceive him of all he could presume of the earthly Tree of Lise, in order to his full relying upon the promised Seed, which only was the Way, the Truth, and the Lise."

noblest Sense which a Christian will endeavour to find, as it is that which is chiefly. I had almost faid, folely of use to him. I will explain my Meaning in a familiar, and, I hope, inoffenfive Way. The History of the Casars, as given by Suetonius, and that of the Patriarchs, as delivered by Moles, may ferve to illustrate this Point, and note the Difference which is to be attended to in this Matter. These two Accounts may, or should agree in one Particular, viz. their both being literally true; That of Moses certainly is fo, but is fo far from stopping here, that the Ground-work is but just laid: Its Perfection and highest Embellishments are to be looked after and viewed in the Glass of Futurity. Many Ages, distant Times, and Events are necessary to complete this Hiftory, to shew the Truth and beautiful Harmony of the several Parts which compose it. Again, the Histories of Alexander or Charles XII. of Sweden are circumscribed by the Acts of their respective Reigns, and are determined with the Book which records them. But the historical Account of David, and Solomon, and many others in the Scripture, must necessarily refer us to something future for a right understanding of them. Indeed, without admitting a typical Sense, they would not be in many Parts literally true. What Isaiab declares with regard to himself is applicable, and ought to be applyed to the most eminent Personages mentioned in the Old Testament, Behold I, and the Children whom the Lord hath given me, are for * Signs and for Wonders in Israel. Isaiab VIII. 18+.

These being the principal Uses of the first facred Code, there were other Records among the Fews, which are cited and referred to in this Book: Thefe, I suppose, were purely historical, like the civil Records of other Nations, and therefore kept distinct; whereas the facred Story looks farther than the private personal Character of the Person described, and almost every Perfon and Thing herein fet forth points out some important Part of the Christian Dispensation. The Characters are mixed; but the first and principal Intention is, to point out the spiritual or figurative Meaning, which the literal Characters are fet down to represent, and serve as Instruments to convey the principal Matters to the

* The learned Bishop Chandler hath observed, from Zech. III. 8. that such Men were called Men of Wonder, or Sign, "which, saith the Bishop, is an Hebraism for signifying typical Men, or Men portending future "Things." The Reader will receive Pleasure and Instruction in perusing what his Lordship hath said concerning personal Types, in his Defence of Christianity.

† But as a short Citation from one of Mr, Hutchinfon's Books will give the Reader a more just and elevated Idea of this divine Volume, and the noble Uses of it, than twenty Pages drawn out by such a Pen as mine,
I will dare to produce it; and set it down in this Place.

Every Passage in the Old Testament looks backward, and forward, and every Way, like Light from the

&quot;Sun; not only to the State before and under the Law, but under the Gospel; and Nothing is hid from the

&quot;Light thereof." Essay towards a natural History of the Bible.

the Knowlege of Mankind. And hereby, I think, the Difference between the facred and civil Story must sufficiently appear.

If these Things are so, what shall we say of those levelling Writers, who treat the holy and unholy Books in the fame Manner? Hereby, in the Lives of particular Persons, these Men make the Holy Ghoft a mere Biographer, like Plutarch or Diogenes Laertius. In the Hagiographa, he is considered as a Collector of moral Fragments, no way superior to the Apothegms and Placits of wife Heathens. They have fometimes dared to compare these Writers and their Works; to draw Parallels between human Wisdom and divine, that is, between Finite and Infinite, between Perfection and Imperfection: Notwithstanding the glaring Absurdity of such Attempts, fome of the brightest Pens have been engaged in them, and the People love to have it fo. But from the characteristic Difference between the holy Writings, and all others, it must follow, that a different Rule of Criticism must be established and observed, when we would explain and pass a Tudgment upon their feveral Excellencies and Perfections; otherwise we shall measure the Scriptures by a false Standard, when they have one peculiar to themselves, to which other Writings cannot be applyed or measured by. And if, at any future Time, any bold Critic should arise (though resembling an Angel of Light in the superior Excellency of his intellectual Faculties) who may give us a Set of Rules, by which we are to judge univerfally of a perfect Historian, and then take the Liberty of arraigning and condemning Moses upon these Laws of his own making or compiling, I beg leave here, in behalf of the Scriptures, to enter a timely Caveat against fo unjust and facrilegious an Invasion.

But, befides the already noted Difference and Superiority of the Scriptures over all human Compositions, the Duration of them will make their Excellency still more conspicuous, and shew, that it does not barely consist in prescribing moral Duties, or setting forth great and good Examples. These Books will survive the general Destruction of the material World, and the Pride of human Works and Abilities:

When all the wide-extended Sky, And all th' harmonious Worlds on high, And Virgii's sacred Work shall die;

This Volume shall be opened, and appear in its greatest Glory; when the Patience of Job, or the Penitence of David will be of no Service in a State, where there will be no farther Occasion for the Exercise of these Virtues. Heaven and Earth shall pass away, but the Word of God shall not pass away. Herein are contained the Counsels of the Almighty, which cannot be perfectly understood in this State of Impersection, and will therefore be reserved for our Contemplation, plation, when the Eye of the Understanding shall be rendered quite pure and strong. A Zeal for the Honour of these holy Books will. I hope, excuse any Asperity of Expression, hereafter used, in regard to such of my Brethren as do not feem to pay that Reverence to thefe Writings, which is required in a more especial Manner from Clerical Men upon all Occasions. Woe be to them, whether Clergy or Laity, by whom Offences of this Kind come; but more Woe will it be to fuch, whose peculiar Business it is to prevent or remove them, if they themfelves should be the principal Offenders this Way by Encouragement and Example. "What Pu-" nishment he deserves (says an Author just " above cited) who offends against the infinite "God in these Points," none but that God can " express. If one do Injury to another in Tem-" porals, That may be punished bere by Man or "God: But if one do Injury to another in " Things of Eternity, I doubt That cannot be " punished equivalently, but in Eternity." was provoked (honeftly I hope) to fay fo much as I have faid upon this Topick, upon being affured, that many of the favourite Pulpit-Orators in the chief Towns of England have generally fo little of Christianity in their Compositions, that it cannot appear from any Thing that is faid, that a Minister of Jesus Christ is the Speaker: And the greatest Character of a modern polite Preacher is, that he entertains very well! that is, he harangues, without any Affiftance from his Bible, or perhaps any other Book. As this Vanity threatens the Destruction of this Church, as it formerly did, not without Effect, That of Corinth, I thought it not improper to publish fuch a cautionary Dehortation from this filly and wicked Pride and Apostacy, in hopes it may check the Growth of this unbecoming, pernicious Practice. I do not expect that my Endeavours in this, and other Points herein confidered, should succeed better than those of more learned, and much better Men, from any Abilities in the Writer; but it may happen, that some may be affected more fenfibly with one Manner of explaining and exhibiting the fame Truths than they are with another: For which Reason it is right that Matters of fuch Importance should be propounded in different Ways, and by different Persons, that they may have a better Chance ' to be clearly apprehended by, and fuited to the respective, various Capacities of Mankind.

F 4

Nothing that is advanced by me in this Work will, I hope, give Offence to any good Christian, as I write only to affish such in the noble Course they are pursuing, and am myself an humble Candidate for the same Prize, that is equally set before us. The Substance of what is herein afferted hath been the Doctrine of the true Church in all Ages, though the Dress it appears in here may be new, but, I hope, not aukward or disagreeable. Where any Observation or Illustration may appear to be uncommon, or not well supported, I have taken care to strengthen it by proper Authorities: But I must own, that I have a great Aversion to unnecessary Quotations, brought to prove Matters which are fufficiently evident without them, and which serve only to fhew, that the Author has perused many an Index and modern Dictionary. Besides, I thought it became a Writer upon the Subject of Christian Humility, ambitiosa recidere Ornamenta; and I know none more deserving that Title, than those oftentatious Citations wherewith many Books abound. This Kind of Embroidery placed on the Margin of a Book, where the Contents do not feem to require or excuse it, betrays, I think, a Want of Substance or good Sense, instead of being a fuitable and graceful Ornament: As fuch it feldom fails to excite the Ridicule and Contempt of the fenfible Part of Mankind, however the great and fmall Vulgar may be dazzled with it, and admire it.

I have frequently made use of the Comment of a learned Foreigner upon Job, in explaining occasionally some of the Passages and Expressions; but I enter not into the Examination of his Hypothesis, leaving it to the Disquisition of such as are resolved to consider Job as a dramatic Writer, entertaining themselves, and their Readers, with various Reveries upon such a Scheme. Schultens, by fancying himself in Buskins, in order to form a better Judgment of his Author, seems feems to have been infensibly swelled into an affected Latinity, which adds no Beauty to his Work; for the Dress that is most easy is generally most engaging and becoming. This very learned Man and great Master of the Oriental Languages hath, in this Work upon Job, passed an heavy Censure upon the LXX and the Chaldee Paraphrast, which I shall subjoin, in his own Words *, for the farther Examination of the Learned.

Though no fufficient Apology can, I think, be made for the LXX, with regard to some Additions, Omissions, and unaccountable Constructions of many Expressions and Passages in that Translation; yet, considering the many excellent Uses which this Version answers in general, we should be as favourable as we can in our Strictures upon it, and be ready to embrace any reasonable Conjecture that may be offered in Vindication of these Interpreters, which may serve to remove the Imputation of wilful Corruptions or Interpolations.

Textum collatus, non deformis, sed informis planè &
abortivus Partus appellari mereatur.

" Paraphrastes Chaldaus, totus in Scholæ Rabbinicæ Commentis & Glossematis consarcinandis, nihil Pensi habuit, an Ordo Temporum Rerumque constaret, si

* Vid. Præf. in Job Comment. "Inter veteres, conturbatissimi in Jobo reddendo LXX qui dicuntur; quamvis dubitari nequeat, quin diversus planè sit Interpres, non multæ in Hebraicis Peritiæ, & incre-

&quot; dibilis Licentiæ, in quidvis e quovis exculpendo, et proprii Fœtum Cerebri effingendo; qui ad Hebræum

&quot;modo magna Eventa Ecclesiae Israeliticae, & Hostium ejus, hoc in Libro adspicienda præbere posset." Ibidem.

lations. What I would particularly fuggest in this Place is, that many paraphraftical Explications, at first only noted in the Margin, have by injudicious Copyists been taken into, and made a Part of the Text. A notorious Instance of this Kind occurs in the LXX Version of Job XIV. 4. In our Translation we read, Who can bring a clean Thing out of an unclean? not one. But the LXX add, after the Words not one, though his Life be but of one Day, for which additional Words there is no Hebrew. Should the Reader ask, why it is supposed that these Words were originally paraphraftical, or placed in the Margin to explain this Text, I will lay before him my Reasons, and submit them. In order to do this, I must set down the Words of the LXX, who translate the Hebrew thus, 715 yap ες αι καθαρος απο ρυπου; For who is pure or clean from Pollution? Now as the Word puros, Pollution, feemed to be too general an Expression to fix the Sense, or specify that Kind or Species of Pollution, which was here referred to by the inspired Writer, they put the just-mentioned additional Words, I suppose, in the Margin, to direct the Reader to that particular Sort of Guilt or Pollution, which was to be understood in the Text. Such as were qualified to examine the original Word, and the true Interpretation of it in the feveral Places where it was used, needed no Comment: For though it fignifies frequently Sin in general, yet it primarily and principally describes describes certain casual Uncleannesses, and inevitable legal Impurities, which are recited Levit. IV. for which immediate Cures and Remedies were appointed. The Passage where this Word (CHaTA) is first, I think, made use of, is Gen. IV. 7. in * the Case of Cain, where we read. * The Reader will, I hope, pardon me for communicating what I have farther noted in attentively confidering this Hiftory. It is introduced with fome peculiar Expressions, In Process of Time, in the Margin, at the End of Days. I am inclined to think, that a certain periodical Division, or determinate Portion of Time, then established and well known, must hereby be understood, and that none more likely may be supposed, than what might be relative to the particular Stages of the Life of Man. In this Acceptation, That Time of Life, Determination of Days (Days perhaps of Years) when Cain and Abel arrived at such an Age and Ripeness of Understanding as made them what we term moral or religious Agents, accountable for their Actions, may be fignified by these Words. So that upon their first solemn Appearance before God, as true Worshippers and Believers (and this facrifical Act feems to have been their first Act of Homage) it is reasonable to suppose, that an Acknowlegement of a Creator and Redeemer was required from them, more effectually to recommend to their Posterity that particular Faith, which could make them happy for ever. The Use therefore of particular Offerings or Sacrifices were prescribed, to keep in memory the universal Bessings of Creation and Redemption. An Oblation of the Fruits of the Earth was a proper Acknowlegement of a Creator, from whose Bounty these Fruits were derived; but the Sacrifice of the Firstborn of the Flock (rendered Sheep in the Verse above) was required by way of acknowleging a Redeemer, as typifying that Lamb, who was (by Covenant between the three Persons of the Essence) flain before the Foundation of the World, and who actually suffered, and was facrificed for Sinners in Process of Time, and at the End of read, If thou doest not well, Sin lieth at thy Door. Not doing well fignifies here, I suppose, not using the instituted Means of Grace and Pardon, or omitting the proper Acts of Homage and Obedience. From Sin lying, or continuing at Cain's Door, for want of being removed by a right Conduct upon this Occasion, it is plain that Cain was under some Guilt, as Abel confessed himself to be by bringing an expiatory Sacrifice. But no particular, actual Transgression is here specified or laid to the Charge of either, previous to their Oblation; and if there was no actual Sin which required a particular Atonement, it could be no other than what has been fince called original Sin. If this be fo, Cain proceeded upon the Principles of * Deism, Abel followed the Light Days, to take away the Sin of the first Adam, and all the Sins of his penitent and grateful Descendants. Cain, 'tis plain, thought the first Acknowlegement sufficient, as not being guilty perhaps of any open Violation of the social Law, the Temptations in that Respect being them comparatively very sew.

2. The Words shalt thou not be accepted? spoken to Cain, must be interpreted of an Acceptance by taking away Sin, as the Original imports, NaSHA being used for the taking away Sin by the Scape-Goat.

3. If the Sin of Cain may appear, from these, and other Considerations, to have been the Denial of original Sin (as it is since called) and maintaining his own Sufficiency and Integrity, the Punishment of Cain will, I hope, deter others from sinning after the Similitude of Cain's Transgression. These Remarks are submitted to the Examination of right Reason.

* Philo Judæus's Account of what passed between Cain and Abel before the Murder (though it be for the most of Revelation: The Elder thought himself to be without Sin, and felf-fufficient; the Younger confessed he was a Sinner (though perhaps not guilty of any wilful Sin) and by fuch Confession was accepted, fo that Sin did not lie at his Door, but was removed from it, and out of the Sight of God. But if there be any Doubt concerning the Interpretation of this Word from what is remarked upon this History, it fignifies, I think, with out all reasonable Doubt, what we term original most Part as wild and extravagant as any Thing contained in his other Differtations) feems plainly to authorize this Conjecture, and to give us the traditionary History of the Yews, which was current among them at that Time, concerning this Matter. He says, Vol. I. pag. 191. Edit. Mangey, That " Cain challenged Abell to dispute with him, that he might get the better of " him by plaufible Sophifms, which carry an Appearance of Probability, εικοσι και πιθανοις σοφισμασιν." The Matter of such a Disputation must undoubtedly have been of the Use, Intent, and Necessity of the several Kinds of Sacrifices, as the fatal Quarrel arose from their different Opinions of this Institution. Hence, I think, it may be inferred, that Cain might urge the Absurdity and Repugnancy to Reason, in supposing that Remission of Sins could be obtained, or reasonably required by killing and offering a Beast to the Deity, and therefore might infift, that the Command concerning fuch Sacrifices was not obligatory. Whereas Abel, being no way difposed to question what he knew to be revealed and commanded by God, had not exercised his Faculties in fophistical Disquisitions, or trying the divine Laws by the Judgment and Rectitude of a depraved and erroneous Understanding. The Reader may read this whole Differtation of Philo, where he will find fomething more to this Purpose, and Philo calls Cain, pag. 266, the felf-conceited Cain, DOKHEIECOOY KAIN.

Sin in the Pfalmist's Form of Confession, which hath been so frequently and pertinently cited to prove this Doctrine, In Sin (CHaTA) did my Mother conceive me.

Such therefore as understood the Biblical Hebrew Language, and the Doctrines of the Church. as therein taught, needed not to have been at a Loss how to have construed this Place in its true Sense. But the later, or Hellenistical Jews, and fuch of the Greeks as were Profelytes, must receive great Light and Advantage from fuch an explanatory marginal Note. If it be urged, that the Context, even in the Translations, was sufficient to ascertain the Meaning here, without any marginal Note, fince Man, confidered under the Circumstance or Condition of his Birth, born of a Woman (Ver. 1.) is the Antecedent to which the Words under Confideration must refer, and by which they must be interpreted; it may be replied, that most Readers are too much in haste, when there is any fuch Distance as in this Place between Antecedent and Relative, to stay long enough to observe the Coherence and Connection. It must have been therefore of great Use to catch and fix the curfory Reader's Eye by fuch a fignificant and useful Mark in the Margin.

But the main Part of the Objection feems still to remain in Force; for allowing that the Words, THOUGH bis Life be but of ONE DAY, were placed in the Margin at first, how does it appear that they serve the Purpose here supposed, in specifying that particular Pollution, or punos, now styled original Sin? To this I answer,

cifying

It is well known, that the Jews had a Tradition, that Adam fell the same Day wherein he was placed in Paradife, not lying one Night in it; fo that the Application of this Opinion or Tradition to this Text in Job was telling the Reader, that this Passage in Job was to be understood of Adam's Transgression. This Opinion or Tradition feems to be supported by the Fewish Construction of Ps. XLIX. 12. taken notice of by Dr. Lightfoot. The Translation in the English Bible is, Man being in Honour abideth not: But the Words must be rendered, to favour the Fewish Construction, Adam being in Honour did not lie one Night, i. e. in Honour. Though this Part of the Verse, according to the Jewish Construction, fufficiently accounts for the Opinion and explanatory Note as here confidered, yet I ought to observe on this Occasion, that this whole Verse, taken together, is as full a Proof of the Doctrine of original Sin, as ought to be demanded by fuch as confess the divine Authority of the holy Scriptures. The former Part hath been considered as far as may be necessary at present; the latter is in our present Translation, He is like the Beasts that perish. But the Words, I humbly conceive, should be rendered, Being vanquished, or he was overcome, viz. Adam, referred to in the former Part of the Verse (which Word being fingular, must be understood of one particular Adams or Man in the former Part) THEY are cut off (excisi sunt is Pagninus's Version) like the Beasts; where Adam must mean Mankind. * I will subjoin

* יואדם ביקר בל ילין נמשל כבהמות נרמו

2 The Word " Adam aliquando fumitur pro primo " Homine, says M. de Calasio, aliquando pro Homine in universali." When it has the Sense of an Individual, either as the proper Name of Adam, the first Man, or of an Individuum vagum, Man in general, as each may be confidered fingly, the fingular Number is used in the Verb, Participle, &c. in Regimen with it; but when it is used for Mankind collectively and universally; the Verb &c. in Regimen feem to require a plural Termination, as Job XXXVI. 25. Every Man (Adam) may fee it, viderunt Pagninus, Hebrew 1171. And where there is a sudden Alteration of the Number in the same Verse, as it is here, we must suppose, that the two Senses above observed must be respectively given in Conformity to such a Change in the Original, to do justice to it. As the Verb and Participle in this Verfe are fingular, one parcular Man must be understood; but as the last Verb, rendered cut off, excisi sunt, has a plural Termination, the universal Sense, or Mankind collectively must be understood under the Word Adam.

This Verb, according to M. de Calasso, fignifies pernoctavit, hospitatus, commoratus suit. The Jews in this Place, as hath been observed, take notice of the first Sense only, as sufficient to countenance and authorize their Tradition, and Dr. Lightsot has adopted the same, Vol. II. p. 1323. But though the Word has that Sense, it is not the only one, nor is the Continuance which it is used to describe limited to one Night's Stay. It signifies, we see above, spending some Time in a Place, which is not to be called a settled Habitation, and is contradistinguished to one that is so. Adam, being placed in the honourable Station of Edan, with the Power of a Vice-Roy over the Creation, did not behave in such a Manner as to deserve the long Continuance of his Grant during join the original Words of the whole Verse, for the Reader's more easily comparing the Translation and Observations here offered to his Consideration. What I render vanquished or overcome is the Passive of the Verb, which signifies, in its primary Sense, to rule or conquer; in a secondary Sense it has been made to fignify to assimilate: A Noun from this Verb is, from this latter Construction, rendered Similitudes. The Proverbs of Solomon are called by this Name; but they are fo styled most properly, I think, from the primary Sense of the Verb, as the Parts thereof are so many ruling, masterly Sentences, commanding a particular Attention and Obedience to their Authority. The plain Construction therefore or Sense of this whole Verse, upon the Jews and Dr. Lightfoot's Interpretation of the Verb JaLIN, is this, Adam being in Honour, or an honourable Life. It was therefore to him no Place of Abode, or in the Phrase of the Scriptures, no abiding City. So that being foon ejected upon his Forfeit, the Time of his Continuance there was fo short, that he feemed to be no more than a strange Guest, who spends some Time at an Inn, or with an Acquaintance, and then proceeds to the Place of his Settlement. But Adam probably stayed much longer than one Night in Eden; as long, it may well be afferted, I think, as the ingenious Mr. Worthington supposes, to perform every thing that is related, or what must be supposed to be transacted from Moses's Account of this Matter. Yet still, supposing he might continue some Months in Eden before his Ejectment, that Place was no more than an Hospitium or Diverforium (as a Noun from this Verb fignifies) compared with that World into which he was fent, where he was to live and die.

honourable Station, did not posses it one Night; for he was conquered or vanquished, and, by being vanquished, all his Posterity, or Mankind are cut off like the Beasts, dying in the same Manner. These Texts in the Books of fob and the Psalms will clearly interpret Eccles. VII. 29. The Original indeed of the Text in Ecclesiastes is too plain to need any other Comment than such a Comparison. The Word for Man, whom God is said to have made upright, is ATH HaADaM, and That for upright is singular, but the Number is changed to plural in the latter Clause, as in the Psalm just cited.

As to the Chaldee Paraphrast, and the Jews of that Age, they seem to have converted or perverted every thing to set forth their own Glory, making every thing to terminate herein. Bolducius, a merry Capuchin of the last Century, copied after this Pattern, undertaking to shew us in Job the original Plan of the modern Church of Rome, with its monastic Ceremonies and Institutions, especially That of his own Order *. Schultens supposes, that we have the Book of Job as it was penned at first without any Translation, as at that Time the Hebrew and Arabick Language was the same, with a small dialectical Variation only: So that the Criticisms of such, who would prove this Book to be wrote after the Captivity from the Chaldaisms, which they pretend to discover in it, seem, upon this Authority, to be quite trisling; of which one † Instance is produced by this learned Writer.

<sup>* &</sup>quot; Ecclesiæ Pontisiciæ hodiernam Faciem, præsertim in sacris Sodalitatibus et Ceremoniis, ex Monumento hocce antiquissimo exculptum ire voluit, qui Cætûs sui Antiquitatem ultimam, jam ante Mosen, demonstrandam sumpserat in Opere cui Titulus, De Ecclesia ante Legem, &c." Ibidem.

If any thing be faid in this Preliminary Difcourse, or the following Work, upon the Subject of the Cherubim, that may possibly awaken the peculiar Attention of the Reader (which has been already supposed to happen) and open a more clear and fatisfactory View of those mysterious Emblems than is to be met with in common theological Tracts and Comments, he is principally indebted to the Works of the late Mr. Hutchinson for such Information. An inexhaustible Fountain of divine Wisdom always lay concealed within these sacred, emblematical Figures of the Cherubim, as exhibited in the Scriptures and Sanctum Sanctorum, shewing to Believers, and strongly reflecting the important Doctrine of a Trinity in Unity: But though this living Water was given for the public and general Use, for all who are desirous of having it;

yet

&quot; Chaldaismi illi, quos nonnulli captant ex Ter" minationibus plural. in " pro ", etiam Hebraica
" & Arabica sunt Ditionis, atque vetustissimae Monetae."

Ibidem. The same perhaps, upon Examination, will be found true with regard to the Hebrew, in the Permutation of the two Letters " and I, and a few Instances more, which are said to be only de More Gentis, scit. Chaldae.

yet the Woman of Samaria's Words to our Saviour may in this Respect be applyed singly to each Interpreter of this Mystery, Sir, thou bast Nothing to draw with, and the Well is deep. Besides, in Time, an Heap of Rabbinical Fictions and Jewish Rubbish had so covered the Well, that it was difficult to come at the precious, healing Spring. Mr. Hutchinson cleared away these Obstructions, and restored the Well to its first Use and Beauty: Though I have used his Bucket, vet I went for my Water to the Fountain-Head. As I have frequently looked into Mr. Hutchinson's Works, I may very probably have taken other Hints from them, which the Want of a proper Index to his Works makes it difficult to particularize. My Nature, I hope, will never be fo debased, as to be ashamed of gratefully acknowleging Obligations of any Kind, by what Hand foever they may be conferred; but the Supplies of this Kind call for our strongest Gratitude, and merit the highest Esteem: And I will dare to fay, that whoever shall peruse the Works of Mr. Hutchinson with Attention and Impartiality, will find Treasure chough therein to compensate his Pains, though there may be an Alloy of human Paffions mixed with the rich Ore with which they generally abound. And this furely may be fought for with Innocence, notwithstanding the unaccountable Outcries which come from many Quarters against this truly learned Man and his Works. Whoever will advance in Christian Knowlege must glean from every Field; must fill the Storehouse of his Understanding with Things both new and old; must regard Things more than Persons, and endeavour carefully to diftinguish between Things good and bad, fince they are frequently mixed and offered together. To do this is the Duty of an honest Mind, and to be at Liberty to do it is the Privilege of a Protestant Instructor, who will never do amis, if he keeps within the Bounds prescribed by Apostolical Authority. Having Gifts, &c. whether Prophecy, let us prophecy according to the * Proportion of Faith. But to reject any Christian Instruction because it may put some narrow Thinkers out of their systematical Course, must be called by no other Name, than that of stisling Evidence. And if such a Practice be so criminal in civil Cases, what must it be in the Christian Cause, and a Minister of Jesus Christ, stationed in the most pure, reformed Part of the Christian Church? God, I hope, will give me Grace to make use of all useful Helps to promote his Glory and the Salvation of Mankind: I shall freely use such Assistance without Exception, and fo far thank the kind Benefactor, be Light is at the same of the same

G 3 glean

* Rom. XII. 6. Καΐα την αναλογιαν, according to the Analogy of Faith. Αναλογια, Proprietas, Similitudo, Proportio. Erasm. ad Rom. notat, αναλογιαν esse Congruentiam Rei ad aliquid relatæ. Καΐ αναλογιαν, Proportione. Crisp. Lex. Πεωφητεια, Interpretatio divinæ Scripturæ. Idem. And here the ordinary Gift of interpreting Scripture must be understood, as the extraordinary will admit of no Rule or Direction.

his Name Hutchinson, Clarke, or Newton. Upon this Principle, I shall conclude this Preliminary Discourse with a Passage taken from the celebrated Mr. Locke *, as appositely expressing what I would have the Reader know farther, without subscribing to all which that learned Man hath wrote as a Philosopher or Commentator.

"The fame Reasons, that put me upon doing " what I have in these Papers done, will exempt " me from all Suspicion of imposing my Interor pretation upon others. The Reasons which " led me into the Meaning which prevailed on " my Mind are fet down with it: As far as they carry Light and Conviction to any other " Man's Understanding, so far, I hope, my " Labour may be of some Use to him; beyond " the Evidence it carries with it, I advise him of not to follow mine, nor any Man's Interpretation. We are all Men, liable to Errors, " and infected with them; but have this fure "Way to preserve ourselves, every one, from " Danger by them; if laying aside Sloth, Care-" lessness, Prejudice, Party, and a Reverence of Men, we betake ourselves in earnest to the "Study of the Way to Salvation in those holy Writings, wherein God has revealed it from " Heaven, and proposed it to the World, seeking our Religion where we are fure it is in Truth " to be found, comparing spiritual Things with " fpiritual."

G 4 ELIHU.

* Preface to St. Paul's Epistles,

Name of the Charks, for N cetar. Upon I shall conclude this Preliminary forarf with a Passage taken from the celebrat described the Reader know farthers, without for thing to, all which that leading to, all which that leading to, all which that leading to all which that " The fame Reasons, that put me upon doing " what I have in theife Papers done, will exempt e me from all Sufficient of inneeding my Interrecarion upon others. That Reaford which led me the Meaning which prevailed on es my Mind are fet down with it; As far as they carry Light and Conviction to any other Man's Understanding, so far, I hope, my Labour may be of fome Use to him; beyond the Hvidence it carries with it, I advise him not to follow mine, nor any Man's Interpret tion. We are all Men, liable to Egrors, and infected with them; but have this fure Way to preferve ourselves, every one, from "Danger, by them; if laying afide, Sloth - Care-" leftieft, Prejudice, Party, and a Reverence of Man, we betake ourselves in earnest to the Study of the Way to Salvation in those boly - Writings, wherein God has revealed it from Heaven, and proposed it to the World, feeking, or Religion where we are fore it is in Truth to be tound, comparing foi frual Things with <sup>१९</sup>.दिस महत्वी अ

3 4m. ELIEU

* Pr for to St. Paul's Episies,

E L I H U

OR AN

ENQUERY

INTO-THE

Principal Scope and Defign

OF THE

B O O K of 7 O B.

Firement's of Deagle . See . 45

CONTENTS.

- Ch. I. The general Design of the Holy Scriptures.
  - II. The Principal Scope and Design of the Book of Job.
  - III. Paraphrase and Annotations upon the
    - IV. Other Passages in the Book of Job, relative to the Subject of this Enquiry, cited and explained.
  - V. Objections answered.

E L I H U.

CHAP. I.

The General Design of the Holy Scriptures.

HE Salvation of Mankind by Chap. I.

Jefus Christ is that one grand Scheme of Providence, which is exhibited to public View in both Testaments, for the Instruction and Direction of the People of God. "The Old Testament, as our Article well expresses it, is not contrary to the New, for both in the Old and New Testament ever- lasting Life is offered to Mankind by Christ, who is the only Mediator between God and Man, being both God and Man." This is the Faith of the Church of England, and the Catholic Faith is this.

God indeed at fundry Times, and in divers Manners, spake in the Old Testament unto the Fathers by the Prophets, and in the New to all suture Times by his Son, and the Apostles; but the Subject was the same, and the Speaker the same,

Chap. I. fame, the Voice speaking from both being the Voice of God.

These two Volumes, like the Cherubim, who were placed near, and over the Ark of the Covenant in the Holiest Place, bear a constant and friendly Aspect towards each other, united in, and intent upon carrying on one and the fame gracious Defign of promoting the Glory of God, by Goodwill and Mercy towards Men. From hence are taken the Materials which compose the august Edifice of the Christian Church, the Nature, as well as the inimitable Workmanship of it, undeniably proving the Divinity of its Founder. And as this Fabric is raised for the Accommodation and Use of an innumerable Company of all Ages, and Nations, it consists of an infinite Variety of Parts, different Points of View, and proper Appointments, contrived and adapted to the Necessities and Convenience of those for whom it was defigned. Neither is it destitute of apt Embellishments, and suitable Decorations, to engage the attentive Admiration of all that behold it: But what crowns the Spectator's Pleasure, and adds the highest Relish to this charming Prospect, is the Proprietor's Invitation to all poor Passengers to enrich themselves, from Time to Time, out of that inexhaustible Treasure which is laid up in it, and without which they will never be able to reach the End of their fettled Destination.

Curiofity might prompt us to enquire into Chap. I. the Rife, Progress, various States, celebrated Heroes, and Acts of the Christian Family which we belong to. Philosophers and Legislators have spared no Pains to fix and celebrate the Fame of the Founders of their feveral Institutions, in order to reflect what Honour they can upon Them and their Disciples. For this Purpose, they are delighted to expatiate upon, and illustrate the Services they have done for the intellectual and moral World; they delight to tell, how honourably descended they are, what mighty Improvements from Time to Time have been made by these Men of Renown, with an advantageous Display of the Importance of each particular Tenet delivered by them. Even in private Families called ancient, no way instituted for public Service, what Cost and Trouble are Men frequently at to discover their Origin, with the Actions, Characters, and Exploits of their Ancestors? What Pleasure does every incidental Discovery afford, though such Discovery but too often administers Food for Vanity, Discontent, Ambition, and other inordinate. Passions, excited various Ways by vain-glorious Curiofity? And in these Kinds of Researches, what ridiculous, legendary, unsupported Conjectures are produced as full Evidence of their feveral Pretensions? One derives from Jupiter, another is instructed by Egeria; One came in with the Conqueror, and another is sprung from the Patriarcha!

Chap. I. triarchal Druids: All can produce fomething from their respective Lines, which may challenge the Veneration and Regard of common, undiffinguished Inferiors. But the Christian Family and Institution is of the highest Antiquity, and most distinguished Excellency: It can boast of a real God, instead of a fabulous Goddess, from whom the Christians received their Laws, which carry with them and in them undeniable Evidence of a Divine Extract. They are fitted for all Ages, and all Conditions, and actually lead their Followers into a State of perfect Security and Happinefs. In this Book are recorded the noblest Exploits of real Heroes, transmitted down to Posterity for their Imitation, which we cannot but look upon with Wonder and Delight. At the fame Time, we have the particular Satisfaction of reflecting, that this our History is as true as it is full of Wonders, without any Mixture of Falsehood or unfair Colouring to recommend it. It is grand, though fimple; big with Matters and Events of the greatest Importance, the Weight of which fills the Expressions with a fuitable Dignity, a Dignity not to be met with in the historical Accounts of prophane Writers. So that the Scripture, confidered only in this View, would demand our Attention before any Composition merely human.

But Duty commands us, if Curiofity will not lead us, to peruse this Book, wherein Life and Death are set before us for our necessary.

Choice.

Choice, immortal Life, eternal Death. Our Chap. I. great Legislator therefore thus commands, Search the Scriptures, for in them, ye think, ye have eternal Life, and they are they which testify of me. St. John, Chap. V. Ver. 39. And in Ver. 46. he tells the Jews, Had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me, for he wrote of me. And Moses, it seems, wrote so plainly and fully upon this Head, as to render all those Unbelievers, to whom the Oracles of God were committed, without Excuse, upon the Testimony of Moses himself. There is One that accuse the you, says the Judge himself, even Moses, in whom ye trust.

Can any Article of Faith be more strongly, more expressly, explicitly proved than That of our Church above-cited? Can any Doubt remain concerning the ancient Jewish Faith, and the Belief of this important Doctrine, as contained in the Writings of Moses? Commenting here would be, what it too often is, obscuring and puzzling what is too plain to admit of any Explanation. I am induced to suspect, that the Old Testament hath not been rejected or treated with a less Regard than it is intitled to, from a Failure of Evidence in the most important Articles of Religion: The clear, invincible Arguments it affords in Confirmation of them have perhaps rather given the greatest Offence, and provoked the Endeavours of the Enemy to deface and pull down such illustrious Attestations, Faith. It is the Fullness and Copiousness, I had almost said, Redundancy of these Evidences to be met with in this facred Volume, instead of a Defect in this Respect, which has united so many Adversaries in an Opposition to it. Since a celebrated Prelate of our Church has observed this to be the Case in the great Fundamental of the Christian Religion, I may fairly produce such an Authority to support my own Opinion or Assertion, and to obviate any Charge of Singularity or Injustice. The Words deserve particular Attention, as falling from such a Pen.

"Those, who deny that Christ was truely God, think that, in order to the raising him to those great Characters, in which he is proposed in the New Testament, it is necessary to assert, that he gave the first Assurances of eternal Happiness, and of a free and full Pardon of all Sins, in his Gospel; and that in the Old Testament, neither the one nor the other were certainly or distinctly understood." Bp. Burnet, Art. 7.

As this judicious Observation, made by so learned and sagacious a Prelate, was undoubtedly built as well upon the historical Accounts of the the ancient Unitarians and Arians, as of Socious, and his Followers, who had the same wicked Point in View, so has it been verified by modern Practice; Men of the same Principles, in these our Days, continually charging this Part of the Holy Holy Writings with fuch Abfurdities and Imperfections of various Kinds, as, if true, must not only deprive it of its divine Authority, but take from it that Credit which is due and paid to a rational, confishent, human Composition.

The Adversaries of this Pillar of our Faith, viz. the Authority of the Prophets, do not, I hope for their Sakes, consider how the other Pillar, That of the Apostles, will be affected by the Removal of this; or how Jesus Christ, or Christianity, the Key-stone, which rests upon, and is equally supported by each of these Pillars, can possibly stand so securely when one of them is taken away.

Titus's Declaration, set down by Sulpitius Severus; concerning the Jews and Christians, &c. may be applyed to the Insidel Scheme of destroying the Authority of the Old Testament. Christianos (Codices) ex Judæis extitisse, Radice sublata Stirpem facilè perituram. Besides, one Sect of Unbelievers, the Socinians, subvert hereby the very Characteristic with which they describe Jesus Christ, viz. That of an Instructor sent from God, as he cannot be esteemed to be so commissioned, or to be a faithful Teacher and Adviser in heavenly Matters, if he commands us to search in order to follow the Directions and Authority of a Book which is of no Weight, of such as may not be securely depended upon.

So judicially infatuated are conceited Men when they would destroy the Works of God!

Chap. I. It might afford some Diversion to pursue these Men, in order to expose their Absurdities, if it would not take one out of a Way, which, I think, may lead to a better End, and afford more agreeable and useful Entertainment to a Christian Mind. Observing the Ways of a common Madman will make a thinking, good-natured Man melancholy, in reflecting upon the piteable Ruin of an human Understanding; but a good Christian is under a Kind of Torture upon the Sight of an Apostate or religious Madman, who is employed in digging away the Foundation upon which alone Man can stand securely, and may, in the very next Stroke he levels at this Support, sink himself into everlasting Destruction.

But as in common War-fare we may form a Judgment of the Usefulness and Importance of any strong Fort, from the incessant Attempts of the common Enemy to wrest it out of our Hands; it is just so in the spiritual. The Pains which have been taken, and the Devices which have been suggested to discredit and invalidate the Authority of the Old Testament, may convince true Believers how necessary it is to preserve this Barrier against Arians, Socinians, and all Denominations of Insidels, in its full Strength, and upon its proper Basis.

Our Master therefore commands all his Disciples to search these Holy Books, assuring them, by way of Encouragement, that they will find therein eternal Life, and the Things concerning himself.

bimself. And where else, unless in the other Chap. I. Part of the lively Oracles of God, shall we find fuch a Treasure? Human Knowlege puffeth up and fwells, but never fills the Soul: Like all other Enjoyments of this World, it gives no lasting Satisfaction. Quod cupide petiit mature. plena reliquit, may be applyed to our Thirst after this Kind of Wifdom. That Kind of Satiety, which fo foon determines and imbitters the shortlived Pleasure which attends it, plainly evinces the Justness of the Preacher's Observation, He that increaseth Knowlege increaseth Sorrow. Instead of finding eternal Life, the laborious Enquirer meets with Nothing but empty Speculation, unsupported Conjectures, or destructive Schemes of bringing eternal Death upon the whole human Race. Instead of finding the Things concerning the Saviour of the World, he must take up with any obscure, imperfect Accounts, delivered by fome little Retailer of dry Fragments, which he has collected from Patriarchal Tradition, or mixed with fuch Truths as have dropped from the plentiful Stores of the Holy Scriptures, giving himself hereupon the Title of a Philosopher. In prophane Writings he will feldom find at the best any thing more than Amusement, and a vain Titillation of the intellectual Powers, which foon dies away, lofing all its Life and Relish upon its first Gratification. A frequent Perusal of these Performances serves only to make us weary in our Pursuit, and the H 2 deeper Chap. I. deeper we fearch into them, the more Rottenness and Weakness we discover: The Head becomes giddy, and the Heart corrupt. But the Book of God challenges a near, though awful Inspection. The Treasures are hidden from the Proud and Careless, though ready to be opened to such . as duly fearch after them, and with a modest Industry devoutly endeavour to find them. The Well is deep, but the Water it contains is fo pure and falutary, as to give lafting Satisfaction to the greatest Thirst, springing up withal in him that drinks it to everlafting Life. The Author and Means of our Salvation are in this Volume described and faithfully recorded. The particular Offices, Acts, and Events, relating to the Mediatorial Scheme, are herein planned and predicted; that the Type and Prediction, being compared with the Antitype and eventual Completion, may, like two Indentures, or Key and Cypher, reciprocally and demonstratively prove the Authenticity and Use of each other; so thatwere the Old Testament to be lost, or laid aside, the strongest Proofs of the divine Inspiration of the other must be weakened, if not destroyed.

For my own Part, fince our Lord himself has referred us to these Holy Writings for such inestimable Treasure and Discoveries, I am always endeavouring to trace the Steps, and find out the Lineaments of our dear Redeemer. They appear, and gradually expand themselves in these sacred Books, till the Perfecting and Fulfilling of them was accomplished in God's being made Chap. I. Man, and dwelling amongst us. The Redemption and Salvation of Man being the chief and ultimate End of all the divine Difpensations, and of the whole System of Nature and Religion, the Revelation and Description of the Means, fuited and applyed for the divine Purpose herein. are the Súbject-matter of the Holy Scriptures ; and as Man is first to be restored to what he had forfeited, and then to know how he may behave himfelf in fuch a Manner as to fecure and improve what he recovers, we must closely attend to every Information of this Kind as we pass on, and then we shall certainly find every thing that Man wants or can defire: Pleafure, and Profit, durable Riches, and eternal Life will crown our Labours, and be the happy Effect of our Enquiries. There is, I think, an Analogy between the facred Writings and the Works of God; in the general Creation and Distribution of the Bleffings of Nature, as to their feveral Appointments and affigned Uses. God is pleafed to confer an higher Honour upon some particular Parts of his Donation than others, by referving These are them for his own occasional Services. therefore emphatically called bis own, being fet apart for bis, that is, a religious Use, and so diffinguished, that it is an Act of Prophanation to alter their original Designation. Several Pasfages in the Scriptures are to be viewed in this Light; fuch particularly as are explanatory of the H 3 y I real.

Chap. I. the divine Attributes and Offices, and the Covenant made between the three Persons for the Redemption of Man; fuch as point out that Rule of Faith and Trust, which must be the Foundation and Crown of all our Virtues, and all our Hopes. These Passages must be looked upon as a Kind of facred and inclosed Part, feparated from others by that important Meaning and relative Application which they demand, and which must be specially understood of those Points which they were intended to explain, and describe. This Distinction will be serviceable to us, and is, I think, necessary to go with us as we proceed in our Search of the Holy Book. There are many Things in it given to Mankind for common Uses, for what may be called the daily Bread, wherewith the Soul of Man is to be Hereby I mean those wholesom supported. Lessons of Piety and Morality, which make so shining a Figure in this divine Work, so necessary a Part of the Duty of Man. These indeed seem to be the greater and more affecting Part of these Writings, standing out to common Use and Ob-Like the Exteriors of the human Frame, they are most striking and admired, while the more noble and vital Parts lie more covered and concealed. But should the less solid and substantial Parts of the Body say to the Constituents, or essential Supporters, from whom they receive all their Life and Beauty, we have no need of you, they may justly be charged with Abfurdity

Abfurdity and Ingratitude; as they might foon Chap. L. be fatally convinced, by the withdrawing that Spirit which animates and supports them, that they are in themselves no more than Dust. Care therefore must be taken to preserve the Honour of those Parts which are of the highest Use and Importance, and not to blend what is appropriated with what is intended for general Use, or apply to common Persons and Things what is to be interpreted only of the deep and sublime Mysteries of Religion. These claim what may be called a natural Precedence or Priority of Regard from us in our Study of the Scriptures, as these and these only point out and declare the Means of our Redemption, and Restoration to such a State as may capacitate us for the Reception of any Bleffing at present, or may intitle us to future Favour or Reward. The Rebel must be pardoned, That Pardon pleaded, and his Attainder reversed, before he can claim his forfeited Estate, or be put upon the Footing of a good Subject. Hence the Knowlege or Acknowlegement of these Points or Doctrines are properly ftyled the Fundamentals of Religion, as the Hopes of pleafing God, or receiving any Bounty from Him can be built upon no other Scheme: Other Foundation than this layeth no Man, that will bear any Weight, or any Hypothesis that may consist with true Reason and Religion. When we have learned and observed these first Laws, and are re-instated in our ancient Inheritance, then the H A feveralChap. I. feveral Precepts of Piety and Virtue are given us to profit withal, to fecure and improve what we have obtained by our new Grant, and the free Bounty of Heaven; then by a right Use of this heavenly Food, and the Blessing of Heaven upon it, we may increase daily in true Wisdom, and in Favour with God and Man.

If the above Illustration should give Offence, instead of Satisfaction, to some Persons, who have been accustomed to give the first Rank to the Duties of the fecond Table, I will endeavour to explain my Meaning in a Way less disagreeable, which may recommend it to fuch Readers, clear of Objections. It will, I hope, be granted, as it may be foon proved beyond all reafonable Doubt, that throughout the Course of the facred Books, Matters of Faith and Morality are promiscuously blended together, and sometimes run into each other, or are fo closely united in their Contexture here (as they ever ought to be in our Lives) that a hafty or less attentive Eye may pass them over without perceiving the diffinguishing Marks of the Transition, or the incommunicable Properties of each. In the Hagiographa this often happens, as an intelligent Reader may easily observe. It is not within the Compass of my present Design to enlarge upon this Point; but I thought it proper to observe so much in general, that we may take care, as we pass on, to render unto Faith the Things which belong unto Faith, and to Christian Morality what properly belongs belongs to the Establishment and Enforcement Chap. I. of Christian Morality. They have the same Father, and exact our Assent and Obedience upon the same Authority. There must be an inseparable Union, and an inviolable Friendship between them. Thus united, like Saul and Jonathan, they will be lovely and pleasant, with Regard to our religious Enquiries, as well as in our Lives, and even after Death, in their happy Estects, they shall not be divided. What God hath joined together, let not Man put as funder. A few Instances however may be produced to explain my Meaning, which shall be taken from the Hagiographa and the Prophets.

Though the Book of Proverbs is for the greatest Part made up of Instances of this Kind, especially in * the several Descriptions of Wisdom,

which

* Bishop Patrick observes upon Verse 18. of Chap. III. in his general Argument prefixed to that Chapter, That if we understand this Verse, or the Phrase of the Tree of Life, of Christ, the Wisdam of God, as Origen, St. Ambrose, St. Austin, and others do, or of his Doctrine (which is the same) it is literally true that He gives Immortality, as the Tree of Life in Parradise would have done."

Wisdom declares, Proverbs VIII. 20. I lead in the Way of Righteousness. Here, and at the 14th ver. as well as many others in this and other Chapters, a Person must be supposed, or a very uncouth Way of speaking must be admitted, not to be supposed in the Holy Scriptures. But suppose that the second Person of the divine Essence is characterized under the Name of Wisdom, every thing is consistent. He might say, Sound Wisdom is mine (which would be an odd Speech for Wisdom, as

Chap. I. which often require a personal Interpretation, yet it may be fufficient to produce one Instance from this Book to explain my Meaning with regard to the Hagiographa. It is in the XIIIth Chap. Verses 12, 13, 14. Hope deferred maketh the Heart fick, but when the Defire cometh, it is a Tree of Life. Whoso despiseth the Word shall be destroyed, but he that feareth the Commandment shall be rewarded, or be in Peace, according to the marginal Translation. The Law of the Wife is a Fountain of Life, to depart from the Snare of Death. The former Part of the 12 Ver. Hope deferred maketh the Heart sick, hath an obvious moral Sense, but, by being connected with the latter Claufe, it must have likewise a spiritual one, as therein the fpiritual

> a moral Virtue, to fay of itself.) It is in character for Him to fay, I am Understanding, and I have Strength. By me Kings reign, &c. Commentators would find it difficult to prove and verify universally this last Assertion, and the following Phrases, upon a Supposition that Wisdom, confidered as an intellectual Perfection or moral Virtue, is here to be understood. But the Sense is easy and univerfally true, if the Word be interpreted personally, viz. That all human Authority is derived from the great Ruler of the World, or that divine Person who created all Things, by whom all Things fubfift, and who was so well known by the Name of Wisdom by the ancient Jews, that the Ferusalem Targum hath rendered the first Verse_of Genesis thus, The Lord created by his Wisdom, as the learned Dr. Allix observes in his excellent Book, intitled, The Judgment of the Jewish Church against the Unitarians. "The Christians, says the Doctor, call-" ed him the Word of Wisdom, alluding to divers Pla-" ces, especially to Psalm XXXIII. 6. and Proverbs " VIII. 14. The Jews commonly called him the fecond « Glory."

spiritual Sense seems to be the primary Sense from Chap. I. the Phrases of the Desire cometh-Tree of Life. Thus the moral Sense is dignified by supporting and conveying the spiritual, and the spiritual gives Strength and Beauty to the moral. Hope deferred maketh the Heart sick, is true in the general obvious Meaning of the Words, as understood of the common Affairs and Transactions of civil Life; but another and nobler Sense appears, when the latter Clause is explained, and the proper Interpretation of it is given, the Words literally translated running thus, The Tree of Life (Vitarum, perhaps Viventium, according to the interlineary Version in Montanus's Bible) the Defire (or what is longed for) is coming. This explains what fort of Hope or Expectation is principally meant in the former Part of the Verse, what fort of Desire is chiefly to be understood, viz. The Defire of all Nations, what Prophets and Kings fo impatiently defired to fee, that they were in a Manner fick for Want of fatisfying this longing Appetite. This Clause, with the Verb Substantive understood, will, when it is added, fpeak the same Sense, which Part soever be placed first: The Tree of Lives is that Desire or Thing longed for, which is coming, or, The Defire or Thing longed for, which is coming, is the Tree of Lives. These Phrases are of so limited a Nature, that they cannot with any Propriety be applyed to any other Meaning than what they stand for in the Scriptures, especially the latter, and therefore they Chap. I. they are here considered under the Rule of comparing spiritual. Things with spiritual. The Words rendered Tree of Life, or Lives, or living Ones, are the same used by Moses for that Test of Obedience and Pledge of Immortality, which was placed in the Garden of Eden; the same that was promised by St. John, as a Reward and Benefit to be claimed by such as do the Commandments of Him who is the real Tree of Life, and Restorer of immortal Happiness. The same wonderful Person, and his healing Benefits, we see, are the Subject of the inspired Writers, from Genesis, through the Prophets, to the Revelations: He is Alpha and Omega.

To proceed, He that despiseth the Word shall be destroyed. The Paraphrase of these Words, as given by + Bishop Patrick, is not, I humbly think.

* As the Expressions used here are the same with those in Genesis, the Antitype must be understood here by the typical Emblem referred to; though, after the Fall, the second Person was more particularly described under this Character, as the Fruit of Immortality was restored and recovered by his assuming human Nature, and suffering in it.

The LXX contradict his Lordship, who make this Destruction, I think, come from the Thing or Person despised, ver are, not early; though in other Respects they make a strange Puzzle here, which looks as though they thought here was a Sense not savourable to their Way of Thinking. The Word they render Healpales, the Vulg. Rem. Whether the Infallibility of the LXX, of the Church of Rome, may direct in this Case, or warrant such Kind of Translation, or whether both together can recommend such Stuff, I leave to the Determination of common Sense, and the usual Meaning of Words.

think, a Sense warranted by the Original: His Chap. I. Lordship gives this Interpretation, "He that despises the good Admonitions or Counsels " that are given him is his own Enemy, and "destroys himself." This is true in general, but not afferted or intimated here. The Word rendered despiseth signifies, says Leigh, to hold in contempt, or mock at, and is the Word used by Isaiah, where he says of our Saviour, He is despised, LIII. 3. The LXX render it by εξουθευεω, and so St. Luke XXIII. 11. And Herod with his Men of War fet him at nought, and mocked bim, &c. The Passage of Isaiab, just cited, was, I think, plainly here alluded to, as a Prediction hereby completed; in as much as the Evangelist gives us two Words, set at nought, and mocked, to perfect the Idea of the Hebrew used in Isaiah. The other Expression for the Word is likewise applyed to Him, who is emphatically called the Word, and Wisdom, the LOGOS spoken of so magnificently in the Beginning of St. John's Gospel. " The Scorner " of him, or of his Doctrine (which is all one, " fays Bishop Patrick) shall be destroyed," viz. fuch as difregard, and pay no Attention to the Promifes and Revelations of God, shall be utaterly, everlaftingly destroyed. DeBeR being put without an Affix (as here) its Construction seems to be limited to our Saviour, or the revealed Will of God. Leigh fays, that "DeBeR haud te-" merè usurpatur de aliis quam maximi Momenti . Sanctionibus,

Chap. I. " Sanctionibus, quale Pondus non est in AMeR." This Construction is consistent with, and carries on the spiritual Sense of the former Verse, when neither common Sense, nor Grammar will, I think, authorize any other. Men would do well to confider, how far it may be dangerous to fet at nought, or despise an Interpretation, which ferves to guard the Reverence due to the eternal Word. The LXX feem to be confounded, or to confound, in order to conceal the true Meaning. The Reader would do well to confult Dr. Allix's Book before cited, concerning the Word, or LOGOS. In the next Clause, the Word rendered Commandment is fingular, referring to some particular Commandment, denoting, according to Stockius, speciatim, the promissory Part of a Covenant: The Word rendered feareth, fignifies a religious Deference and Regard. The Sense therefore of this Passage, which will best comport with the Design of the Scriptures, with the Context, and natural Force of the Words themselves, will be. He that awfully attends to, and devoutly expects the Fulfilling of that Part of the Law which points out the promifed Redeemer, shall enjoy that Satisfaction or Peace. which he fo paffionately defires. For * the Law. of

* If the Pentateuch be here referred to under the Words, Law of the Wise, and called Fountain of Lives, (Vitarum in Mont. Bib.) we may conclude that a future, immortal State, or the Doctrine of Lives, might be drawn from thence.

of the Wife is a Fountain of Life. It is ob- Chap. I. fervable, that what feems to relate to many under the Words the Wife, is fingular in the Original; and as God is principally intitled to that Denomination, God the Redeemer, or his Word must be understood, as He only or his Word can properly and truly be termed a, or the Fountain of Life. Here Comfort is administred to the Sick, who were made fo by an impatient Expectation of the Redeemer, in affuring them of a certain Accomplishment of the Promises contained in the Scriptures, and kept alive in the various, public Rites and Services of the Church, which ferved to shew that the Fountain of Life, and Source of all Happiness should arise and fpring from thence. The English Annotator upon Dupin's Canon of the Old and New Testament tells the Reader, that the Hagiographa were called by the Jews Moshelim, because they were composed of figurative and fententious Parts: The Word must come from MoSHeL, to rule, and fo may mean that these figurative Parts may be esteemed the principal, as containing under fome Kind of Disguise the great, leading, and ruling Points of Faith and Hope. Let us therefore peruse these Writings in this View, and not as we would a Chapter of Seneca or Epietetus, or a Set of bare moral Fragments.

If the above Interpretation be disallowed, it may surely be asked, what other Law or Wisdom, at that Time extant, or recorded for public Use

and

Chap. I. and Direction, could or would be referred to, and intitled by the Holy Ghost, or an inspired Solomon, The Fountain of Life, or Lives? I beg leave to add another Passage from this Book of Proverbs, Chap. XXX. 18, 19. for the farther Illustration of this Point, and for the Sake of communicating to the Public the true Interpretation of it, suggested to me by my worthy Friend the Reverend Mr. Watson, Fellow of University College, Author of a learned and ingenious Sermon, preached before the University of Oxford in the Year 1749. The Words in our English Translation are these;

for me, yea, four which I know not, The Way of an Eagle in the Air, the Way of a Serpent upon a Rock, the Way of a Ship in the Midst of the Sea, and the Way of A MAN with A MAID.

Whenever we look more nearly into the Connection and Pertinence of fuch feemingly incoherent Observations, we should never lose Sight of the general and gracious Intention of the divine Being, in placing sensible Objects before the intellectual Powers for their Exercise and Assistance. The Glass of Nature reslects the true Images of Things supernatural, so far as we are concerned to know them, and so far as we are capable at present of understanding them. The visible Heavens and material System, when well and rightly surveyed, will exhibit a faithful, though faint Description and Pattern of that invisible.

which our Redeemer hath prepared in the immaterial and highest Heavens for such as love and obey him. Suggestions of this Kind are apt, by exciting a proper Curiosity, to put us upon useful Enquiries, which serve to enlarge our Ideas, and six our Attention upon the Consideration of natural Causes and Effects, with their respective Relations, Combinations, Agreements, and Disagreements. In such a Course of Study and comparing Things, Analogy will give us the right Key to open an extensive and delightful View of the fair and boundless Field of spiritual Knowlege.

But the most obvious and uppermost Design of the Wife Man in these Words may feem to be, to propose to such as pretended to understand and account for every thing, that fell within the Compais of human Observation, the Solution of a few Difficulties, by explaining the Philosophy of fome common Appearances, and fome ordinary Causes and Effects, which might be supposed to be most easily accounted for, by their being frequently within Notice, and, as fuch, thoroughly known. And truly These are such Instances, as from the Simplicity of their Nature, from their Familiarity, and lying open to a free and full Examination, might be supposed, if any might, to be fathomable by the lowest Capacity. But if the Philosopher, with all his Pride of Reason and Learning, may find an Answer,

l

Chap. I. even to fuch Enquires, not to be within his Reach, and to be too wonderful for human Understanding to give an adequate Account of, he must take Shame to himfelf, and confess the Holy Scriptures are the Only Books where fatisfactory Wisdom is to be found. And this I take to be one great End of fetting down the problematical Sentences in the above cited Verses and other Places. But there is frequently a farther, and more important Defign in many of them; a noble Instance of which is, I think, contained in the Passage now before us, where one of the greatest Mysteries in Christianity is established, and fo explained as to fatisfy any devout and humble Enquirer, and to give a fufficient Answer to a Question commonly asked, How can this Thing be? The Mystery, I mean, is that of the Incarnation, or our Lord's being born of a pure Virgin, who was as much a Virgin at the Nativity of our Saviour as before. The strange Construction of the Hebrew Words, when rendered the Way of a Man with a Maid, obscures the Sense, and throws a Veil over the principal Defign of the inspired Writer; whereas they ought to be rendered, the Way of the Mighty One (GeBeR, explained in Ch. IV. under N. 1.) in the or a Virgin. The Word, translated here a Maid, is the same which is used in that famous Prophecy of Isaiah, Behold a Virgin shall conceive, &c. Our Translators, had they been uniform in their Constructions, must have rendered dered this Verse in Isaiah, Behold a Maid shall Chap. I. conceive, and bear a Son, &c. But they would thereby perhaps have left the Prophecy more undeterminate, which they might probably perceive, since the Word Maid in our Language frequently signifies a Servant or single Woman, and not always or necessarily, in the strictest Sense, a Virgin.

It must appear, I think, from what hath been here observed, that the Holy Ghost in this Scripture hath given us the most pertinent and fatisfactory Images, that could have been exhibited, to reconcile such an incomprehensible Wonder to the Notions of Mankind, and remove the Objection of its being impossible. A full and adequate Idea of this Miracle could not be given to an human, limited Comprehension: But here is fuch a one as is fufficient and intelligible; and if Christianity be condemned in this Instance for being too mysterious, Nature must be liable to the same Censure and Objection. I shall leave my Reader to draw the proper Parallel, and apply the Circumstances of the respective Images herein set down, that he may have the Pleasure of observing for himself, how beautiful, how divine the Analogy between the wonderful Things, recited in this Verse, appears to be, when the feveral Refemblances and Similitudes of each shall in the same Respects be minutely and exactly compared. That of the Eagle and Ship are alluded to by the Author of the Wisdom of Solomon. I 2

Chap. I. Solomon, Chap. V. 10, 11. with fome Particulars described, though the Application be different. Another fine Illustration of the same Kind is added Ver. 12. which feems to be as applicable to the Point above confidered, as to that for which it is produced: This Similitude is an Arrow passing through the Air; Like as when an Arrow is shot at a Mark, it parteth the Air, which immediately cometh together again, so that a Man cannot know where it went through. One cannot help observing, and inferring from the Similitude of a Ship's passing through the Midst of the Sea, that the Art of Navigation was well known, and perfectly understood in the Days of Solomon, who had no Occasion, as some suppose, to keep near the Shore, and make only coasting Voyages: Sailing through the Seas or Ocean ותלב, in the Heart of the Sea, as in the Margin of the English Bible) we fee, was so generally known, as to be a Foundation whereon to build an Illustration of Things not well known.

Thus much for the Hagiographa. The Prophets (as commonly so called, and distinguished, in the Canon of the Old Testament) are so sull of Proofs in this Way, that they cannot, I think, be read with any fort of Satisfaction by an intelligent Reader, without the Key here used and recommended. But as the moral Sense in the Hagiographa seems (in common Translations at least) to be the Ground-work (if I may so speak) of the spiritual, the Reverse seems to be the Case

Case of the prophetical Writings. In these the Chap. I. spiritual is generally the most obvious Meaning, and projects so far as to demand the first Notice and Observation. The Mystery of Redemption is still predominant, even where there is a literal Meaning, and a common historical Interpretation to be allowed. Besides this, there is sometimes a fymbolical Sense, which is so limited and circumstanced, that no other Sense can possibly share with it, or be admitted. Of the mystical Sort, relating to the Mystery of Christianity, One may fuffice to be produced, which has been confidered amongst others by Dr. Clagget, in his excellent Treatife concerning the double Sense of Prophecy, printed in the Year 1710. Hosea XI. 1. When Israel was a Child, then I loved him, and called my Son out of Egypt. Whosoever will read the following Verses, will want no other Comment to convince him, that the former Part of the Verse must necessarily be understood of the Children of Israel's leaving the idolatrous Egyptians by the Command of God, under the Conduct of Moses, when they, as a Church, or Congregation of faithful People, were as yet in their * Infancy (not of full Age till their Settlement in Palestine) having such strong Evidences

* The Church, as to the Mofaic Dispensation, was then aptly called a Child, just refcued from perishing by the Hands of idolatrous Oppressors, as the great Leader of the Israelites himself was in his Infancy, and as miraculously preserved and delivered.

Chap. I. of the divine Favour in their Deliverance, that the Prophet's Expression is emphatically true, when he tells us that God loved Israel (i. e.) the Children of Israel. As to the latter Part of the Clause, St. Matthew has put the Meaning out of all Dispute. Ch. II. 15. Such as are defirous of feeing this, and other scriptural Passages of the fame Kind, treated more at large with true Learning and Judgment, may peruse the Book just cited. It shall suffice here to add one fymbolical Inftance from Ezekiel, with this general Observation upon the prophetic Books; that in Prophecies where there is a double Sense. the fpiritual is generally That which demands the first Notice, by some Peculiarity in the Expressions, or other commanding Mark of Distinction, which ascertains the Application. Sometimes it happens that the spiritual is the most obvious Sense: In this Place it is so, whether we look backward or forward, as Dr. Clagget obferves. The grand Vision of Chebar is the symbolical Instance I would refer the Reader to, Ezek. Ch. I. which is an august Image and Representation of the Covenant between the three Persons in the Deity, with the Man joined, to redeem fallen Man. This mysterious Emblem gave fuch an Explanation of this divine Scheme, as in some Measure satisfied the Senses, and answered the common Questions of, How can these Things be? The Description of the Motion of the Flame of Fire, as described by Ezekiel, fele reciprocans, corresponds with the Account in Chap. I. Genefis of the flaming Sword, which turned every Way; the latter being in such Kind of Motions rolling within itself in perpetual Circulation, as well as the first Appearance at the Gate of Eden. But I would observe, as I pass, that the Text of Ezekiel calls these Emblems the Likeness of four Animals (our Translation fays living Creatures) from whence may be demonstrated the Silliness and Falsehood of the Yewish Stories concerning Angels, &c. Had they been really fuch, Ezekiel would not have proftrated himfelf before them in an Act of religious Adoration: Neither were they Animals, but the Likeness of Animals. But to let us know what was intended by the Reprefentation, we read in the last Verse of the Chapter, after a particular Description, This was the Appearance of the Likeness of the Glory of the Lord; which represented the Regality of the Messiah, or Humanity with Glory or Divinity, raifed a little higher than the Cherubim, to shew who prefided in the Mediatorial Scheme. But as there are other Passages in this Prophet, which serve to expound and illustrate this Vision by alluding to it, the Reader will, I hope, pardon my citing them, and accept my Remarks upon them, as the Subject is fo curious and important. Ch. VII. 20, &c. We read thus.

As for the Beauty of his Ornament, he set it in Majesty; but they made the Images of their Abominations, and of their detestable Things therein:

I 4

Therefore

Chap, I. Therefore have I set it far from them. And I will give it into the Hands of the Strangers for a Prey, and to the Wicked of the Earth for a Spoil, &c. and they shall pollute my secret Place, for the Robbers shall enter into it and defile it.

> The Word rendered Beauty, 123 ZeBI, fignifies, according to Lexicographers, Stockius, &c. raised, embossed, projecting Work, cameratum, Currus cameratus, an arched or vaulted Chariot, " quòd, superne tectus, Speciem tumentis * Uteri " præ se fert." It gives likewise the Idea of

* The Root from whence the Idea is taken, is, I suppose, a Tortoile, which is our English Version of the Word in Leviticus. The particular Formation and Strength of that Animal have given Denomination to. feveral Things, which refemble it in some effential Properties. The Form of what we may call the Groundwork upon which the Cherubim were raised, did probably bear a Likeness to the Tortoise, or a Currus cameratus, The vaulted Arch of the Heavens was in some Measure described by the convex Side of it; and the Firmament, or combined Powers of Fire, Light, and Air, as expanded or collected in the feveral Orbs within it, fully answered the Strength of it, and Ability to support the Weight laid upon it. . These Powers, so combined, were denominated from this ideal Root the Host of Heaven, במור ZeBAUT; and therefore God claims this Title, Lord of Hosts, as Part of his incommunicable Sovereignty, which the ancient Idolaters had attributed to an independent, inherent Power in these created Agents. The Rabbies, in order perhaps effectually to turn our Eyes from too near and curious a View of the facred Emblems, make the Word 'ZY ZeBI to fignify Bufo; but Guffetius well observes, that there was no Occasion to forbid the Eating of this Creature, as in Levit. XI. 29. He adds, upon Scripture Authority, that it fignifies " Decus cum Protectione."

Glory, Pleasure, and Beauty joined, of a Crown, Chap. I. and rich Inheritance, and fignifies likewise an Animal of a mixed Nature. The Word for Ornament * fignifies, Lexicons fay, the highest and most beautiful Ornament, a Vesture of Gold, the Face or Countenance of God, Os ejus. B. 32-9-102. The Word rendered Majesty is expressive of the Original, which would point out the highest Elevation, Magnificence, and Excellency. Elibu therefore in Job calls Thunder the Voice of the Majesty of God. All these Expressions defcribe the Exhibition or Representation of the divine Persons in the Figures of the Cherubim: What else can they refer to? Then follows a Description of the Abuse; They made the Images of their Abominations, and of their detestable Things therein. It may, and I humbly think that the prefix I here, as in many other Places, should have the Construction of de, ex, secundum. or juxta; and then the Sense is clear, viz. That the Fews from the Symbol of the Divinity, as from a Pattern of the three Persons with the Man joined to the Second, took Occasion to found the Worship of Images, by making some fuch for their private Use, by worshipping of which they hoped to obtain those Bleffings, which * Ty HeDI, whose Exposition, according to Trommius, &c. is int. al. Testis, and so Testimony, &c. See what is said elsewhere upon this Word, which, instead of Ornaments, should be rendered his Witnesses, as the Cherubim were so in a most extraordinary and significant Sense.

Chap. I. which could come only from the original Figures. Rachel's Teraphim might perhaps be fuch Imitations, as the * Cherubim were exhibited very early. However that might be, in after Times, when Satan had improved this idolatrous Abuse, and aped the true Worship in this as well as other Instances, + fuch Images filled the Houses of the Heathen under the Title of Dii Penates. as the Word feems to be derived from Peni, Heads or Faces, of which this Symbol was composed, Os ejus, as above. For this Reason, on account of this vile Abuse, God declares by this Prophet, Therefore have I set it far from them; entirely taken away this Glory of Ifrael, and Excellence of Beauty, which was the high and peculiar Ornament of the Sanctum Sanctorum,

† These, I think, were the Images (Teraphim in the Original) consulted by the King of Babylon, Ezek. XXI. 21.

* From the Scripture Account of Cain's Banishment it is highly probable, that there was then a Place fet apart for religious Worship, and the Cherubim placed therein. He is faid to be driven from the Face of the Earth. This cannot be understood of the Earth in This cannot be understood of the Earth in general, but of fome particular Part, which, for its distinguished Appropriation to some high Use, is called THE ADAMAH. He was likewise driven from the FACES of GOD: What could these be but the Cherubim? As by this Expulsion or Excommunication, he was deprived of the Bleffing of any Atonement for Sin, which could be made only by sprinkling the Blood of the Sacrifices before these Faces, we need not wonder at his despairing Exclamation: He was cut off from the Benefit of that Atonement which he had rejected and despised. Gen. IV. 14.

which was done during the Captivity. At this Chap. I. Time his Face, or Manner of his Presence exhibited therein, was quite turned from them, and the Robbers, such as made no scruple of breaking open any Fences, or guarded Places, entered into the secret Place, or Sanstum Sanstorum, and defiled it: So this Prophecy was completed by these Ornaments being removed. If the Reader will consult the Critics upon this Scripture, he will find that very learned Men favour the Interpretation here offered.

These following remarkable Expressions occur likewise in Ezek. Chap. XXVIII. Ver. 14, 16. Thou art the anointed Cherub that covereth, &c. I will destroy thee, O covering Cherub, from the Midst of the Stones of Fire. From these sarcastical Rebukes of the King of Tyre in these Places, we may conclude that in the Cherubim, or divine Similitudes, there was one Cherub known or distinguished by the Titles of the anointed Cherub, the covering Cherub; otherwise the Prophet's Allusion would have been without Foundation. There would be and his Satire without Force. no Contrast in the Characters, had not a Person been pointed out, who was truly and emphatically styled the anointed One, or a Figure referred to, which represented the covering Cherub, or great One: And who could this be but the Messiah, who was to cover or take away the Sins of the whole World? The King of Tyre had thought and talked in so high a Manner, as to affert his Chap. I own Divinity, and to arrogate to himself such divine Attributes, as incommunicably belonged to the Meshab, and was therefore properly reproved by these Expressions of the Prophet. Such therefore as have supposed these Figures to represent only common Angels, are hereby unanswerably confuted. For unto which of the Angels hath God faid at any Time, Thou art the anointed Cherub that covereth, or O covering Cherub? An Angel has no better a Claim to these incommunicable Titles, than the arrogant-King of Tyre. Two other Passages in this Book will, I think, put the Matter out of all Doubt. Ch. IX. Ver. 3. It is faid, And the Glory of the God of Israel was gone up from the Cherub, whereupon he was, to the Threshold of the House. XLIH. 3. We read, And the Visions were like the Vision that I saw by the River Chebar (See Ch. I.) and I fell upon my Face. Would the Prophet have done this to the material Representative of an Angel, or to an Angel himself? And the Glory of the Lord came into the House by the Way of the Gate, whose Prospect is towards the East, &c. Is the Application in the leaft doubtful? Or will Men dispute any longer the intended Use of these facred Emblems? Or can it be doubted whose. emblematical Representative this anointed Cherub was, whereupon this Glory rested, to which it came from the East, and from whence it proceeded to the Threshold, and so went out into all Lands?

Having faid fo much above concerning the Chap. I. Cherubin, the Time of their being instituted, their Continuance and Removal, I beg Leave to explain myself a little farther hereupon. The Deity hath been always pleafed to constitute some fensible Representation of Himself amongst Men. or the Sons of God, by which their Faith and Hopes might be kept fresh in their Minds. Symbols therefore of various Kinds have been appointed for this gracious Purpose, according to the different States and Occasions of Man. During the State of Innocence, there was taken out of the vegetable Creation (which was compleated the third Day) particularly out of the HeZ PeRI, or Trees bearing Fruit after their Kind, One Tree, representing the Elabim, which was fet forth as a Test of Homage and Obedience, and whose Fruit, being eaten, was to be an immediate Affurance of the divine Bleffing, and an entire Continuation of the Being of Man. This Hypothesis concerning the Tree of Life, may be farther strengthened by what appears to me to be the true Construction of the Passages, relating to this Matter, in the Holy Books. The Allufions in Ezek. Ch. XXXI. to this Tree fet forth the supreme Excellence and Glory of it, the magnificent Descriptions therein contained being plainly drawn from this august Original, Ver. 8. is this said faying, The Cedars in the Garden of God could of the land not bide Him: The Fir-trees were not like his fear the Boughs, and the Chefnut-trees were not like his

Branches:

Chap. I. Branches; not any Tree in the Garden of God was like unto Him in his Beauty. The Margin of the English Bible refers the Reader to Gen. II.

It is written, Gen. Ch. III. 8. And they heard the Voice of the Lord God, walking in the Garden in the Cool of the Day; and Adam and his Wife hid themselves from the Presence of the Lord God amongst the Trees of the Garden\*. Pagninus's Version is in Medio Arboris Horti. From whence I think, that the Word vy may be allowed to have here a singular Interpretation, and \* Gen. III. 2. Where the Woman fays to the Serpent, We may eat of the Fruit of the Trees of the Garden, it should perhaps be rendered of the Tree (fingular, as it is in this Place) of THE GARDEN; and then follows, But of the Fruit of THE Tree, or That Tree (marked with the emphatic  $\sqcap$  here, Arbor isla Sanguine viperino cautius vitanda) which is, &c. This Construction makes every Part confistent. It appears that in a Dialogue with the Serpent, the Whole of which is not here fet down, the Woman had given an Account of the Prohibition, and had probably faid more concerning these two Trees, as more had been faid to her concerning them, than of the whole Garden besides. From her particular History of these the Serpent's Question is naturally introduced, Can it be supposed that the Fruit of any Tree is withheld from you? The Answer is, Of these two particular Trees, which I have mentioned, we may, or are directed to eat of the Tree of THE GARDEN; but of THAT other Tree, which grows in or about, juxta, the Middle of the Garden, we may not, or are forbid to eat.

The demonstrative  $\sqcap$  is prefixed only to the Tree of Destruction; the other Tree was sufficiently distinguished by being called the Tree of THE GARDEN.

and must require it, if it may best consist with Chap. I. the general Sense and Acceptation of this Part of the Scripture History. Now it is here supposed, that this Tree of the Elahim might properly, and therefore probably, be styled the Tree of the Garden, as it was the principal Tree therein, representing the supreme Being and Creator of all Things. This Interpretation feems to receive a strong Confirmation from the unhappy Pair's flying to it for Protection, upon their hearing the Voice of God, and their Apprehenfion of immediate Punishment and Death. They fled for Shelter into the very Midst of that Tree, from whence they had fymbolically and reprefentatively received all their choicest Bleffings, and from whose Fruit they expected the Continuance and Increase of them. This Token of Contrition, and Sense of Guilt, with the Willingness hereby expressed of returning to their Duty and Allegiance to their lawful Sovereign, might induce infinite Mercy to pardon Rebels. Besides, the primary Sense of the Word, here translated Life, is according to M. de Calasio, Viventes, Vivi, living Ones, and is therefore to be preferred, where it is not repugnant to the plain Defign and Meaning of the Passage where it occurs. In this Place, I think, it must be admitted, as it will give us the truest Sense of the Phrase here used, and be a Means perhaps of ending many Disputes, and solving many Doubts concerning this Tree. The Puzzle raifed about Chap. I. Vita or Vita, Life or Lives, might perhaps be thrown out by Rabbies, to take our Eyes off from the true Construction of the living Ones. I will add here, by way of strengthening this Interpretation, a few other Places, where this Sense feems to be the true one.

Pf. LVI. last Ver. We read, Wilt not thou deliver my Feet from falling, that I may walk before God in the Light of the Living, This I take to be plainly meant of our blessed Saviour, as to what should happen to the human Nature when his Soul should be delivered from Death, as the former Part of the Verse speaks; Then He should enjoy the Light of the living Ones, who are the Light of the Happy in another State. As the Margin of the English Bible here refers to Joh XXXIII. 30, I refer my Reader to what I have said in my Paraphrase and Annotations upon that Place.

Ecclesiastes VI. 8. We read, What hath the Poor, that knoweth to walk before the Living, min? The Living, emphatically so called by the prefix Ha; and who are they but the Elahim? The living Ones, before whom Man ought to walk, or live as in their Presence: No other Construction, I think, can give any good Sense of this Passage.

Fer. XXI. 8. The Way of the living Ones, instead of the Way of Life, as it is translated.

Ezek. XXXIII. 15. The Statutes of the living Ones, instead of the Statutes of Life, gives Force to the Passages, by suggesting the Authority of Chap. I. the Legislator.

Feremiah's The Tory, Way of the living Ones, must mean the Worship of God, who prescribed the Way; and in Ezekiel, where the Laws of Restitution are referred to under the Word Statutes, they should be called the Statutes of the living Ones, viz. such as are enacted by God for that special Purpose, and therefore very improperly and absurdly termed Statutes of Life, as they were only certain Laws concerning Restitution.

The original Word for biding, Nan, in the just-cited 8th Ver. of Gen. III. favours and demands this Interpretation. In the Scriptures, cited by M. de Calasio under this Word, it signifies flying to a Place of Refuge or Asylum, to be screened from imminent Danger. The Noun from it is Sinus or Gremium, the Bosom or Place of Protection; and as the Verb here is in Hithpael. it is expressive of that great Concern and Fear, with which our first Parents Sense of Guilt had filled them. Surely they could never think of flying to that Tree, which had given them their mortal Wound; this is too great an Absurdity to be supposed. Irenaus rightly judged from this Part of the History, that our first Parents were in a State of Repentance, which will not allow us to suppose that they would fly from the Presence of God to Satan's Tree for Protection: K

Chap. I. tection: Nay * he expressly says, that "they "did not think of slying to bide themselves "from the Presence of God." From this Passage of Ireneus it may be observed, that if a Sense of Guilt and Contrition were of themselves a Propitiation for Sin, our first Parents had as fair a Claim to it as any of their Descendants, this History manifesting the deepest Sense of their Offence, and Sorrow for it: But they were not easy till the Promise was given.

Though Gen. II. 9. tells us that both these Trees were in the Midst of the Garden, yet this is said first, and so principally of the Tree of Life. This Tree of the Elabim was therefore properly styled, with regard to the Persons it represented, the Tree of the living Ones (Viventium). † It might likewise be rightly so called from the blessed Effect annexed to it, or the worthy Receivers of its Fruit. It might also be so named from the Continuation of Life which

it

* Lib. III. Cap. XXXVII. " Ab altero enim fe-

&quot;ductus (Adam) sub Occasione (i. e. Prætextu) Immor"talitatis, statim Timore corripitur, & absconditur;
"non quasi possit effugere Deum, sed consusus, quo"niam transgressus Præceptum ejus, indignus est venire
"in Conspectum & Colloquium Dei. Timor autem
"Domini Initium Intelligentiæ: Intellectus verò Trans"gressionis secit Pænitentiam; Pænitentibus autem
"largitur Benignitatem suam Deus." Vide ibi plura.

† "Arbor autem Vitæ, quæ posita est in Paradiso, "Imago suit suturæ Gratiæ Dei, quæ est Corpus Do"mini, quod qui edit vivet in Æternum." Aug, Tom. IV. p. 802. Edit. Basil. 1569.

it fecured, as every Act of Preservation is justly Chap. I. faid by Divines to be a new Act of Creation; fince by the special Gift of God we not only have our Being, but the Continuance of Life and Motion, which authorizes and requires the plural Expression here used, Life, Life, &c. the Prolongation of human Life to any indefinite Time confisting of many Grants or Gifts of Being, or (if I may so speak) particular Acts of Existence, continued and insensibly connected: Whereas the Life of the fupreme Being, Lexicographers fay, is in the fingular Number, as being but one, independent, entire Act of, or actual Existence, everlastingly the same, without Parts or Degrees. When the Word for God is Elabim, That being plural (as fignifying the three Persons in the Deity) the Word for living, when following it in Regimen or Appolition, is fometimes likewise plural, as I Sam. XVII. 26, 36. in our Version living God, literally rendered, is the Elabim living, or the living Ones (Viventes). The Word Elabim is fometimes joined with the Word in, as 2 Kings XIX. 4. which Variation in different Places may be intended to intimate to us the Unity of the Deity, as well as Trinity of Persons in the Godhead. When another Word is used for God, that is fingular, the Word living is fo, as Le EL CHI, to the living God.

What particular Tree this might be, is no way material for us to know. From the distinguished K 2 Honours

Chap. I. Honours of the Oak, this Tree was perhaps the representative Symbol of the Elabim. The Patriarch's Place of Worship was frequently near one of these Trees, or under it, as is evident from what is said of the Oak of Mamre, &c. And the common Maxim, Quercus sacra fovi, proves the Opinion of the Nations, and what was the historical Tradition concerning it. The religious Order and Account of the Druids is a particular Confirmation of this Point, in these Parts especially, where their Rites were celebrated with great Exactness, and a superstitious Reverence paid to this Tree, which gave them their Name.

Upon a Change in the Nature or Constitution of Man, and a Necessity or Expediency of appointing a new Symbol or Representative of the Deity, a Change was probably made in the Tree fo far, that no Fruit should tempt Man to eat, and thereby repose a false Confidence in its Effect: So that the Produce of this Tree now is fet in Opposition or Contradistinction to Fruit, Glandes et Fruges. But the Majesty and Dignity of this Tree is still préserved in its Appearance, and various Uses, it being the King of Trees. But a Community of Names is a farther Proof that the Oak was the Tree which represented the Elahim. Take what follows from M. de Calafio, Ed. Romaine, which on more Accounts than one deserves Notice. " אלה, juravit, adjuravit, " Juramenti Obligatione obstriaus fuit: Mihi 66 enim

" enim hæc אלה אלה videtur effe Idea, ut fignificet Chap. I. " propriè quantum sit Obligationis in Juramento, " ipfam Juramenti Obligationem ; ficut נשבע " totum Juramentum fignificat, omne illud de " quo Juramentum fit. Et hinc Nomen illud " divinum et misericors, אלהים, Juratores, " Fæderatores, Personæ Juramento obligatæ; et " quando dicitur de S. S. Trinitatis Personis, de-" notat illud Gratiæ Fœdus, ad quod perficiendum " Personæ divinæ se Juramento adstrinxerunt. " Radix enim nulla alia est, ex quâ deduci possit, " et ex hâc fecundum Regulas grammaticales, et " ipsam Nominis Rationem, Originem trahit. 7 " in hâc Voce radicalis est, et secundum For-" mationem בה deflectitur. Exindè patet Ra-" dicem esse propriam, et etiam de Deo posse " prædicari. Ad hunc Modum de Juramento " divino, quod ad Redemptionem nostram " spectat, differit Apostolus, Heb. VI. 16, 17, 18. "Hinc clarè patet et Deum posse jurare, et " Jurejurando se adstrinxisse pro Redemptione " nostrâ, ut ostenderet nobis Propositi sui Im-" mutabilitatem; et proptereà Nomen Elabim " in hoc Sensu propriè de Deo usurpatur. Et " Hominibus lapsis Nomen hoc Consolationis " fummæ fuit, Deum non posse mentiri; attamen " Deum se Juramento obstrinxisse ad redimendos " Homines: Duo hæc immutabilia sunt, et Fidei " nostræ et Spei Anchoræ; et hæc duo Vox Ela-" bim clarè exprimit. אלה etiam Quercus, Ilex, "Arbor apud Veteres facra: Tunc Temporis K 3 « Res Chap. I. " Res in Consuetudinem venit, ut Elementa,

" Bruta, Arbores, &c. Typi fierent, et Ideas

" Rerum absentium depingerent. Ad hunc Mo-

" dum Tin, Quercus; apud Veteres Signum fuit

" Fæderis Gratiæ, et quodammodo inferviit ad

describendum, et ad Memoriæ mandandum

" Jusjurandum divinum." Kircher gives the fame Interpretation of this Verb, and the Noun.

We may fairly suppose that the Tree of Life was one of the most common Sort, most simple, innocent, and wholesom of the whole HeZ PeRI, or Genus of Fruit-Trees. This I infer from other facramental instituted Tokens and Pledges of Prefervation and Security, viz. Water, Flour, the feveral Animals used in Sacrifices, Bread and Wine, &c: These last were appointed for some Purposes before the Levitical Law, according to the History of Abraham, and Melchisedek *. To these may be added the Bow in the Clouds, set apart for a standing, universal Pledge of God's preserving the World from a second Deluge. A new Creation for fuch a Purpose was no way neceffary. The Deity furely has a Right to appoint and appropriate any Part of his Work to his own Uses; and, in all Claims of Service and Acknowlegement, always acts in such a Manner, as may facilitate the Obedience of Man, Near the

* This religious Banquet was intended probably to prefigure what would be the last Symbol of the divine Presence, as now exhibited in the Lord's Supper under the Appearance, and by the Participation of Bread and Wine.

the bleffed Tree stood the Tree of Death, or Chap. I. Satan, whose Fruit was fair and promising, like the delusive Being it represented: Knowlege was promifed, and Knowlege it gave; but the first Opening was a Discovery of the Nakedness of them who tasted of it. They found themselves stripped of all Protection, within the Jaws of a merciless Rebel, instead of being under the Wings of a kind and almighty Father and Protector. These Trees reprefenting the fupreme Being, and the Adversary of human Happiness (as the Altars of Fehovab and Baal did in after Times) Man, eating of That which was the Tree of Death or Satan, under the Character of the Tree of Knowlege of Good and Evil, became liable to all the Punishment of open Rebellion, forfeiting every Thing he held under his lawful Sovereign, according to the Rule of impartial Justice, was fentenced immediately to be banished from his pleasant and secure Habitation, and sent into a wide, uncultivated World, to lead a Life of hard Labour and Mifery.

The poetical Fictions, built upon this History, give some Light and Strength to what is here advanced concerning these two Trees. Poets and Mythologists plainly, I think, borrowed their Hesperidum Horti, and the golden Apples therein, from the Mosaical Account of the Garden of Eden, &c. as the very Word is that which is used in Gen. I. 11. for the Genus of Trees bearing Fruit, viz. HeZ PeRI. I have sometimes K 4

Chap. I. thought that Virgil gives the traditional History of the two Trees above-mentioned in two of his Descriptions: The Reader will excuse me for setting them down here, and use his own Judgment. What is said in the 6th Ecl. seems to belong to the Tree of the Knowlege of Good and Evil; the Passage in the 4th Eneid may be understood of the Fruit of the other.

Ecl. VI. 61.

The Virgin, who Hesperian Apples lov'd, He sings the next. TRAPP.

Æn. Lib. IV. 483.

Hinc mihi Massylæ Gentis monstrata Sacerdos,

Hesperidum Templi Custos, Epulasque Draconi
Quæ dabat, et sacros servabat in Arbore Ramose

Here a Massylian Priestess lives, who kept
The Temple of th' Hesperides, with Food Supplied the Guardian Dragon———
And in the Tree preserv'd the sacred Boughs.

If these Descriptions, and such like, be held before the true Mirrour of the Scripture Original, the fabulous Mixture and Alterations will disappear, and the remaining Facts and Realities receive receive a corroborating Evidence of their real Chap. I, Existence, by their having given Life and Beauty to Things which had none in themselves. Entia Rationis et Phantasia, Creatures of Fancy and Imagination, are incontestable Proofs of corresponding Realities, existing separately or conjunctly, from whence they are deduced. Were there no true Coins, there would be no Counterfeits. There is no Image without an original Standard, whence it was copyed. Thus from the wonderous History of Joshua and his Spear, Mars and his Spear, Achilles and his Spear were formed; and, like the Roman Ancile, by being mingled together, the Copies are not eafily or foon to be diffinguished from the Original: But a near View, under a right Direction, will be able to fix upon that which came down from Heaven.

The Reader may perhaps observe that Italy, the fine Garden of Europe, had one of its ancient Names from this descriptive Word HeZ PeRI.

-----Hesperiam Graij Cognomine dicunt.

The Greeks borrowed this, as they did many other Names, from the Hebrews.

Man having chosen Death, what was to be expected or hoped for in this Situation? Why truly, that same Being, without Hope or Expectation, from whom he had so basely, so solishly, so ungratefully revolted, freely redeemed him at an infinite Price, and directed him in Chap. I. the Way to the real Tree of Life. * Hereupon a new Symbol was proper to fignify the new Terms of Acceptance prescribed to restored Man, in order to let him know who were the Persons upon whom he was to rely for Favour, and by whom alone he could be happy. The Moment therefore he was banished from Paradife, these facred Emblems were given and set up for the Comfort of Man, and an Assurance of the divine Favour: The Flame shewed the divine Vengeance against Sin, and what was to fall particularly upon the fecond Person (to whom was joined the Man's Face) in order to blot out all Transgression, and restore Man to the Favour of his Creator. And as this Assurance in the Representation of the Cherubim seemed immediately necessary upon the Fall, so it is reasonable to suppose it was continued in the holy Line, or amongst the Sons of God, for the same gracious Purposes, till it was placed in the Tabernacle,

and

<sup>* &</sup>quot;Non potest sibi quisquam applicare Promissionem, in sis per Symbolum divinitùs institutum." Heideg. Hist. Patr. p. 105. To this may be added an Observation of the judicious Hooker. Eccl. Pol. Book V. Ch. 57.

Ch. 57.

"Sith God in himself is invisible, and cannot by us be discerned working, therefore when it seemeth good in the Eyes of his heavenly Wisdom, that Men, for some special Intent and Purpose, should take Notice of his glorious Presence, he giveth them some plain and sensible Token whereby to know what they cannot see. For Moses to see God and live was impossible, yet Moses by Fire knew where the Glory of God extraordinarily was present, &c."

and afterwards in the Temple. That there was Chap. I. an appointed Place, from whence divine Responses (soon aped by the Devil in the Heathen Oracles) were given in very early Times to fuch Believers as came to ask Counfel of God, and wanted to know his Will and Ways for their better Direction and fafer Conduct in doubtful Cases, is plain from Gen. XXV. 22. where we read, And she (Rebekah) went to enquire of the Lord. And where can it be supposed Rebekah went. but to some particular Place, some House of God, where the facred Emblems were placed, from whence Answers were given to such as came properly to ask Counsel? The Word, rendered here to enquire, fignifies, according to Marius, " sciscitatus, scrutatus est, interrogavit cognoscendi se aut discendi Causa, consuluit, Consilium aut opem petiit, & passiva Voce exponitur ali-" quando pro respondere :" And what we tranflate, to enquire, is rendered by Vulg. ut confuleret, by LXX πυθεσθαι ωαρα κυρικ. Whence it may be farther observed, that as it is not said Rebekab went to enquire of any Prophet or Priest, but of the Lord, the very Jehovah, we are obliged, I think, to suppose that she went to that fymbolical Presence of the Deity which was. called the Faces of Jehovah, from whence God vouchsafed to answer and direct his faithful People, whenever they duly called upon him. The Fact of there being Cherubic Faces during the Patriarchal State is likewife, I think, undeniably

Chap. I. niably confirmed from Exod. XVI. 34. where it is faid, that the Manna was to be laid up, or placed to or before the Faces of the Witnesses, as the literal Translation is, according to the English Translation, before the Testimony. What is called . here before the Testimony, is in the 33d Ver. before the Lord: If this be not a Proof that the divine Presence was, by these Witnesses and this symbolical Representation, suggested and attested, or that these sacred Emblems then attended the Church of God, I know not what can be called Evidence. By the Testimony we have been generally taught to understand the Law, or two Tables, laid up in the Ark or Cheft, which was placed between or under the Cherubim. But the Testimony here mentioned was before the Ark or Covenant was made. Isaiab therefore (Chap. VIII. 20.) points out the Difference by different Words. The People shewing an Inclination to consult Wizards, &c. are referred to the true Oracles under the Names of the Law and the Testimony, Torab and Tebuda. By Torab is meant the Mosaic Law, or two Tables, laid up in the Ark. By Tehuda the Testimony or Witnesses, תעודר, as above in Exod. XVI, which were at the Ends of the Ark, and these were in other Words the Cherubim. The written Law might, and was properly called a Testimony, as bearing Witness to the Will of God in Matters transacted between him and his People, and in that Sense was truly oracular. But the other Testimony was fuch **at' *\(\frac{2}{6}\circ \chi_{\text{NV}}\), as representing the three Chap. I. Persons in Covenant to redeem Man, witnessing to each other their respective Offices and assumed Parts in the Scheme of Redemption, and declaring the same to Man for his Comfort and Dependance, with a Demonstration of their Divinity in the several Acts and oracular Declarations, which proceeded from the Powers which were above and within the Cherubim.

The Title and first Verse of LXXX Psalm fpeak, I think, the same Truth: HeDUTH in the Title is the fame Word which is used Exod. XVI. and translated Testimony. The Psalm is inscribed to Alaph, the Gatherer, i. e. the Person to whom the Gathering of the Nations should be. of the Gentiles at his first, of the whole human Race at his fecond Advent. The first Verse clears up the Propriety and Appositeness of the Title, Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel, thou that leadest Toseph like a Flock, thou that dwellest between the Cherubims, shine forth. The Supposition of the Words HeDUTH and Cherubim being fynonimous Expressions, or relative Terms, though giving in some Respects different Ideas, reconciles the Title and Invocation used in this first Verse, and makes them illustrate and explain each other. To this may be added a concurring Proof from Pf. LXXXII. which is likewise inscribed to Asaph, the Gatherer. And both the Meanings of the Word Gatherer, just now given, are established in the last Verse of this Chap. I. this Pfalm. Arise, O God, judge the Earth; for thou shalt inherit all Nations. But the Sense of the first Verse of this Psalm is disguised by our Translation, which is, God standeth in the Congregation of the Mighty; he judgeth among the Gods. The true Version ought, I presume, to be thus, The Elahim (Fæderatores, Covenanters, fo plural) placed (the Verb-Substantive is underflood, and the Termination is fingular, to shew the Unity of the Deity) in or for HeDeTH, that is, They were the Testimony, or Witnesses, there placed: Then I begin the latter Clause of the Verse, The Irradiator (EL) in the Middle of the Elahim (whose Position, by being the second Person, was between the other two) shall judge; that is, shall be the Judge of the Earth, or all the Inhabitants of it.

The harsh Nonsense (to speak no worse of it) of God's judging among the Gods, is thus discharged, and the noble Christian Sense restored, this important Doctrine being plainly taught herein; That very Person, one of whose descriptive Titles is EL, or the Irradiator, and who is represented in the sacred emblematical Figures of the Cherubim as the second of them, and therefore placed in the * Middle, or between the other Two, is HE who shall gather, and judge all Nations.

* ברב, the Word here used, signifies, according to Kircher, an essential or most intimate Part when applyed to Substances, as the Heart in Man: Such was the second Person, as described here, in the Middle of the divine Essence, as represented in the Cherubim.

Nations, who shall be gathered together by his Chap. I. Command at the last Day for that Purpose.

Though fome Moderns have questioned whether Ezekiel's Vision is to be understood of the Cherubim in the Sanctum Sanctorum, yet Irenæus cites the latter part of this very first Verse of the LXXX Pfalm, and applies it to the Person ο καθημευ επι Χερεβιμ, " who fate over or above " the Cherubim," who was in David's Time invoked as the Shepherd of Israel, afterwards of the Gentiles also, both making one Fold under one and the same Shepherd. The Cherubim are called likewise by Irenaus τα Χερεβιμ τετραπροσωπα (ζωον is the Substantive) "the Animals with four "Faces," and he fays farther, 'προσωπα αυτων εικουες της πραίματειας τε υιε τε Θεε, " Thefe Vifages or Persons (as the Greek Word properly fignifies) were Resemblances of, or served to describe the "Dispensation of the Son of God, *" in other Words, the Christian Oeconomy. This Passage of Irenaus is cited only to prove that Ezekiel's Description of the four Animals, or the Vision of Chebar, was applyed to, and understood to be descriptive of the Cherubim, that these were the Figures, or that Likeness, therein referred to. I have no Occasion to consider Irenaus's Manner of allegorizing upon this Subject. Theodoret, in this Questions upon Genesis, speaks of this as a fettled Point, viz. that Ezekiel's Vision was a Description of the Cherubim, &c. The Reader Chap. I. will compare this Passage of Irenœus with the Assertions or Intimations of those, who would persuade us, that the Description of Ezekiel's Cherubim had no Relation to those which were set up in the Holy of Holies; and if Authority may have any Weight, let that of Irenœus be put in one Scale, and as many Moderns as they please in the other.

But moreover Levit, XVI. 2. tells us that the Mercy-Seat was over, upon, or above the Ark: Here was the Appearance of the Lord, the Cloud' or Glory, which was a well-known Symbol of the divine Presence. And Ver. 13th of this Chapter, this Mercy-Seat is faid to be upon the Testimony, the HeDUTH (plural, the Interpretation of which is in this Place, I think, Witnesses) the representative Emblems which were at each End of the Ark, fo under the Mercy-Seat, as joint Supporters of it. Hereby it is plainly, though emblematically fignified, that all the three divine Persons were the Foundation of the grand Scheme of Mercy or Redemption, and were equally engaged, or engaged themselves to support it; though the fecond Person was illustriously distinguished in both his Natures upon the Mercy-Seat, by a particular Representation, as he was the principal Agent in this aftonishing Scene: He therefore, for what he did and fuffered in his human Nature, appeared as invested with the regal Dignity; and the Elahim (fuch is their Good-Will towards Man, and Delight in every Thing Thing which promotes the Happiness of Men) Chap. I. agree in giving Glory, and Honour, and Thanks to King Messiah, to Him that sate on the Throne, who liveth for ever and ever, Rev. IV. 9.

It appears from hence, that there must have been two distinct Representations of our Lord, one above the Cherubim, another upon the Mercy-Seat in the Cherubim, to serve the particular Uses and Purposes just mentioned.

If the above Account be allowed, as, I think, it is well supported by the Authorities just cited, to which I may add * Pf. LXXXI. 5, these same

* Our Translation runs, This he ordained in Joseph for a Testimony, when he went out through the Land of Egypt. The Word rendered Testimony is HeDUTH, plural; and the Word for should be placed before Joseph, and omitted where it is: The Testimony, or HeDUTH, was or were ordained, placed, or constituted for the Sake of Foseph, or those People who were described under that Name. I have frequently thought that Part of the feventh Verse of this Pfalm, I answered thee in the secret Place of Thunder, referred to the oracular Voice from the Holy of Holies, and the Directions given from thence to the Israelites when in Egypt, as the Application of the Words to common physical Thunder is by no means, I think, warranted by the Expressions of the Psalmist. As I find sufficient Authorities to vindicate this Opinion from the Imputation of Singularity, I will lay them before the Reader, that he may be the better able to judge of the Matter. I will cite these as they lie in Glassius, Lib. IV. Tract. III. Observ. XIV. De. Nomine Proprio. Quo de Nomine (Boavegles) lubet ' ascribere Verba Heinsij in Aristarcho facro, seu Exercit., · facris super Nonni Paraphrasin in Johannem, pag. 277. ייבינור, b. eft, Præsentia divinæ Majestatis Spiritûs-" que illius (ut Hebræi vocant) Voce _____, feu Tonitru notatur, Pf. LXXXI. 8. In Secreto Tonitrui audivi te;

Chap. I. cred Emblems were with the Israelites in Egypt (as they certainly were in the Wilderness) where the Abuse of copying them for private Worship might give Occasion for those odd Conjunctions, which appear in the Egyptian Hieroglyphicks. These Figures, being destroyed with the Temple, have no Existence now but in the Descriptions of Ezekiel and St. John. The fuller Exhibition of the principal Part of them in the Union of the divine and human Nature, and the Sufferings of the Messiah when on Earth, have so far realized these Representations.

I shall only add upon this Point, that there is likewise an allegorical Sense and Interpretation to be attended to in reading the Scriptures, an Instance of which St. Paul has given us in the History of Hagar and Sarah.

I have been the more careful in noting and flating the above Distinction, because the principal Part and leading Design of the Scriptures, instead of keeping its Station and Right of Preeminence against all facrilegious and levelling Attempts upon it, seems to be in danger of being being quite overthrown and confounded by the Chap. I. modern Method of commenting upon and explaining the Scriptures. Many Passages, applyed by Yews and the first Christians to the Messiah, &c. have been interpreted in fuch a Manner, as though they terminated in the Type, without any farther View; and others, though not capable of being applyed to any mere Man, have with great Violence been difforted to fuch an Application. These Attempts are commonly defended by faying, it is for the Benefit of Religion in general, to diffinguish between certain and doubtful Evidence, and not strenuously, or perhaps at all infift upon the latter: But this is a fallacious Position (though an useful Distinction when rightly applyed) and has, I fear, done the Christian Cause much Harm. For if every Part of our Evidence may be called doubtful, where a Doubt may be raifed by any cavilling Sceptick, the Fable of the Horse's Tail will be fatally verified in this Cafe, and Religion quite stripped of every fingle Proof, and Kind of Evidence, with which it abounds. It was faid, there was no Opinion fo wild and abfurd, but what was held or defended by some Philosopher; and it may be as truly affirmed, that there is no Proof or Evidence of Religion fo clear and strong, that hath not, or may not be capable of yielding a Doubt to a Mind disposed that Way. Pyrrbonism was an Offspring of Deism, and still fubfifts in it. Such Performances now hinted at Chap. I. are many, and too well known to need any particular Catalogue, or Reference to them.

But fince the Books of the Old Testament, which our Saviour commands us to fearch, were to bring us to Christ, by the Informations contained in the various Parts thereof, whoever endeavours to cover these directing Lines, or to remove and confound those serviceable Marks. which are placed therein to lead the Christian to this End, would deprive us of the noblest Use of these divine Guides, and may be said to make the Word of God of none Effect. For if the entire Meaning of these Scriptures be made to stop at a moral Sense, without any farther View, they stop short of Salvation. And if so, what great Difference will there be, between making them of none Effect, or making them ineffectual to the End they were given, i. e. a Revelation of the Means whereby Men might expect and obtain Salvation? Many Passages, establishing and relating to the fundamental Articles of Faith. are so expressed or circumstanced, are so limited or peculiarly appropriated by the necessary Construction of them, and an Incapacity of their being otherwise understood, that an honest Mind. I think, cannot mistake their Meaning. If I have been mistaken in any of these Instances, which are produced in these Sheets, the Error proceeds from the Fear of a facrilegious Invafion in this Respect, and an undistinguishing Application of many Places to the common Purpofes of human Conduct, or History of private Life, Chap. I. which feem written to explain the grand Doctrines of the Mediatorial Scheme, and are therefore to be regarded as a Kind of facred Inclosure, separated to this holy and high Use. In these Cases it is less dangerous to rob Man than God, as Man himself would be the only Sufferer by such a Wrong. Let us suppose, by way of Instance, that the celebrated Prophecy in Jub concerning Faith in a Redeemer, a Resurrection, or future Judgment, should be interpreted to mean no. more than that Fob should be restored to his former State and Prosperity in this Life, would it not be an high Act of Sacrilege, to wrest so early and full a Proof of these grand Points out of the Hands of the Church, should this Scripture be written, according to ancient and general Opinion, to point out or establish the Resurrection of the Body, our Saviour's Incarnation, and Coming to Judgment? On the other Hand, should those Scriptures, which are supposed to be Part of what one may call the divine Inclosure, be Matter only of common History and Instruction, the Loss is not great, and a Zeal for the Honour of God, and the Good of Man, will strongly plead for Pardon, or be esteemed an honest Mistake. Conjectures, which are merely fo, and more especially such as are new, should be well examined, before they are received as real Truths, or before they are admitted to the same Rank and Credit, which is due to ancient Chap. I. and generally received Interpretations. What is offered to the Reader of this Kind in this Work. defires to be viewed only in this Light, is not obtruded upon any one, but is only propounded to the Public, and submitted to the Examination of an impartial Trial, without expecting an implicit Affent, much less an approving Reception, upon the Authority of fuch a Writer. I have taken what Care I could not to deceive myself or others by fanciful Reveries, or laying more Stress. upon any Part than it is formed to bear. Neither have I any Liking to new Interpretations as fuch, or any Fondness for an Hypothesis of my own. A strict Jealousy of Self is proper on such Occasions; and if any Part of this little Work be contrary to the Sense and Judgment of my Superiors in Station and Abilities, to whom I owe, and shall aways pay a due Deference, I shall fly faster from it than I embraced it.

Persons of great Learning and Piety have, perhaps without sufficient Reason*, applyed more * "Multum certè omnibus Seculis passa est Veritas a duobus Hominum Generibus, altero eorum qui "Omnia in Allegorias, et Sensus (quos falsò vocant) si spirituales vertunt, altero eorum qui Omnia nudè ac ad Literam exponunt, &c. Pocock Not. Mis. 176.

I add here what Dr. Hammond observes upon Matt. V. 21. concerning the Jewish Rules for interpreting the Scriptures. 1. Hearing, when any Fact is recited, or historical Sense explicated, which to have heard is sufficient without any more. 2. 778, mystical Exposition. 3. 777, parabolical Exposition.

Hulfius's Rules for mystical Interpretation are these, ... "Ut Litera Textûs exactam contineat Similitudinem, to Mystery than ought to be so applyed, and Chap. I. may have rendered other Parts, which require fuch an Application, less ferviceable by being under the like Suspicion of a perverted, fanciful Construction. But as I find the Scheme of Redemption to be the uppermost Concern and chief Lesson of the divine Book, I dare not check a rightly disposed Imagination in its Sallies this Way, or judge by my own dim Eye of the more perfect and clear Sight of another. All that I can once more affire the Reader of, is, that I place Nothing before his View but what I think to be the real Growth of the facred Grove. Fruit here presented is gathered for the public Tafte and Use, and if it be not as palatable to others as myself, they are at Liberty to lay it afide; and I shall be no farther concerned or difpleased, than I am that the Features of other Men are not the same with mine. What I like myfelf, I offer to the World, and That should give no Offence: What others have offered, I thank them for, as I have fome Way or other received either Pleasure or Profit from them; though I cannot like every Part of the Entertainment.

66 quæ

L 4

From'

&quot; quæ mysticum illum Sensum includat. 2. Ut omnes Contextûs Circumstantiæ Transitioni a literali ad mysticum Sensum saltem non repugnent, si non jubeant. 3. Tertia (seu Lex) quæ præcipua est, ut mysticus ille Sensus, qui dicitur, cum Analogiá Fidei, quæ totam Scripturam pro Fundamento habet, optimè conveniat." Theol. Jud. Pars prima de Messia, p. 443.

Chap. I. From what hath been already faid, as well as what will be faid in what is to follow, it will be observed, that the divine Authority of the Scriptures is here prefumed, or confidered as a Poftulatum, upon which the present Argument is built and proceeds. To what Degree the Penmen of the Holy Writings were inspired, and whether the Words, as well as Sense, were dictated by the Holy Spirit, are Questions foreign to the present Undertaking. Authors, who have professedly written upon this Subject, may be confulted by such as want Satisfaction in this Point. I will only observe by the bye, that the Declaration of St. Peter upon this Subject feems to favour their Opinion, who think that the Expressions, as well as Matter, proceeded from the Holy Ghost. For the Prophecy, or Prophecies, came not in old Time, fays the Text, by the Will of Man; but holy Men of God spake as they were moved * by the Holy Ghost. Paraphrased thus, "For none of the Prophets of any Time have undertaken that Office on their own Heads, or prophesied " their own Fancies or Perfuafions, but all the 66 Scripture Prophets have been Men called and " fent by God on his Messages, and inspired " and instructed by the holy Spirit of God in " every Word which they have delivered."

This Interpretation feems to be ftrengthened by the original Word translated spake, as commented on by Dr. Hammond in another + Place.

The

* Degoperor, carried, in Hammond's Margin. i Acts VIII. Note 6.

The Verb ελαλησε must, I think, be generally Chap. I. understood of the actual Utterance of Conceptions, and signify what proceeded out of the Mouth: They not only conceived, but spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. This occasional Remark is submitted, as I pass, to the Consideration of unprejudiced Readers.

But upon a View of that divine Impress and Image, which is still so visible and venerable in them (notwithstanding some little Injuries which Accidents and Malice may have caused in them) one cannot help trembling to reflect on the Liberties which have been taken by bold Critics, who have treated these Books with as much Freedom. and idle Conjecturing, as though they had been of no more Consequence than the Epistles of Phalaris, or an old Play-book. Should the Scriptures by fuch irreverent Usage lose their due. Authority, and thereby their intended Influence over the Minds and Actions of Men, what Account will fuch prefumptuous Writers give of these their Works? It deserves the most serious. timely Confideration, how near fuch injudicious Attempts may approach to an irremissible Crime, by depreciating these Writings, and bringing them down to be measured by the low Standard. of human Compositions. Such as entertain, or would inculcate an higher Opinion of the New-Testament than the Old, or pretend that it has a fuperior Authority, know not what they fay, nor, whereof they affirm. If they believe the divine Authority

Chap. I. Authority of the New Testiment, they must believe That of the Old, fince we are affured upon Apostolical Authority, that ALL Scripture is given by Inspiration of God: And when this was faid, there was no fettled Canon of Scripture but That of the Old Testament, which was the facred Volume referred to by St. Paul. his Words contain so full and undeniable a Proof of this important Truth, declaring and pointing out at the same Time the special Uses of this invaluable Gift of God, I shall recite them, that it may appear upon what Foundation I have laid and raised my little Structure. All Scripture is given by Inspiration of God, and is profitable for Doctrine, for Reproof, for Correction, for In-Arustion in Righteousness, that the Man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good Works. The general Division above specified, or Resolution of the subject Matter of the Holy Writings into fuch Parts as relate either to our Rule of Faith, or Rule of Practice, falls in with, and is conformable to this apostolical Delineation of the Parts and Purpofes of the divine Books. What feems to be more particularly pointed out by Instruction in Righteousness, will be farther observed in the following Chapter.

But whilst I stand to review the Ground I have passed, a Resection or two arise in my Mind, which demand my more particular Notice, and may deserve the Consideration of many.

If these Scriptures are divinely penned, are of Chap. L. fuch Dignity in themselves, and of such infinite Concern to us, if all other Knowlege, compared with what may be here known, be no better than Dung, and all other Books, with regard to their Use and Excellency, even the most curious or entertaining, be no more than a founding Brass or tinkling Cymbal; what can be faid or thought of such, who pay more Regard to the flashy, unsatisfying Performances of Heathen Writers, than to the Fountains of Truth and Life? It is grievous to fee rational Beings, Christian Men, nay fometimes Christian Ministers, mispending their Time and Studies in fuch Pursuits, and teaching others by the most forcible Instruction, That of Example, that many other Authors deferve a more near and careful Perusal than the inspired Writers. What will be the Consequence, here and hereafter, of thus following Shadows instead of the Substance, of this contemptuous Treatment of the Book of Life, is not Matter of. private Judgment. Repentance, I hope, and a future Reformation in this Respect will prevent the Punishment due to so high a Crime, unrepented of, and obstinately, persisted in.

As the Study of the Scriptures has been generally neglected, and a Preference given to almost any other Writer in the Esteem of many, who would be thought Persons of Penetration and Judgment, it will behove the Clergy more particularly to consider, whether they have any Chap. I. way countenanced this vicious, false Taste: If they have been more careful to fet off, and exemplify the Beauties of the Grecian and Roman Writers, than those of the facred Penmen; if they lay more Stress upon the Authority of Philosophers, and human Wisdom, than upon the Foundation and Precepts of Prophets and Apostles; if they have been silent upon, or industriously careful to obscure, by spreading a false Gloss over such doctrinal, principal Points as are intitled to a Priority of Order and Dignity; what will they fay to their Master, when they are fummoned to give an Account of their Stewardships? St. Paul addresses himself, through Timothy, to all the Ministers of the Gospel, in declaring the Intention of the Scriptures. These Revelations were given, That the Man of God, or faithful Teacher, may be perfett, furnished unto all good Works. His Materials and Authority were to be had from this Book and not elfewhere: and this Book was to be learnt from Childhood, and would make the Man of God perfect, furnished to all good Works, sufficient to make him and his Hearers wife unto Salvation. If these Considerations may have no Weight with fuch as act and speak upon other Rules and Motives, I must be contented, at parting, to leave this Scripture upon the Minds of fuch treacherous Deferters of the Captain of our Salvation, Whosoever shall be ashamed of Me, and of my Words, of him shall-the Son of Man be ashamed, when he (ball fhall come in his own Glory, and in his Father's, Chap. I. and of the holy Angels. Unless these Admonitions have a seasonable Effect upon those pretended Disciples, who prefer the Authority of human Compositions to the Book of Life, in what they publish from the Press or the Pulpit, by chusing to setch their Materials from the Stores of human Wisdom, they will not be so much as able to plead the Merit of Intruders in the great and terrible Day, as they seem now to avoid even the Suspicion of doing, and seem ashamed of saying, that they have done any Thing in the Name of our Lord and Master.

CHAP.

CHAP. II.

The Principal Scope and Design of the Book of Job.

Chap. II. TITHERTO I have considered the general Argument, and gracious Defign of the facred Scriptures, especially of those Books which compose the Jewish Canon, and which were fo highly approved by our divine Master himself, that the Search or Study of them was required and established by a new and indispensable Command. The Design and Scope of the Book of Job, which is the Subject of my present Enquiry, will the sooner appear from the Opening made in the preceding Chapter. For though every Part of the ancient facred Code is fubservient to the general Argument and Defign of the Whole, yet each Book, confidered in itself, has some special Point assigned to its particular Care, whilst it is at the same time carrying on and promoting the common Cause. The Scriptures, when viewed together, resemble a rich and boundless Ocean, supplyed by, and made up of a Variety of beautiful and ufeful Streams, which ferve for many and great Purposes in their respective Courses, being directed to a particular Service in their Progress, before Chap. II. they concur to make up one magnificent and fruitful Repository, to be used for the Glory of God, and the Benefit of Man. What the Son of Sirach faith of Solomon, may be more justly. more amply applyed to the Book of God, that it is as a Flood filled with Understanding, Ecclus. XLVII. 14. The feparate and leading Defign of many Books is fo plainly marked out in the Title or Tenor of the Book itself, that there can be no Difference of Opinion concerning it, and most Writers have agreed in stating the Argument of it. But the Book of Fob, by I know not what Fate, hath suffered as much as 70b himself, in the various Conjectures, and bold Affertions of fuch as would give us the Drift and Aim of this inestimable Composition. But to state, or even enumerate the Opinions of Writers upon this Subject, would require many Volumes, and the patient Reader of fuch a Collection would fuffer almost as much as the laborious Compiler. Such as may be willing, or have Strength and Refolution to travel through fuch a heavy, intricate Road, may apply themfelves to that Tribe of Commentators, who offer their Assistance upon this Subject. Carpzovius will give them a Catalogue of the ancient and foreign Annotators, and the modern English Writers are too well known to be mentioned here. Besides, a bare Catalogue of these, without some Account of them and their Works. might

Chap. II. might have the Appearance of a contemptuous Neglect of many eminent Pens, who have merited the public Approbation, or a filent. envious Distaste of the public Judgment: Whereas my true Reason for passing the Labours of my Country-Men upon this Subject over in Silence, is a Consciousness of my own Incapacity to sit in Judgment upon fuch an Occasion, and a settled Difinclination to fpeak ill of any, or hurt the good Name of such, as have honestly endeavoured to ferve the Public, though their Success may not have answered their Expectations. The censorial Chair, as it would be uneasy to me, so would it by no means become me; and though I am fond of praising, yet I was deterred from it in this Instance, by considering that such as have done well upon this Subject can receive no additional Fame by my low Voice amidst the public Applauses; and I cannot pay even this little Tribute where I think it is not due, For if I should give flattering Titles unto Men, the God that is above would hate me *. In general I may be allowed to fay, that two Opinions feem highly derogatory to the Dignity and Design of the Scriptures in general, and this useful History in particular. Some Commentators would deprive 700

* What Vell. Patere. fays upon such an Occasion, might possibly have some Weight with me when the Mind was in Suspence, "Penè stulta est inhærentium "Oculis Ingeniorum Enumeratio: Nam Vivorum ut magna Admiratio, ita Censura difficilis est." Lib. II. Chap. XXXVI.

Tob himself of his Life, and others his Book; Chap. II. though the Holy Ghost expressly tells us, that there was a Man in the Land of Uz, whose Name was 70b. The former of these, by a Liberty taken when the first Revelation was given, fay it was not furely fo; not real Life, fay these bold Men, but a sictitious Character is here exhibited, and a fine Fable, instead of a true and real History. The others suppose the Characters and Story true and real, but that the Holy Ghost exhibits only herein an illustrious Pattern of Patience and Refignation to the Will of Heaven, for the Instruction and Imitation of Posterity: I cannot, I think, I need not stay at present to remove these Objections. It is now Time to propose my own Opinion concerning the Subject of the present Enquiry, with the Reasons and Authorities upon which it is founded.

What hath been observed from St. Paul, concerning the Use and Design of the Scriptures in general, is true of the Book of Job in particular, which eminently serves for Doctrine, Reproof, Correction, Instruction in Righteousness. The following Sheets will occasionally specify many grand Points of Religion, which are established and illustrated herein. But the first and ruling Design, which meets the single and curious Eye, commanding a more particular and attentive View, is this momentous Truth, "That Salvation is to be obtained by the alone Merits of Jesus Christ." That, as in many Things we offend M

Chap. II. all, even fuch as are supposed to be, and really are, comparatively speaking, the best and most perfect, so all want a Redeemer, or the Application and Supply of his Righteousness to make up the Defects of their own. Instruction in this fundamental Article of Religion is, as I humbly apprehend, what the Apostle calls Instruction in Righteousness, or the Science of what alone will make Man righteous, and procure the Crown of Righteousness, which the Man of God, or Christian ... Minister, is to make the chief Subject-Matter of his Lectures and Exhortations. But fince the eleventh Article of our Church fully expresseth what I conceive to be the principal Argument and Scope of the Book of Job, amply confirming the general Doctrine which is supposed to be therein contained, though not ratifying my Application of it, or as the School-Men fay, proving what is true in Thefi, though not in Hypothefi, I shall produce it as a firm Foundation, sufficient to support the Weight of what shall be built thereon. "We are accounted just and righteous " before God only for the Merit of our Lord and " Saviour Jesus Christ, and not for our oven " Works and Defervings."

The different Senses, wherein the Word Righteousness is used in the Scriptures, has been one great Occasion of mistaking, or not rightly attending to the Doctrine of it. It is commonly taken for a Conformity of Conduct to the Precepts of the moral Law, and of the same Import with what we mean by a good Life. By this re-Chap. II. strained Interpretation the Dollrine of Righteoufnels is removed out of our View, and the Righteousness of Man substituted in the Place of the Righteousness of God. We shall find them carefully distinguished in the Scriptures, as it is of the last Consequence to Man that they should be fo: And they have infallible Characteristicks by which they may be known. Righteousness exalteth a Nation, &c. Our Righteousnesses are as filthy Rags, is the Righteousness of Man: We will fing of thy Righteousness is the faving Righteousness of God, which must be the Subject of the Hymns and Praises of the Faithful both in the Church militant and triumphant to all Eternity. In Pfalm LI. the Sense must be applyed to Christ's Righteousness, which saved the penitent Pfalmist: His Justice would have cut him off, instead of giving him any Occasion of singing or rejoicing. Pf. LXXI. 16. likewise can be understood in no other Sense, I will make mention of thy Righteousness, even of thine only. One Text in Hosea X. 12. will explain this Distinction, as the Word Righteousness is used therein in both Senses. Sow to your selves in, or with regard to, Righteousness, reap in Mercy; break up your fallow Ground: For it is Time to feek the Lord, till be come and rain Righteousness upon you. The former Righteousness is that Sort which we are to fow, and endeavour to cultivate to our utmost; but the latter, viz. the Lord's Righteousness, M 2 must

Chap. II. must be poured down upon it, like Rain upon Ground when tilled and feeded, before the former will be able to produce any Fruit, or turn to any Account. In the Text above cited; relating to St. Paul's Directions to Timothy for the better Discharge of the Pastoral Office in the great Duty of Preaching or Instruction, Commentators have founded their Paraphrafe and Constructions upon Translations, without confulting the Original, or attending to St. Paul's Reference and Defign. But furely it will be thought right in this Case, when we would interpret aright a Word of fo much Importance, and of fo complex a Nature as that of Righteoufness, to give the first Place to the first and leading Sense of the Expression, where it may confift with the general Interpretation of the Passage where it occurs, without excluding other fubordinate Acceptations of it, or Senses of Accommodation: Especially as the Word is transferred from the Old Testament, and as St. Paul in this Passage refers us thither for Instruction in Righteousness, we may fetch from the Hebrew Word the true Meaning of it, though the New Testament speaks the same Thing. * The original Word is principally and specially applicable only to God, as He alone can be absolutely called Chap. II. just or righteous, and Righteousness cannot subfift or be in any Person or Thing, but what receives that diffinguishing Excellency from the only just and righteous One. Christ therefore, as God, hath this high Title, as he fulfilled all Righteousness, and as he makes Man righteous by Imputation, and a virtual Communication of his own Righteousness to him, without which he could never fill up the Measure of his Duty in fuch a Manner as to be called just or righteous, and thereby be qualified for the Favour of God. But as this very important Paffage of Scripture feems to be misconstrued and misinterpreted, I shall take the Liberty of pointing out the Mistakes of our Translation, and of many Annotators and Paraphrafts. The Word oldaguaxia, by being translated Doctrine, seems by its Sound and frequent Application to have led them to its limited Signification, as though it was to be understood of Points only, which are commonly called Doctrinal: And they interpret the Word Righteousness according to its general or complex Meaning; fo that they imagine the general Rule of Faith and Practice to be described under these two comprehensive Expressions of Doctrine and Righteousness. But the original Word for Doctrine has no fuch Meaning as is thus fixed upon it: The Verb fignifies to teach, the concrete or personal Noun a Teacher, the Abstract in the Text what is to be taught, or the Subject-

M 3

Matter

Chap. II. Matter of Instruction, without specifying any particular Part of it. By the bye, the Christian Teacher should observe that St. Paul refers him to the Old Testament (whatever Opinion some Men may entertain concerning it) for his Materials and Lessons of Instruction. But in the latter Part of the Verse he comes to be more particular, and refers his Disciple to these Books for Instruction in Righteoufnes, maideian the en dinaisσυνή, that Institution of a Christian Man which is of, or concerning Righteousness, as therein may be learnt the Nature and Meaning of this faving Doctrine. If Righteousness be made to mean in this Place only what is called the moral Law, St. Paul must be supposed to prefer either the Matter of this Law, or Manner of its Promulgation, as it stands in the Old Testament, to the clearer and more authoritative Declarations of it in the first Age of the Gospel-Light, which will not, I suppose, be said: Or that Instructions for a good Life might be more profitably learnt from Moses and the Prophets, than from the divine Legislator and Sovereign himself, by whose Commission they acted. * But the Apostle thought * One would think, that the Apossele intended his Censure and Admonition for our Times, as well as his own, in what is said Heb. V. 12, 13. For when for the Time ye ought to be Teachers, ye have need that one teath you again which be the first Principles of the Oracles of God, and are become such as have need of Milk, and not of strong Meat. For every one that useth Milk is unskilful in the Word of Rightcousness; for he is a Babe.

thought himself concerned to admonish the Mi-Chap. II. nisters of Christ to state this Doctrine concerning Righteousness to their Hearers, as Jews as well as Gentiles feemed to be very ignorant in it, and to have imbibed many abfurd Opinions concerning it, which he fo strongly exposes and confutes in his Epiftles. And that they may be the better furnished unto this Work, he advises them to peruse the facred Volume then extant. where they would find a Description of that Perfon, and that Righteousness, which alone could fave Man, and in which therefore it behoved them to be well instructed. By this Time, I think, the Reader may be convinced, that the Meaning of the Text here offered is the true one, as drawn from the plain Sense of the Words themselves, as best agreeing with the Apostle's Design, and the Circumstances of the Church at the Time of his writing this Epistle to Timothy. It appears. from a chief Part of this Apostle's Writings, that the true Doctrine of Righteousness and the Care of teaching it was the uppermost Subject in St. Paul's Thoughts, as the most fatal Danger feemed to threaten the Church for Want of right Notions in this fundamental Article. As human Wisdom was at that Time quite rampant, and Freethinking in its Glory, when * Pharifaical M A Legislators

* Who taught for Doctrines the Commandments of Men, in other Words, made Revelation give way to their own Fancies and Glosses, called by them perhaps natural Religion. The Name of this Sect is derived, according

Chap. II. Legislators and unbelieving * Sadducees were seated in the Chair of Moses, the most nervous Eloquence, the firmest Resolution, and an apostolical Authority were requisite to rescue the Church of God from that darling, bewitching Self-sufficiency, which had taken such fast hold of many shining according to Lightfoot, &c. from Parulo, which betokeneth Separation, for they accounted and pretended themselves more holy than others. Well might such hypocritical Pretenders be addressed in this bitter Style, Ye Serpents, ye Generation of Vipers. They were not so much the Seed of Abraham, which they boasted of, as the Seed of the Serpent. They were not only, as Lightfoot observes, yerea, a Generation, but yevenpeala, an Offspring of Vipers, Serpents sprung from Serpents, all descended from one common Father, the Devil or first Serpent.

* So called from Zadikim, Justi, " putabant se justos " effe." They trusted in their own Righteousness; fo were the eminent Deists of that Age. Their being called Sadducees from Sadoc, a Scholar of Antigonus, rests only upon the Talmudical Authorities cited by Dr. Prideaux from Lightfoot. But in the full Account of the Fewish Sects, given us by that learned Historian, after taking Notice of this Talmudic Story concerning Sadoc, the judicious Doctor adds, " But I must confess that Talmudic Stories are but of very little Credit " with me." And therefore he supposes them to be " named from the Word here mentioned, signifying the "Righteous, inafmuch as they thought, at the Beginning of their becoming a distinct Sect, that by adhering to "the written Word, and by observing that alone, they fulfilled all Righteousness." Nay, the two general Divisions of the Yewish Nation into the Righteous and the Pious, fet down by this Author, is sufficient to shew that they were generally infected with this spiritual Pride, and depended upon no Righteousness but their own, which was the chief Reason of their Excision, and that a Remnant shining Members in it. But there is no Occa- Chap. II. fion to rest the Stress of this Point, the Proof of this Doctrine, upon this Construction of St. Paul's Advice to Timothy, though I think it is the true one. I was willing to use the Apostle's Division. as what answered best to the Method which I intended to observe, and which I thought the best and clearest, thinking at the same Time to Support and defend my Argument, as well as Method, by apostolical Authority. Though it is my present Business rather to shew, that the Establishment and Vindication of the true Doctrine of Righteousness was the principal Design of the Book of Job, yet I thought it not amis to fay fomething concerning the Doctrine itself, which feems to be in as much Danger now, as at any Period of the Church? What hath been faid here, and what will be faid in the following Sheets will, I hope, by the Bleffing of God contribute to the Preservation of it, inasmuch as the Salvation of Mankind depends, I think, Remnant only, viz. the few Humble ones, who laid hold of the Redeemer's Merits, were faved, as had been predicted. A Persuasion that personal Righteousness, exclusive of the Righteousness of Christ, was sufficient to save Men, has been the most artful and successful Device of Satan to frustrate the Means of Grace, and hath been constantly practised by him from the Fall of Man to this very Day; and therefore in our Lord's Conversations with these Sadducees and Pharises this Opinion received a full Condemnation, and extorted (if I may so speak) the most severe Rebukes that ever proceeded out of that gracious Mouth.

were been which with a street was a

Chap. II. upon their having right Conceptions concerning it.

In my Search after the principal Scope of the Book of Job, I thought it right to consider it either as an entire Piece, or as an important Part of the Yewish Canon of Scripture. In the former View it is to looked upon as a Summary of the Patriarchal Religion, exhibiting many fundamental Articles of Faith, as professed by the Worshippers of the true God at that Time, and in that Part of the World, before the Mosaic Dispensation; and one great Reason of its being made a Part of the Jewish Canon (if I may be allowed a Conjecture in this Case) seems to have been, to give Posterity, upon divine Authority, an Account of the universal Religion before Mofes, and that God revealed his Will to Mankind, and gave them his Directions for a Rule of Faith and Practice, that invincible Ignorance might not be pleaded by fuch as would not hear or see, or any just Charge of Partiality be brought against the sovereign Legislator in his Dealings with Men. Hear O Israel, was a Style introduced when the Nations would not hear or obey, and after they had obscured and abused every Communication of the divine Light and Favour. This was done for public Use, not for the Gratification of private Fondness, and the Jews were made the Depository of the Treasures of divine Wisdom, not the sole Proprietors of it. In the present Case they became, more more perhaps than they would willingly have Chap. II. been, Witnesses, that an universal Religion subfifted long before their Establishment, as they could not object against Evidence in their own Custody, which they themselves acknowleged divine, as it was recorded amongst the other lively Oracles of God. To perpetuate this Record may therefore, I humbly think, be affigned as one great Reason for committing it to the Care of the Jewish Church, and ranking it amongst their holy Books. This Scripture is likewise to be considered as an important Part of that facred Volume, to which it was united, and thereby harmonizes and coincides with the general Plan therein expressed. After all my Care, I could find no one Point which feemed to answer my Enquiry more satisfactorily than the Doctrine of Righteousness, as here stated. The Uniformity of the Scripture Plan in general, and the Grandeur of the Design of this Book in particular, is hereby preserved and set forth. When Man had fallen, what was more necessary, more comfortable, than for him to know the Means of his Recovery, and how he might once more be rendered capable of attaining what he had forfeited? If my Conjecture be right and well supported, the History of Job does this by furnishing the Patriarchal, as well as all succeeding Ages, with Instruction in Righteousness.

The next Rule of judging, whereby I guided my present Enquiry, was to select from amongst

the

Chap. If the various noble Uses, which appear in this divine Book, that which was the most extensive as well as beneficial; that which united the various Parts of this rich History, connecting and rendring it confistent throughout. In this Way of Trial * Maimonides's Opinion, as supported by Mercerus and others, feemed to be of the greatest Weight, and to have a fairer Claim, than any yet produced, to our first Notice and Regard, By the express Permission which is given to Satan by God to afflict Job, and the Declaration that God had fet an Hedge about him, Mankind are taught, that good Men, or the fincere Work Thippers of God, are fo guarded by Providence; that neither the Malice of the Devil or his Agents can hurt them, unless God shall be pleased to withdraw his Protection, and to give them up for a short Time, in order to make a more illustrious

<sup>**</sup> Carpzovius in his Introduction, ad Libr. Poetic. Bibl. V. T. pag. 63. After faying, "Longè autem am"plissimè Libri (Job) patet Utilitas, per omnes serè
"Theologiæ Locos se protendens," and enumerating some of them, adds, "Ante omnia verò Locus de Pro"videntia Numinis, sapientissimè Mortalium Vitæ prospicientis, propriam velut, et palmariam hic nactus est
"Sedem, adeò ut ex Judæis Maimonides, ex Christianis
"verò Mercerus hunc præcipuum Libri Scopum existi"marint." Asterwards Carpzevius mentions the Scope and Use, which is here supposed to be the primary and principal Design of this Book, as one of the Uses observable in it. His Words are, "Elenchticum porrò
"Usum contra eos præstat, qui propria nituntur fusitia, "quam planè omnem destruit hic Liber." Which of these Uses is to be preserred to the first Rank, must be determined by the Votes of my Readers.

illustrious Display of his own Glory, and increase Chap. II. the Happiness of his faithful Servants by their final Triumph over evil Spirits and evil Men. What can tend more to encourage the Practice of Piety, and a careful Obedience to the Laws of God, than fuch a Declaration and Assurance? Who would not endeavour to be the Servant of him, who could and would defend all his Family, even the meanest Person in it, from the Injuries of Power, Pride, Malice, and Fraud, by placing an impregnable Guard about his Followers and Dependants? This fagacious Rabbi could not have thought upon a more probable Expedient for taking off the Christian's Eye, from what is above supposed to be the principal Scope of this Book, had it been his real Defign fo to do. A very learned Christian subscribed to his Opinion, and he has the better of any. Writer who hath proposed a more narrow or partial Scheme. But Instruction in Righteousness has a fuperior Claim to our Preference even to this supposed Use, in regard to its Extent and Advantages; the latter feems to be promifed only to good Men, the former is necessary for good and bad; the latter promifes Protection here, the former, Protection here, and everlafting Happiness in a higher and better State. This is the Condition fine quâ non of obtaining immortal Felicity; and if Men, who lived under the former Dispensations of Religion, were to partake with us, or we with them, of the Benefits of the Redeemer, it canChap. II. not without Impiety be supposed, that they should be Strangers to the Doctrine of the Means of Grace and Justification.

Before I was fo far determined in my Choice of the first Drift and Design of this surprizing History, which has exercised the Thoughts of fo many learned and good Men, I may farther acquaint the Reader, how I proceeded in my Enquiry. After peruling some of the eminent Writers and Commentators upon this Book, I refolved to fit down and follow the celebrated Mr. Locke's Advice upon these Occasions. viewing and reviewing, comparing spiritual Things with spiritual, distinguishing where the fense required a Distinction, and borrowing Light where it was wanted from another Lamp, or Part of Scripture, which was fed by the fame Oil, I made the Book the most perfect Comment upon itself, and by such Means have formed that Opinion, which is here humbly offered to the Confideration of the Public. In this View, and upon this Hypothesis, all the pompous and magnificent Display of the divine Power and Wisdom in the several Instances herein produced, where the Historian, Fasta Distis aquando, appears to be every Way divine, are fo many pertinent, unanswerable Arguments to prove the capital Doctrine and Design. The Comparison (if it may be called fuch) between almighty Power and human Weakness, between universal Providence, and the little Imitations of it, in fome fome few limited Acts and scanty Emanations of human Benevolence, between infinite Wisdom so magnificently set forth in the natural World, and the poor Efforts of those intellectual Powers and Abilities, which the Mind of Man, in its greatest Strength and Glory, can boast of, are sufficient to level the most aspiring Imagination, and lay Man prostrate upon that Dust, from whence he was formed, and to cloath him all over with Humility. In this Posture and Condition he will naturally look up for Help, implore *Shaddai to support him, and Him who is mighty to save, by his Righteousness to lift him up and exalt him. Thus every Part is made consistent, and the different Lines all meet in one Centre.

It was natural for me, when I had entered upon this Province, to apply myself to the most knowing and distinguished Personage for the best Information concerning it. This Guide immediately in modest Majesty stepped forth, from whose Appearance I promised myself full Satisfaction, * This Name of God is expressive of his Providence or All-sufficiency, whereby his Creatures in their respective Wants and Capacities are constantly supplied. According to some, it is compounded of the Relative who, and the Verb, or Noun, signifying to suffice, or Sufficiency. But I rather think SHeD, which signifies a Teat, to be the Root, which gives the Idea of communicating that pure and vital Nourishment, which is always slowing from the inexhaustible Fountain of divine Goodness. The multimammiæ Statues and Pictures of the Egyptians and others, which were full of these Teats, were emblematical of this Attribute, though they ascribed this Bounty and Fecundity to Nature, instead of the Author of it.

Chap. II. faction, and expected to find the Case clearly and truly stated by such a Judge as Elibu, and from his Sentence to form a right Judgment of my own. I have therefore in the next Chapter given the Reader a more particular Account of this Part of the History, that he may see more distinctly, as there is Occasion, the particular Passages which support this Hypothesis. But I desire he would take particular Care to add what follows here to what he will find in the Parameters and Apparentians.

phrase and Annotations.

The Charge of Job's justifying himself, as exhibited by his three Friends and Elibu, though feemingly the fame, as expressed by the fame Words, will yet appear to be of a very different Nature, when the Sense of the Words; as meant in each Charge, shall be fixed and diflinguished. The Friends plainly mean, that Fob thought himself not chargeable with the Omission of such Duties, or the Commission of fuch Crimes, as might call upon him the Wrath and Punishment of God: Where they fupposed that no Man could arrive even to such a Degree of Perfection; condemning 70b therefore for being fo far, and in this Respect, righteous in his own Eyes. But Elibu varies the Charge, and mends the Indictment. He does not dispute this Point with Job, and blames the Friends for putting the Cause upon this wrong Issue: They had not faid the Thing that was right. But Elibu proceeds to tell him, that supposing his Plea of Righteousness should be allowed, and that he had not commit.

ted any notorious Sins, and had performed, as Chap. II. far as he was able, the feveral Duties required of him, yet he could not be justified upon any Thing he had done, or could do: There was but One who could justify, and therefore the best Man upon Earth could not without him be justified. To be more particular and express, if possible, fince a right Understanding of this Matter is so material. The Crime of Job, specified in this Book, is that he was just and righteous in his own Eyes: His Friends hereupon try to convince him of Sin, and thereby to bring him to a Confession, as preparatory to an Absolution. But as 70b was not conscious to himself of having wilfully failed in any Point of Duty, and having been particularly careful not to offend, he infifted upon his Innocence, and with much Confidence pleaded, not guilty. His Friends not supposing, from their own Conduct and that of their Neighbours, that any Man could be fo free (as 70b really was) from Stains of this Kind. gave him quite over for a Hypocrite, for pretending to fuch unexampled Righteoufness. But they never pressed the proper Arguments, or urged the fole Terms of Acceptance. The Anger of Elibu was thereupon excited, and after waiting fome Time in vain to hear whether the three Respondents would say the Thing that was right, he takes the Cause into his own Hands, reproving the Friends for paffing a wrong Sentence, and not founding a Judgment upon right PrinChap. II. Principles. * It may here be occasionally remarked, that the three Friends were instructed or perfect in the Doctrine of Righteousness or Justification, otherwise they had not been culpable or censured for neglecting to answer Joh upon the Principles of that Doctrine, as they are in Ch. XXXII. V. 3. and 12. from whence the principal Scope of this History is to be taken: The true Answer given by Elihu, which confounded the three Respondents, and in which Joh acquiesced, will be soon seen.

But although the + Sun of Righteousness be the ruling Luminary in this Firmament or heavenly Volume of the Book of Job, which we are now contemplating, yet are there many other celestial Lights which display the Glory of God, and serve as Lanthorns to those Paths which lead to the Mansions of immortal Bliss. It is very clear, that a very early and wide-spread Heresy, concerning two independent Principles of Good and Evil, is effectually consuted in the Course of this Narration; inasmuch as the Principle of Evil appears therein to be entirely dependent upon, and under the Controul of the only independent Being; that he cannot put any of those Acts

which

* The Text in two Places calls the long Speeches of Job's Friends no Answer, inasmuch as an impertinent or wrong Answer is, properly speaking, no Answer.

† Mal. IV. 2. But unto you that fear my Name shall the Sun of Righteousness arise, with Healing in his Wings. His Righteousness would have with it that healing Quality which St. John says, Rev. XXII. 2, would be given for the Healing of the Nations.

which may most properly be called his own in Chap. II Execution, without the Permission of the one all-directing Power.

When we are endeavouring to state and determine the Merit and Rank of the most material Hypotheses, which have been offered to the Public in this Matter, it would be an inexcusable Omission to pass over in Silence what Mr. Hutchinson and other learned Men, who approve of his Planhave observed and afferted upon this Subject. These faithful and able Interpreters of the inspired Writings are of Opinion, that the Business and Drift of the Book of Job is to display and manifest the superior Power of the true God over the Host of Heaven and Operation of the Airs, as the Idolatry of those Times consisted in the Worship of those Powers, acting under the Direction of the Prince of the Power of the Air; and this Supposition is founded upon the Authority of the Book itself, and many express Passages therein. This Prince, or Satan, as soon as he was permitted to try Job, in order to gain him over, immediately employs the Gods of his fetting up, namely, Fire, Light, or Lightning, and Spirit, or Wind, to make Job sensible of their Power, and terrify him into an Obedience to them, and so of course, to himself through them. The Sabeans, Chaldeans, and other Worshipers of these Powers unite for the same Purpose. But 70b withstood them all with an amazing Firmness and Resolution: Thus by Job's fearing N<sub>2</sub>

Chap. II. the Elabim, God was glorified in his Servant's Victory over Satan and his Instruments of Rebellion. But this End, though certainly intended and effected, is not adequate to that copious Variety of Matters which we find in this comprehensive History: We must therefore look farther for the capital Design. The Cure of this Species of Idolatry was only a temporary, partial, and occasional Design; so that if another may appear, that is of perpetual and universal Use, it must be allowed a Preference in our prefent Enquiry. Whether Instruction in Righteousness hath not these Claims of Superiority, may be trusted to any impartial Judgment.

I am likewise of Opinion, that by Job's Friends being directed to offer Sacrifices for themselves, is intimated that each national Church ought to have an independent Power in such Matters; as these Persons or Friends of 70b were probably the Princes and Patriarchs of their respective Countries and Churches, each having (under God) the fupreme Government of his own national Church. By Fob's being ordered to pray for all, he was, I conceive, a Type of our Saviour, whose mediatorial or facerdotal Office, according to the Order of Melchizedek, feems to be herein plainly fet forth. The pleasing Incense of Prayers and Praises, the Sacrifices of contrite and grateful Hearts, continually ascending in an holy Flame to the Throne of Grace and Mercy from the great Congregations, and retired Closets of the Faithful.

Faithful, from every Part of the Catholic Church Chap. II. militant here on Earth, are presented by our great High-Priest, and rendered successful by his Prayer. Our excellent Liturgy exemplifies the proper Style of Address; whatever we ask, whatever we offer, it must be in the Name of Him, and no other, Ora pro nobis, O Jesu, Hominum Salvator.

Many other spiritual Interpretations may likewife be admitted, as no way inconfiftent with what is here offered, but tending rather to illustrate and support the mediatorial Scheme. Thus 70b may be allowed to be a Type of the Meffiah, in his being tempted by Satan, and in his unexampled Sufferings, and in his Exaltation to a most prosperous State after those Sufferings were determined, in the Contradiction of Sinners against bimself, in his being King, Priest, and Prophet. It is a Recommendation of the holy Writings, instead of any Objection to them, and an interior Proof of their divine Excellency, that one Character is rich enough to afford fuch Plenty of Instruction, and to mark out without Confusion so many important Uses, all uniting and uniformly conspiring to fulfil the great Purpose of Heaven to save Mankind. Such an useful and well suited Variety is a peculiar distinguishing Mark of the Works of God. Confider every Element, you will find fufficient and ample Proof of it. View the Whole, or any Part of this System, and you will see this Mark. of All-fufficiency stamped upon it as an infallible.

N 3

Charac-

Chap. II. Characteristic of its divine Maker. And this is remarkable and visible in that glorious Agent called Light, which was formed fo early to be a mighty Instrument in his Hands for finishing and furnishing the great Theatre of the Universe. The material Light should teach us to form analogous Ideas of the spiritual. And as the many excellent Uses of that are a strong Confirmation of its being the Produce of an almighty Fiat, why should not the Word of God. which is a corresponding or spiritual Light, and the only true Light of human Understanding, be allowed the fame Authority upon the fame Reasons? The Evidence to me is as clear and irrefistible, as that bright Instance is itself from whence this Proof and Illustration arises.

I have been contented to recite the above Opinions, without enlarging upon the Reasons whereby they are supported, as these, I think, will appear to a better Advantage in the Dress of their respective Advocates and Patrons. They will be allowed by me a proper Place; and whether my Opinion should be the Principal or Subordinate, must be submitted. My Concern is only that Justice may be done in a Case of such Importance. My Hypothesis is not set up as a rival Power, or an arrogant Pretender to Fame or Empire, commanding all others to fall down before it, and do it Service. Its begs Leave only to stand in the Row of Observation, and proffer its Service, without assuming the Superiority of Merit; much less would it rise by any Chap.III. unchristian Arts, or the Spoils of Slander and Ruin of Reputations. The chief Authorities taken from the Book itself, by which my Hypothesis is supported, will appear in the following Chapter.

CHAP. III.

Paraphrase and Annotations upon the Part of Elihu.

 $E^{LIHU}$  being the illustrious Guide, by whom I directed my Steps in my present Search, and to whom, as to an Oracle of God, I applyed myself for Light and Truth in my Enquiry, it cannot be improper, before we proceed, to examine his Part of the Conference, to view the Description of the Speaker, and attend to those high Marks of Distinction, which seem to fet him far above the greatest and best Character, that was ever presented in real, or fabled profane Story. Such an Account in this Place, though fhort, will, I think, be the clearest Method of conveying my Observations to the Reader, and be the most proper Introduction to fuch Remarks, as may be made upon this important Part of the History of Job. It appears that Elibu had attended to every thing that had passed on each side, as became a Mo-N 4 derator Chap.III. derator and Judge: He had heard the three Friends, and bad waited till Job bad spoken. Surprizing indeed it may feem to any impartial Reader of this History, that so young a Man should be invested with, much more that he should claim so weighty an Office, which required the highest Abilities, and all the Advantages of a fuperior Character, to execute with Success. Curious Points of the most interesting Nature were to be fettled by this young Arbitrator; the long and fore Diftreffes of the Afflicted were to be at once relieved; various Opinions, most tenaciously and warmly maintained, were to be adjusted to the Satisfaction of each contending Disputant. It may be demanded, it must be the Question of a considering Mind, what Man, especially what young-Man, could be sufficient for fuch Things? Let us go, upon this, and all proper Occasions, to the Oracles of God, for a Solution of our Doubts and Difficulties, laying no farther Stress upon the weak Conjectures of Men than they will appear to deserve, when held before this faithful Touchstone and divine Mirrour of Truth. This extraordinary Person is styled Elibu, the Son of Barachel, the Buzite, of the Kindred of Ram.

Job's three Friends are characterized only by the Region or District which they belonged to, or ruled over; but here is a Description of Parentage and Lineage, too particular to be passed over without a special Examination. It is well known, known, that some of the most eminent Types of Chap.III. our Saviour have had Names affigned them, expressive of their particular Designation. Abrabam, * Melchizedek, Joshua, David, &c. are Inflances of this Kind; and I may, 'tis hoped, without Offence or Presumption suppose, from the acknowleged Interpretation of the descriptive Titles, that a representative Character of the Messiah is herein exhibited, who was God himfelf, the Son of the bleffed God, of the Kindred of Ram, or the holy Line. Types are invested with the Titles of the Person or Office, which they personate and represent; and where the Figure will not come up to the Description, we are directed to the Antitype and Reality for an Explanation. If it be the Defign of the Holy Spirit herein to exhibit, and mark out the most important Part of Christ's Office, That of justifying Mankind by his Righteousness or Uprightness, and to hint the Union of the two Natures in the Person of the future Messiah, it was surely as proper to awaken the Attention of Men by fuch * What Mr. Hutchinson says concerning Melchizedek deserves the Reader's Attention, and may serve to reconcile him to what he will find here concerning Elihu. "The ceremonial Law was int. al. to keep up the Exsection of the Atonement of that great Sacrifice of that real Body, which, by the assumed Body or Appearance of Melchizedek, was emblematically represented and revealed to their Father Abram, as the Offering of it, and our communicating of it, was by Bread and Wine." Essay towards a natural History of the Bible, Pag. 246. third Edit.

Chap.III. fuch descriptive Characters, as upon any other Exhibition of his high Office. Accordingly we find, that upon this descriptive Declaration of this young Man, the Audience became all Attention, all Ear; they bear his Rebukes, and hear his majestick Reasoning, as the Voice of One having Authority; and he keeps them in Suspence by a delicate and proper introductory Discourse, to prepare a better Reception for that Doctrine and Sentence which is opened at the 23d Ver. of the XXXIIId Chap. It was neceffary to establish the Character and Authority he acted by, before he could expect a Submission to his Decision. May it not therefore deserve Confideration, whether the human Nature, as it was afterwards to be united to the divine, was not typified and represented in the Person and Character of Elibu, as that Person, who was to affume our Nature, speaks in That principally in the following Chapters? Upon this Suppofition, and no other that I have met with, the great Things that are faid of Elibu, which will be occasionally observed, as we pass, his Success in ending this Dispute, and the Silence concerning him in the Conclusion, may be accounted for. It is likewise observable, that the decisive Sentence of God and Elibu turns upon the same Point, and the three Friends are cenfured alike by both, after speaking to much the same Purpose. An acute Observer and celebrated Writer of this Age hath been before-hand with me in in this Remark; "It is visible, says he, to Chan.III. " every one who regards the two Speeches of " Elibu and God with the least Attention, that " the Arguments and Doctrines are the fame.*" As 70b had wished, that he could approach the Deity, to speak all his Mind, as a Man, talks with his Neighbour, Elibu presents himself; I am such a one, fays he expressly, to gratify his Desire herein, aptly fetting forth the mediatorial Office. as fulfilled and exemplified in the Incarnation of the Son of God: I was formed out of the Clay, favs he, as thou art; from whence one would guess, that there appeared something more than Man in this excellent Personage, to make such a Declaration necessary to take off too great an Awe of his Presence. Fob being hereby made easy, and gradually and graciously led to bear and love the divine Converse, the Divinity alone continues the Discourse, and, after enlarging upon the fame Topicks, concludes the whole. Unless Elibu be intended to exhibit the Humanity of our Lord, as it was to be united to the second Person of the Essence, and so One with Him who speaks out of the Whirlwind, he will appear to be an infignificant Character, as being passed over without Notice, or any Mention of him in the Conclusion of this Book: But suppoling the two Natures in Christ to be here represented, every Thing is consistent. I shall mention here but one more Reason or Authority, which

* Div. Legation, Chap. 6. Sect. 2.

Chap.III. which feems to favour this Supposition. It is taken from the Words upon which Job founds his fincere Repentance; I have heard of thee by the Hearing of the Ear, but now mine Eye feeth thee. Something more than a metaphorical View feems to be meant in this Passage, and a clearer Sight of the divine Presence, than could be taken by the Eye of the Mind, or the Eye of Faith. The great Favourites of Heaven, the Patriarchs, Prophets, and Friends of God, who were honoured with his extraordinary Commissions and Revelations, which were to be communicated for the Benefit of Mankind, were certainly favoured with personal Exhibitions ofthe Messiah, as he was to appear upon Earth, to strengthen their Faith and Authority: Abraham, Jacob, Moses, Joshua, Ezekiel, &c. afford fufficient Proof of this Point. Why therefore may it not be supposed that 70b, who was one of that celebrated Triumvirate mentioned Ezek. XIV. 14. was vouchsafed such an Exhibition, to support him under such a Trial, and unanswerably convince him, whose Righteousness was to fave him. His Conversion upon this View is as immediate, as that of St. Paul's was upon the Appearance of the Glory of the Lord. Abashed, and confounded at this Vision, and upon comparing his little Self with this glorious Representation, he falls prostrate with this humble Confession, Wherefore I abbor myself, and repent in Dust and Ashes. I shall cite a great Authority thority in the * Margin to prove this Point, and Chap. III. to clear myself from the Imputation of Whim and Singularity. Job had certainly feen God with the Eye of Faith every Day, when he attended him at public Worship, and every Time he had addressed him for Ease and Assistance under his present Calamity: So that his joyful Exclamation of + feeing him now with his Eye must mean a real Representation of the God-Man, and the most fignificant Acts of his Life to his Senses. This I conceive to be the Meaning of Abraham's feeing the Day of Christ, as may be inferred from a Passage in St. Luke, to which our Bible refers us. What is called bis Day by one, is termed by the other, the Things which the People of that Age faw, viz. Our Saviour's Disciples had after his Resurrection, when they joyfully, declared to St. Thomas, We have seen the Lord, St.

John XX. 25.

* The Reader may fee enough in Eusebius to support this Opinion, and may add the other Authorities cited by Bishop Bull to confirm the same: The Passages are too many, and too long to be transcribed. But I shall cite one from Euseb. Demonst. Evang. Lib. I. Ch. V. as belonging to the very Point under Consideration. After mentioning our Saviour's appearing in this Form upon other Occasions, he adds, "Moreover, it is not lawful to say that any but Him, he who was called God and Lord when he appeared to Abraham, was seen by or appeared to Job, after sufficient Discripline;" citing the very Words, and adding a paraphrastical Exposition of them, to prove the same Thing, as hath been already observed in Part in the Preliminary Discourse.

† He had ('tis supposed) as satisfactory a View, as the Chap.III. Saviour's Life and Actions upon Earth, which many Prophets and Kings defired to fee, as they would ferve as a Key to open the full Meaning of the prophetical Writings, and of all Things concerning Himfelf: How he was to be a King. and a very poor Subject; to be universal Monarch, and yet pay Tribute; to be the mighty God, and a most oppressed Man; how the same Person could be Benoni, the Son of Sorrow, and Ben-jamin, Son of the right Hand, in his Exaltation to the right Hand of the Father; to die Himself by the Hands of the vilest Miscreants upon Earth, and yet by fo dying to fave the World, and offer Terms of Salvation to, and pray for those very Miscreants. 70b likewise faw now whose Uprightness he was to rely on, the Conditions of obtaining the Application of it, and was taught by a lively Example to pray for his tormenting Persecutors, and offer Sacrifice for their Preservation, without which they could not be preserved. The Supposition of the Humanity and Divinity of Christ being herein prefigured, as interesting themselves distinctly and conjunctly in fettling the Faith of Job, and of the whole Patriarchal Church through him, in an Affair of the highest Concern to the everlasting Happiness of Mankind, makes every Part of this Conference confiftent with itself, worthy of a divine Appearance and Interpolition. shall fay Nothing more in this Place concerning the Person of Elibu, observing only that Refemblance.

femblance, which appears upon Comparison Chap.III. between the Type and Antitype, between the young, modest Elibu, who patiently heard the impertinent three Friends, whose Age and Studies might seem to command the first Attention, and the Child Jesus, when twelve Years old, sitting in the Midst of the Doctors, first hearing, then asking them Questions. Of each likewise it may truly be said, (which is a farther Confirmation of the Identity of Character) All that heard Him were astonished at his Understanding and Answers. St. Luke II.

The Answers of Elibu come now to be considered.

Job XXXII.

1. So these three

(a) Men ceased to answer Job, be-

(b) cause he was righteous in his own Eyes.

2. Then was kindled the Wrath of E-

(c) libu, the Son of Barachel, the Bu-

(c) zite, of the Kindred of Ram; against Job was his Wrath kindled, because he justified himself

(d) rather than God.

3. Also

Paraphrafe.

1. Job's three Friends left off disputing with him, because he insisted upon his Innocence, and refused to confess that he had been guilty of any notorious and wilful Sin.

2. Hereupon Elibu, a young Person who had been present during the Conference, and who was related to the holy Line, or of the Kindred of Abraham (as the Chaldee Paraphrast expressent it) being descended from Nabor, Abraham's Brother, Gen.

XXII.

Chap.III. 70b XXXII.

- 3. Also against his three Friends was his Wrath kindled, because they had found no Answer, and yet had condemned Fob.
- 4. Now Elibu had waited till 70b had fpoken, because they were elder than he.
- 5. When Elibu faw there was no Anfwer in the Mouth of these three Men, then his Wrath was kindled.
- 6. And Elibu, the Son of Barachel, the Buzite, fwered and faid,

Paraphrase.

XXII. 21. was very angry with 70b for justifying himself in the Prefence and Sight of God.

- 2. Elibu likewise was verv. angry with the three Respondents, because they had condemned 70b upon false Allegations, and had not given him a true and proper Answer *.
- 4. Elibu also waited to hear whether 70b had any thing farther to offer, that he might not feem forward in fpeaking before all his Seniors were heard.
- 5, But finding, after a fuf-6. ficient Pause, no Reply, all of them fitting as Men that knew not what to fay, he was not able to hold his Peace any longer, and addreffes himfelf to the Audience in this Manner: All this while I have confidered mine own

* The LXX add, And they supposed him to be impious, eθενίο αυθοι ειναι ασεβη. This and many other Additions crept into the Text of the LXX Translators from some conjectural Paraphrase. St. Jerom takes no Notice of the Addition.

Job XXXII.

I am young and ye are very old; wherefore I was afraid, and durft not fhew you mine Opinion.

7. I faid, Days fhould fpeak, and Multitude of Years should teach Wisdom.

- 8. But there is a Spirit in Man, and the Inspiration of the Almighty giveth them Understanding.
- Great Men are not always wife; neither do the Aged understand Judgment.
- 10. Therefore I faid, hearken unto me, I will also shew mine Opinion.

II. Be-

Paraphrase. Chap.III. own Youth and the Experience of Age, and thought it proper to defer giving my Opinion, till my Elders were filent.

7. I thought with myfelf, that it became One for young to hear before I fpake, and for learn Wisdom from such Perfons, rather than pretend to teach it.

8. But I find myfelf miftaken here, and that this is not always the Case; it is the Spirit of God in Man, not Age, that enlightens the Understanding, and teacheth Man Wisdom.

9. They are not always the wifeft who are in Authority, and the Teachers of others; nor do old Men, as old Men, always form true Judgments of Things.

10. Therefore I defire that you will hearken to me, that you may judge by my Words and * Knowlege, whether that difcerning Spirit of God,

O which

Chap.III.

Job XXXII.

11. Behold, I waited for your Words, I gave Ear to your Reasons, whilst you fearched out what to fay.

12. Yea, I attended unto you, behold there was none of you that convinced Job, or that answered his Words:

we have fay, found out Wisdom: God thrusteth him down, (e) not Man.

Paraphrase. which enableth Man to pass right Judgments upon Things, be in me.

11, I have patiently heard 12. all your Difcourfes, and given you Time to fift every Part of Job's Defence, and from the Principles of Reason and Religion to support your Opinion; but None of you hath confuted Job, nor faid any thing to the Purpofe, in Answer to his Defence of himself.

13. Left ye should 13. Your passing a wrong Judgment in this Matter must take away all Occasion of Boasting concerning your superior Merit, or pretending to a Discovery of hidden Wifdom. Truth of the Matter is, God himfelf hath humbled Job: Not even the best of Men could do this by a Comparison of Characters, inafmuch as 70b really excells any of those, who pretend to greater Sanctity, and a more exalted Virtue.

14. Now

14. 703's

70b XXXII.

14. Now he hath 14. 70b's Defence indeed not directed bis Words against me, neither will I answer him with your Speeches.

- ed, they answered no more, they left off speaking.
- waited (for they fpake not, but stood still, and answered no more)
- fwer also my Part, I also will fhew mine Opinion.

Paraphrase. Chap. III.

hath not been directed to me, as I have hitherto had no Share in the Conference; but since you have not found or given a true Reply, I will endeavour to give Satisfaction herein, but shall not make use of your Arguments.

15. They were amaz- 15. See, I befeech you all that hear us, how these Disputants are amazed, how filent they are, as if their Speech had forfaken them.

16. When I had 16. You are my Witnesses, that I have waited for Satisfaction; but, after long Expectation, they bring forth Nothing, they are at a stand, and furnished with no farther Answer.

17. I faid, I will an- 17. Which made me refolve within myself, that I would have a share in this Dispute, and shew, as I have told you, what my Opinion is concerning it.

18. For I am full of 18, And indeed it is high Matter, the Spirit 19. Time; for I am so full within O 2 of. Chap.III.

70b XXXII. within me constraineth me.

19. Behold, my Belly is as Wine, which hath no Vent, it is ready to burft, like new Bottles.

I may be refreshed, I will open my Lips, and answer.

pray you, accept any Man's Perfon, neither let me give flattering Titles unto Man.

22. For I know not 22. to give flattering Titles; In so doing my Maker would foon take me away.

Paraphrase. of what is fuggefted to me upon this Topic, that, as Wine having no Vent, I am constrained to utter my Conceptions.

20. I will speak, that 20. I must speak therefore, if it be but to ease myfelf; I will open my Lips, and give Vent to my Thoughts, because, I cannot, with Safety, hold my Peace any longer.

21. Let me not, 1 21. And, I befeech you, let me speak with all Freedom, though I fpeak before Princes and great Men, regarding the Cause, not the Persons.

For I do not understand that Art of foothing Men into a great Opinion of themselves, or, by giving flattering Titles, make them think more highly of themfelves, than they ought to think, left he that made me should prefently stop my Mouth, for not dealing plainly.

ANNOTATIONS.

This Chapter is the Exordium of Elibu's Chap.III. magnificent and splendid Oration, containing a general Address to the Audience, to bespeak their Attention to what he was about to deliver. He declares the Weakness and Impropriety of the Reasonings which had passed upon this Subject, with the Insufficiency of them to answer the Purpose for which they were alledged. He uses therefore great Sharpness in his Reproofs, and treats the three Friends with much Freedom and Plainness of Speech, appearing in a superior Character, and appealing to what he is going to say, for a Proof of his being actuated by the Spirit of God.

(a) Ceased to answer, or from answering. The original Word for answering signifies likewise tormenting, afflicting, and being in great Distress. Both Senses have a Place here; so that the Words signify, they ceased from tormenting fob with vexatious Answers, and reproachful Expostulations. Our blessed Lord himself is characterized by this Word in the LXXth Psalm, and last Verse, where the Humanity complains, I am poor ('1y, afflicted) a Prediction of what was to happen to our Saviour in his State of Humiliation, when he was to be under the severest Persecution of the Jews just before his Passion, according to the Descriptions in this Psalm. By restoring the true Sense of the Word here, the present seeming Chap. III. Tautology of the Pfalmift's Expressions will at the same Time be corrected; I mean by translating the Passage, I am afflicted and needy, instead of poor and needy.

(b) Righteous in his own Eyes. The Reader, I hope, will recollect, whenever these Expressions occur, to interpret and apply them according to their different Sense and Acceptations, as pointed out and distinguished in what has been observed already.

- (c) Elihu Son of Barachel, &c. of the Kindred of Ram. It has been remarked, that whenever any Person is appointed to any important Office, especially such as are typical of our Saviour in any distinguished Part of his Character, the Type has a Name descriptive of his Substitution, and the Representative takes the Title of the Principal: So here Elibu, literally interpreted, is, This Person is my God (Irradiator) Son of the bleffed God (Irradiator) which though applyed to the Type, is literally and really true only of the Antitype, who was and is very God of very God. The Word here used for God is EL, which, as some very learned Men have observed, signifies the Irradiator, or he that irradiates and enlightens, and thereby becomes a Characteristic of the second Person in the Deity, who enlightens every one that cometh into the World, whose material Representative in the natural System is the Sun *.
- * In prophetic Descriptions therefore the Sun seems to stand for the Messiah himself, and the Moon for his Spouse and is by the Greeks called by the fame Name, Chap. III. HAIG, allowing for the Termination; and the Name of our Elibu is by the LXX translated Exis, to shew perhaps their Sense, or the Sense of those Times, concerning the analogical Refemblance between the Principal and substituted Representatives; fo that wherever the Word EL is used for God, the Divinity of the second Person seems in most, if not all Places, to be particularly pointed out. This Observation may help us to a better Interpretation of EL ELaHIM. which is rendered God of Gods, which founds oddly, and may convey unferviceable Ideas: whereas the above Interpretation gives a true. clear, and fatisfactory Sense, expressing that Perfon, who, being one of the Elabim, or Persons who had covenanted to redeem Man, was peculiarly distinguished by the Title of EL, or Irradiator, who was the Divinity afterwards incarnate, to which the Humanity cried Eli, Eli. And this Title is incommunicably peculiar to the Divinity, so as not to be used for any created Being, as the Words Elahim, &c. are used in the Way of Analogy, or in a Sense of Accommo-0.4 dation:

Spouse, the Church, which was literally turned into Blood in the Persecution of the primitive Christians, and whose Light, according to Isaab's Prophecy (Chap. XXX. Ver. 26.) shall be like that of the Sun in her State triumphant, shining for ever and ever with a pure, bright, and unchangeable Splendor.

Placæus, de Typo primo, Pag. 37, tells us, "Sol Typus est Christi, Luna Ecclesia, Stellæ Pasterum."

Chap.III. dation; and is withal peculiarly descriptive of the second Person in the Essence. That we might not be led into a Mistake in this important Point, the Words ADaM and EL are contradistinguished, as ADaM Va LA EL: Jews, Arians, and Socinians, would do well to consider this. Elibu is farther characterized in being related to the Family of Ram, which was undoubtedly designed as an additional Title of Honour, to impress upon all his Hearers an high Opinion of him on Account of the Dignity of his Family, as his own personal Excellency was sufficiently set forth by the others.

Various are the Conjectures of Commentators concerning this great Person named Ram, to whom Elibu is faid to be thus related, as the Extraction from, or collateral Affinity to this Ancestor is supposed to derive an Honour upon this Descendant: I shall not trouble the Reader or myself with a Transcript of these Opinions; I have had Trouble enough in reading them. But I will add a Conjecture of my own, which the Reader may treat with as much Freedom as I use towards those which have already appeared I am apt to think that the Name of Ram fignifying the High, or Highest, became the Name of the holy Line from the first Call and Defignation of Abraham, who was therefore called at first AB-RaM, the Head or Father of that Line, as he was afterwards AB-RaHaM, upon his being declared to be typically the Father of the Faithful,

Faithful, and of many Nations, of all the Gen-Chap.III. tiles who should be faved by the like Faith, or a Belief of, and Trust in that Redeemer who was to come, whom though they might not fee, yet they should believe in. When Religion, or the mediatorial Scheme, feemed to be in great Danger of being loft and confounded by, and after what happened at Babel; the Wisdom and Goodness of God marked out a Family, where the Truth, amongst many Pretenders, might be fafely and infallibly preserved. And as this Family was at that Time the most eminent and honourable of any in the known World, and was to be continued and diffinguished by the peculiar Notice and Bleffings of Heaven, it was proper to fix the Attention and Veneration of Mankind hereupon by a descriptive Title, always to attend the Family and Head of it. The Stem or Line of Shem was now fending forth many Branches from the three Sons of Terab; it was proper therefore to diffinguish the Principal by a Family Title, or Nomen Gentilitium, that it might not be lost in a Multitude of Descendants, and that All of this Extraction might be intitled to the Honour due to it, when they should be able to prove their Descent from, or Alliance to it. It must be remarked, that this was the first Settlement of the holy Line, which " was to be separated by a particular Discipline" (as the learned Dr. Berriman has observed) and from whence the Redeemer in Fulness of Time chap.III was to proceed. St. Matthew therefore begins the Computation here, and makes his first Stage or Period of the Christian History, from Abraham to David. Many have supposed that Abraham was the Ram here mentioned, but they have not founded their Opinion upon the Reasons here given: Whether that Opinion be not strengthened by what is here said, must be left to Consideration. The Arguments already produced by others in Favour of it are not, I think, strong enough to support it.

Admitting the Supposition, the Mention of Elibu's Relation here to Abraham raises his Character, and bespeaks a greater Attention to the Words of a Person, who might be supposed to be learned in all the true religious Learning of his high Ancestor, and to partake of those Blessings, which Heaven poured down upon that Friend and Favourite, especially those most valuable ones of spiritual Wisdom and Instruction: And the scriptural Account of the first Genealogies savour the above Supposition, for Nahor, Abraham's Brother, had by his Wise Uz and Buz; Job was descended from the former, and Elibu, considered as a mere Man, might be supposed to be descended from the latter.

Eusebius and Origen suppose, that Job lived before Moses; and Mr. Selden says, that many Writers suppose him to have lived in the Days of Isaac and Jacob. Bishop Patrick thinks, that his Age or Time of Life was before the Children of Israel came out of Egypt, because he takes Chap.III. no Notice of the Drowning of Pharaob, and other Miracles attending their Deliverance, though he does of the Drowning of the old World, and the Burning of Sodom. But the Bishop in his Preface is not pleased to refer us to the Passages where these two Facts are declared.

The LXX indeed make Uz to be the Country of Elibu, Βεσιτης της Αυσιτιδών χωρας: But this latter Part, as there is no Hebrew for it, can be only paraphrastical, and shew their Sense of the ancient Geography in this Respect. The Land of Uz was certainly near the Chaldeans, as appears from the fudden Irruption and Destruction brought upon Job by those People, between whom probably there was no great Harmony at any Time, as the ancient Chaldeans were descended from the idolatrous Ashur. But as the Text here has particularly fet down the Country of 70b and his Friends for our Notice, a more distinct Consideration of That and the bordering Regions; together with fome Particulars belonging to them, will not, I hope, be impertinent or difagreable.

It is well known, that Affyria was the first great Monarchy, comprehending the Inheritance of the eldest Line of Ham, whose Grandson Nimrod sounded this mighty Kingdom, the Beginning of which was Babel, a pertinent Name

Chap.III. for the Capital of an Empire, founded on the Confusion of facred and civil Justice, and an arbitrary, oppressive Invasion of the Rights of Mankind! Out of this Land went forth Ashur, faith the facred Text, and built Nineveh, &c. fo that Babylon and Nineveb were under the same great Emperor, long united together with that Eastern Part of the World, under the Name of Affyria. As Nimrod was the first Founder, it is fometimes called, with regard to the Countries fubdued and united by him, the Land of Nimrod; and with Regard to the Enlargement and Addition made by Albur, the Land of Allyria, the latter Name frequently comprehending both; of which Kingdom Chaldea was likewise a Part, being expressly faid to be under the King of Babylon. Two of the Name of Ashur are mentioned in the first Genealogies, the abovementioned descended from Ham, and another in the Line of Shem. Whether the latter might not have this Name given him on Account of his Inheritance or Portion lying within the Country called Assyria, or as being reduced under it, and made Part of it by being joined to the Province of Chaldea, is submitted to the Learned. But it feems probable, that the Inheritance of the Posterity of the latter Ashur, descended from Shem, were fettled between the Borders of the holy Land, and the ancient Chaldea, and that 70b and his three Friends were placed in these Regions;

who

who having probably a better Sense of Religion Chap.III. than the idolatrous Race of Ham, as being of a more religious Parentage, were thereupon perpetually haraffed by that oppreffive Generation. who were constantly watching Opportunities of committing Depredations upon them. Not but that the frequently necessary Commerce and Intercourse, which must have been kept up between neighbouring States, might probably introduce amongst the Descendants of the Shemite Asbur some idolatrous Practices, and stain their original Purity, as it stood at the first Separation in the Confusion at Babel. Job seems, in clearing himself from any Imputation of this Kind, to infinuate as though his Friends, who had laid fo much to his Charge falfely, were real Offenders in this Way: Thus his Reply becomes a pertinent and feafonable Reproof, adapted to the Men, and State of Religion at that Time, and in those Parts. I will give the Reader my principal Reason for fixing the Scene of this History as above laid down. It is, I think, fufficiently evident that Job, his three Friends, and the Chaldeans, were contiguous States or Provinces; fo that if we can afcertain one, the others, adjacent or circumjacent, may be determined to Satisfaction. Now, I think, that Eliphaz, the Temanite, must have been the Prince or an Inhabitant of the Land of Teman; probably the former, and for that Reason (as was usual among Princes) took the Name of his

Chap.III. his first renowned * Ancestor. The Country likewife was probably named the Land of Teman from a famous Man of the fame Family: The Metropolis likewise was probably called Timnah from another Descendant of Esau, as amongst the Dukes of Edom, we find Duke Teman, and Duke Timnah, which fufficiently fixes the Country of the Temanites. But what puts this Matter out of all Doubt, I mean, that Teman adjoined to Palestine, is, that Joshua had the Capital Timnath allotted him at his own Request +. By the Situation of this City we may know with fome Degree of Certainty, that the Land of Uz and Buz must have been situated between this Land of Teman and Chaldea. The curious Reader may fee a great deal concerning the original Allotments, relating particularly to this Subject, in Bochart's Phaleg. Lib. II. Chap. IV. with proper Authorities therein cited; from whence I shall produce

* Many Princes took the same Name, though perhaps another was added by Historians to distinguish them, as, Pharaoh, Abimelech, Ptolemy, and here perhaps Eliphaz. The Land of Teman might be a small Sovereignty under the great Duke of Edom; both under the grand Emperor, and within the Affyrian Empire.

† Though many Places were called by this Name, the Principal or Metropolis, affigned to Joshua, must give the truest Account of the Situation of the Land of Teman, as it was distinguished in Job's Time, if we suppose that Job lived at, or near the Time of the Israelites taking Possession of the promised Land. Some of the Towns so named were in Arabia, and these, together with that in Mount Ephraim, might in earlier Times have been immediately under the great Dukes of Edom.

produce a few remarkable Extracts concerning Chap.III. Affyria, wherein these Countries lay. He says, " Assyriis accenset Strabo Babylonios, et Elymæos, et Paratacas, et Gordyaos, et Mesopotamaos, et Arabas, et Syros, ab Ægypto usque ad Pontum, ubi Leucosyrii habitant, qui Dionysio " Affyrii." Bochart observes here, that from Ashur the appellative Assyres, afterwards Assyrii, was derived and given, adding, from a Comment of Eustathius upon Dionysius, " Tam late patuit hoc Nomen, quam late patuit Impe-"rium;" though "Affyria, propriè dicta, Regio est circa Ninum, quæ deinceps Adiabene." Bochart immediately subjoins here some Accounts of this same Adiabene, which are entertaining; then adds Something which tends to establish the Supposition, that the Worship of the Host of Heaven, Sun, Moon, and Stars, was the primitive Idolatry intended to be fet forth and cenfured in the Book of Job, from whence the high Antiquity of that Book may be in * fome Degree inferred. To proceed with Bochart :

* The Book of Wisdom gives us a sufficient Account of the first Idolatry, and at the same Time, I think, surnishes us with a Proof of the high Antiquity of the Book of Job, where this Idolatry is condemned. The Authority of the Book of Wisdom is, I think, superior to that of Vossius, or any late Writer, to fix what was the ancient Idolatry. Surely vain are all Men by Nature, who are ignorant of God, and could not out of the good Things that are seen know him that is; neither by considering the Works, did they acknowlege the Work-Master;

Chap.III. Bochart; "Aliud Affyriæ, propriè dictæ, prif-" cum Nomen est Aturia, vel Atyria." Bochart adds, that he does not approve of Strabo's distinguishing Adiabene from Aturia; yet he owns, that Dionysius makes Adiabene relate only to Ninus, or the Province about Nineveb, which exactly corresponds with the Account above given of the two great Founders of this Empire, viz. that the Kingdom of Babylon, strictly speaking, was founded by Nimrod, that of Affyria, strictly speaking, by Ashur. He adds, that the Chaldee Paraphrasts use Athuria for Assur, and therefore that they are the same Word, the Letters w and n being changed, de More Gentis, which I may call the dialectical Difference; and whoever will attend to the modern Jews Pronunciation of the In will perceive the Difference to be no other, though the Form and Power of the two Letters, as represented and given in but deemed either Fire, or Wind, or the swift Air, or the Circle of the Stars, or the violent Water, or the Lights of Heaven, to be the Gods which govern the World. Wisd.

XIII. 1, 2.

The Lights of the Heavens are, I presume, (as will be farther observed below) comprehended under the Word Urim, as the Heavens collectively, or in general, are under the Word Thummim, or the Host of the Heavens, Exercitus eorum, DNUS: Jehovah therefore styles himself, to reclaim the Sovereignty and absolute Dominion over this Host against these Idolaters, the Lord of Hosts. The Scripture Word for Lights in general, viz. the two great Rulers of Day and Night conjunctly, is URIM, and the Reader will find abundant Evidence of the Worthip of the Host of Heaven or the Heavens in general.

common Alphabets, seem to be widely different. Chap.III.

"Ex eodem Fonte, says Bochart, est Thuras,

"Rex Asspriorum antiquissimus, Zamis (so Semi)

"Filius, qui Nino successisse legitur, et ab Assiris pro Marte coli, et Belus vocari vel Baal."

Here they seem to mix and consound the two Ashurs, and their Descendants, as the Children of Shem in this Empire probably gave way to the others, and were unhappily at last sunk in the same attracting Gulph of Idolatry. I may now be allowed to make some Observations upon the Accounts, and reconcile the sacred and prophane Story. The Scripture Word for Assyria is * TWR, Assur or Ashur: The Analysis of

* To support this Etymology, the first Radical in the Word for Light must be dropped, which, I confess, is an Exception to what is by some called a general Rule in analyfing compound Words. But I am authorized, I think, fo to do in this particular Root by Scripture Authority, as one, if not two Radicals are omitted in the Word for Lamp, Candle, Soul of Man which is the Candle of the Lord, which Word, I humbly conceive, is derived from the Word used for Light, viz. 73 or 713, from 718. Some think that the Word for Lamp does not come from that for Light, and the Lexicons derive it from 713, NUR: But this Supposition serves, I think, to confirm the Etymology here given, the primary Signification of NUR, in Hebrew and Arabic, according to M. de Cal. being Light, a Candle, Lamp, and the Verb to illuminate, Ideas plainly drawn from the original Word Light, 71%. The first radical Letter Aleph feems in this Word NUR to be dropped, which I suppose to be the Case under Consideration, and a passive NUN is prefixed in its Place, to denote, I think, the different Ideas exhibited in the two Words Chap.III. this compound Word is UN Fire, and IN Light.

By the Change of the U and I, de More Gentis, as abovementioned, i. e. according to the Chaldee for Light and Lamp, or Candle: The first is a pure Agent, being vested with active, original Powers; whereas the other is in fome Respect patient or passive, not shining or giving Light till it is enlightened itself, or has received Light from Time to Time. This was, and is, the Cafe of all Lamps, Candles, of all material Light, though shining most gloriously and usefully, in the Temple of God, &c. and is the Case of that spiritual Light, which God has placed and enlightened in the Soul of Man, that Candle of the Lord: The Agent and Patient joined together, Pf. XVIII. 28. fully illustrate this Obfervation, For thou wilt light my Candle, היאר נרי. I am perfuaded that the first Names of Places, as well as Creatures, were fignificative and descriptive, containing the specific Characteristicks of the several Countries and their Inhabitants. The common Derivation of Assyria from Happiness, or to make happy, is no such Distinction, many other Regions being equally intitled to those Characters. But what is here supposed marks them out by a general Propenfity to a particular Kind of Idolatry, which diffinguished them at first, and has marked them out to future Ages. Hence, I think, the Word ASHeR likewise might come to fignify a Grove, or any Tree that is worshipped, or planted to the Glory of some God, as M. de Cal. fays it does, from this Country's being remarkably filled with fuch Places for their idolatrous Worship, as is fully declared in the holy Scriptures.

Or

As I have now laid the Whole before the Reader, he must form his own Judgment, after adding, that the Rule for retaining all the radical Letters in analysing Compounds may not appear upon Examination so general as it is imagined to be. Mr. Hutchinson himself drops a Radical in one Derivation of the Word www, Shemosh, when it is compounded of wand www; and in supposing it to come from wand www, the material Letter, expressive of the Condition of Light receding, and so giving the Idea, is omitted.

or Syriac Dialect, the Word will be Ator or Athor, Chap. III. and by using, or partly pronouncing both, as was probably the Case very often, the Word sounded After or Ashter. The Word therefore by Interpretation signified the Fluxes of Fire and Light, continually issuing forth from the heavenly Bodies.

2. This Name might probably be fixed upon these People, or their general Ancestor, as descriptive of that Disposition or general Propenfity by which they should be particularly distinguished, viz. The Worship of the Agents; Fire and Light, and their Chiefs inthroned in the Heavens, shining forth with the most amiable Splendor, and generally contributing some friendly Assistance towards the Pleasure and Happiness of Man. For this Reason the Capital of the old Chaldea was denominated, from the favourite Idol or Object of Worship, UR, which fignifies both Fire and Light. Hence the Urim and Thummim, I suppose, were put into the High Priest's Breast-plate, to intimate, or rather manifestly declare, that the Powers, attributed by the Idolaters of that Time and Country to the Sun, Moon, Stars, and Heavens, belonged only to the Creator of them, the supreme Lord of Heaven and Earth, of whom they were to ask Counsel, and depend upon in many Cases and Events, without addressing the Host of Heaven. The Words Urim and Thummim are generally rendered Light and Perfection; but the Words furely are plural: Urim did therefore fignify, I think, P 2 thofe Chap.III those Lights above-mentioned, proceeding from, or respected by the heavenly Bodies; Thummin may perhaps describe the two great Lights, or Rulers of the Heavens, collectively.

I would observe here, that the Word Thammuz, which has puzzled fo many Commentators, is manifestly compounded of Dn perfett, and min, whose Exposition is, according to Marius, Fortitude, Strength, and a Girt or Girdle: It fignifies likewise, he says, Combustion, to burn up: So in Chaldee; and, according to others, it signifies its Effects, to exhauft, consume, viz. by drying up the radical Moisture, and so causing natural Bodies to wither away or decay, even by bringing them to Perfection. As many Lexicographers agree in explaining the Idea of this Root, partly by the Word Zona or Cingulum, why may not the annual or Zodiacal Revolution of the Sun be supposed to be given by it? * It is certain, that the other Interpretations are descriptive. Titles of the Sun, who, confidered as to his Operations in, and upon the System of Nature, may be properly styled perfett Strength.

And the Reason why the Month of June was named Thammuz is very clear, as the Sun is then seemingly in its chief Power and Glory. Mr. Selden under the Word Thammuz says, "Mensis

« autem

* The Vau in Thammuz, before the last Letter Zain, shews it is the Præterit. Participle, shewing therefore that the Absolution, Combustion, or Revolution, was actually performed and compleated.

" autem Thammuz est qui Latinis Junius, &c. Chap.III.

" Et Solis in Cancrum Introitus Astronomis Ju-deorum Tekupha Thammuz, i. e. Revolutio

" feu Periodus Thammuz, appellatur."

The idolatrous Custom of weeping annually for Thammuz feems to have been founded upon the supposed annual Determination of the Course or Revolution of the Sun, and thereupon there was a folemn Lamentation for the Loss of that Being, which feemed to enliven and support this whole System. St. Jerom therefore supposes, that the fabulous Story of Adonis or Thammuz (which were the fame) his being killed at this Season (June) took its Rise from hence, "Re-" vixisse autem, et anniversariam ei celebratam " esse Solemnitatem, in quâ, ait ille, plangitur " a Mulieribus quasi mortuus, et postea revi-" viscens canitur atque laudatur." What is here observed concerning Adonis and Thammuz's being the fame, as they appear to be (notwithstanding the Devices of Satan, by lying Fables concerning this Adonis, entirely to cover the Face of Truth) illustrates and confirms what is already said of the Sun's being the emblematical and material Representation of the second Person in the Deity. It has been observed, the Principal was named in the Heb. Scriptures, EL, the Representative in the Heavens, HAID, to point out its Use and Defignation by a Similitude or Identity of Names: So here Adonis, faid to be the same with Thammuz, is one of our bleffed Lord's imperial Titles

Chap.III. in the Old Testament in so many Letters, with only the Letter S added, More Gracorum. We read Ps. CX. 1. Jehovah said to ADoNI, which, compared with Matt. XXII. 43, &c. proves this Point to a Demonstration.

3. The Names of the Heads of Families, Tribes, and Kingdoms, and what is faid of them, are frequently to be understood, and in many Instances capable of being applyed only to the future State of those Kingdoms, Tribes, or Families, which they reprefent.

4. That the Thuras above-mentioned, and Thor, are no other than this Tor or Athor mentioned in Bochart, who was called Baal or Belus; and the Worshippers of the Sun and Moon called their Kings and Queens by the Names of their Gods. Therefore as the Sun was called Baal Samim, the Lord of the Heavens, and the Moon Queen of Heaven, so the King took the Name of Command, Baal or Belus, and the Queen Aftarte, expressive of those Rays of Light, which rule next to, or in the Absence of the Sun, by an imparted Communication of his Virtue and Radiancy: The Light is the fame, though more feeble; but if it be less strong, there is something as engaging, when she enjoys the full Communication of her Lord's Beams, to supply his Place of Supreme Ruler in the heavenly Regions. This Religion, which was endeavoured to be established at Babel, spread itself over the extensive Empire of Assyria, infecting probably all the Parts about the Country of Job. Mr. Chap. III. Hutchinson, I think, tells us, upon the Word Ashteroth, that it is compounded of UV Brightness, and Till Leader, and so to be by Interpretation the bright Leader: May it not be from Brightness, with a feminine Termination, and 718 Light, and so answer 70b's Description of the Moon walking in Brightness? The former Word as a Verb fignifies likewife, according to Kircher, to fave (as Jonah I. 6.) being addressed as a guardian Goddess by the Sidonians. It may likewise be compounded of your, fecit, " quod fignificat (fays Kircher) talem Effectionem, " quâ aliquid existit vel realiter, vel ornate, vel " ut non sit in pristino Statu, quo fuit; Parare, " præparare, aptare, abscindere, frangere, comor primere, contundere, congregare." This, according to fome Philosophers, describes that Action in the Body of the Sun, when the concreted Grains of Air, continually falling from the Extremities of the Heavens into the central Fire of the Sun, after being collected there, are again divided, broken, compressed, resitted, and as it were forged again in fuch a Manner as to be fent forth afresh in Fluxes of Heat and Light, and make that Shemosh, which is faid to rejoice as a Giant to run bis Course: Such an Alteration of Substance so effected answers the Exposition of Kircher, as above given, the דומר, or Fire in the Body of the Sun, having thus fuch an Effect, or being the Cause, " quâ aliquid existic P 4

Chap.III. " existit et realitèr, et ornatè, atque ut non sit in " pristino Statu quo suit." It was Darkness when received, Light when altered and emitted. The other Part of the Word may be derived from no, which signifies to explore, view in Circulation,

5. As it appears, that the Land of Edom or Idumea (wherein was Teman) bordered upon Job's Country, and as the State of Religion in these Parts may be pretty well ascertained from what has been said here, many Matters contained in the Book of Job in general, as well as the Part under Consideration, may hereby, 'ti hoped, be better understood, and this Digression (if it be a Digression) be more easily pardoned.

Before I finish this Note concerning Elibu, I must desire the Reader's Patience to observe, that three eminent Persons of this Name are mentioned in the Scriptures; 1. Our Elibu, 2. One from whom Samuel descended, 3. Elijab, the Prophet, whose Name is written in the same textual Letters with the two former. The Family of Elibu was certainly a most ancient and great Family, continuing for many Generations; and it is reafonable to suppose (nay, we know it to have been customary) that when the Founder of such a Family, or any Head of it, was distinguished by fome high Office or the fignal Favour of Heaven, some One of the Family, generally the Eldest, took the Name of such Founder or Ancestor, to preserve the Memory of him, and the Honour of the Family: And in case One of Chap.III. the same Family should be honoured by Heaven in the same or a like Manner, especially in any representative Part of what was to happen to, and be fulfilled in the Redeemer, in such a Case the Name became descriptive, as it was in Elijab, or the third Elibu here mentioned; for it might be said of him, This is (in Representation) my God, as he was a most eminent Type of our Saviour's Ascension with his Body after his Resurrection.

Give me leave to add, that Elijah's Ascension or Assumption must have been a satisfactory Evidence to rightly disposed or informed Minds, that the Bodies of Men were to go to Heaven as well as their Souls. The original Word here used signifies to take the whole of any Thing; the same Word is used for Enoch's Translation. Moses was perhaps taken away in such a Manner, as his Body could not be found; and his being fo taken away, after Burial, might be intended to shew more particularly, that the Antitype or fecond Moses, whom the Lord God should raise up like unto him, should, in like Manner, i. e. after Death and Burial, be taken away and go into Heaven: And it is worthy Observation, that Moses and Elijab, or Elias, attended the Transfiguration, as they had glorified Bodies to attend that amazing Solemnity, which was a Reprefentation of that Condition, wherein all the Sons of God shall appear after the Re-union of the Soul

Chap.III. and Body, after the general Refurrection. But as I just now faid, in the taking away of Enoch and Elijab, God's People at that Time might, and probably did infer (as this was furely one great End of these Miracles) the Resurrection of the Body, unless they could suppose that only one or two Bodies would inhabit those blessed Regions: But fuch a Supposition would render the Assumption of these Bodies unnecessary, and the Reality no way contribute to their Happiness, if no Creatures like themselves were to inhabit that Place. Elijah might as well have dropped his Body as his Mantle, had not this miraculous Translation been intended to demonstrate, that both Parts of the human Composition would in due Time go together to that Place of Happiness, which is prepared for their Reception, which Place no Beings naturally or morally imperfect can inhabit. We may fairly therefore conclude, that true Believers were enabled to make a proper Application of these wonderful Appearances, and many comfortable Reflections upon these astonishing, but gracious Revelations of the future Purposes of Heaven.

(d) Rather than God. If this Charge against fob be understood in a general Sense, it would not be easy to reconcile the Character given of him in the Beginning of this History to such Arrogancy and impious Folly: In any Sense indeed it must require much Sostening, to make it carry the Appearance of Truth: But the Words have another another authorized Construction, fignifying in Chap.III. fome Translations, in the Presence or Sight of God; The LXX render it here EVAUTION TE KUPIE, and St. Jerom, coram Deo, Queen Elizabeth's Translation, before God. This Interpretation confirms our present Hypothesis, and makes every thing right and confistent, as the Charge against 70b, which provoked Elibu's Wrath against him, appears to be, that he had so high and fixed an Opinion of his own Excellency and Innocency, that he thought himself pure and perfect enough to bear the feverest Scrutiny of his Life and Conduct, even by him who chargeth bis Angels with Folly; and for thinking himself pure in his Presence, though the very Patterns of Perfection, the Heavens, are declared by him not to be fo. Here then the true Charge against Fob is opened, and the Indictment laid, whereupon his Trial proceeds. He thought he needed no Repentance, no Atonement; and however Sinners, i. e. fuch as had been guilty of notorious Violations of the Law, might want imputed Righteousness, yet he had enough of his own, and could justify himself and the general Conduct of his Life, even before God himfelf.

(e) Not Man. The Hebrew Language hath three Words whereby it expresses Man, ISH, ENOSH, ADaM; the first properly denotes Man in his best Estate, and is therefore one of our Saviour's Titles, as Glassius has observed; the second Man after bis Fall, under Distresses,

Infirmities,

Chap.III. Infirmities, and Sorrows, though it be sometimes used for a superior or the highest Order, when appearing in a human Form, and executing a delegated Authority; the third is Adam, in refpect of the Matter or Complexion which diffinguishes the human Frame, of the Earth, earthly. As the Word ISH is used here, and Enosh above for the three Men, an Intimation feems to be intended, that even the best Man then upon Earth could not condemn Job by a Comparison of personal Virtue, and a more strict and careful Observance of his Duty, much less could those Enoshim, who were in a lower, or more finful State and Condition. The Truth of the Matter was. God had humbled him to convince him; and Mankind through him, that the best Man upon Earth wanted the Affistance of his Redeemer, though no mere Man (who cannot fee the inward Enlargement or Swelling of the Heart) could find any thing faulty or censurable in the Conduct and Character of 70b.

70b XXXIII.

- (a) 1. Wherefore 70b, I pray thee, hear my Speeches, and hearken to all my Words.
  - have opened my Mouth,

Paraphrase,

- 1. And now, 70b, I shall address myself more particularly to thee, and expect that thou wilt give an attentive Ear to all I have to fav.
- 2. Behold, now I 2. You have heard the Beginning of my Speech;

Job XXXIII.

Mouth, my Tongue hath fpoken in my Mouth.

3. My Words shall (b) be of the Uprightness of my Heart, and my Lips shall utter Knowlege clearly.

4. The Spirit of (c) God hath made me, and the Breath of the Almighty bath given me Life.

5. If thou can'ft anfwer me, fet thy Words in Order before me, stand up.

6. Behold, I am ac-

(d) cording to thy Wish in God's Stead; I also am formed out of the Clay.

7. Be-

Paraphrase. Chap.III. or Opening of my Mouth, and what my Tongue hath already uttered.

3. The Words, which I am now about to deliver with regard to thee and thy Caufe, will be the pure Dictates of an upright Heart and clear Head, not capable of deceiving or puzzling thee, that thou mayest not sluctuate any longer in a State of Uncertainty.

4. For the Holy Ghost is, in a peculiar Manner, my Father or Former, and that Person of the Elabim, who is distinguished by the Title of the Breath or Spirit of God, is the Author of my Life.

5. If thou art able to anfwer what I shall urge against thee, set they Forces in Order, and stand up to oppose me.

defired, Chap. IX. 33.
XIII. 3. that fomebody would appear in God's Stead, to reason the Case with thee: Behold,

134

Chap.III.

Job XXXIII.

7. Behold, my Terrorshall not make thee asraid, neither shall my Hand be heavy upon thee.

8. Surely thou haft fpoken in mine Hearing, and I have heard the Voice of thy Words, faying,

(e) 9.1 am clean without Transgreffion, I am innocent; neither is there Iniquity in me.

10. Be-

Paraphrase. hold, thou hast thy Wish, I am the Man that appears for him, having an human Body as thou hast.

- 7. Thou feest no dreadful Majesty in me to affright thee, nor any Power ready to oppress thee.
  - 8. I will not accuse thee at Random, or charge with supposed thee Crimes, without Proof. upon bare Surmife only, as thy three Friends have done: what myself with mine own Ears have heard thee utter shall be the fure and undeniable Foundation of my Charge against thee: Thou hast said expressly, and more than once, in my Hearing, Chap. X. 7. XIII. 23. XVI. 17, &c. XXXI,
- 9. I am pure, and without Fault or Sin in my Heart and Actions, both towards God and towards Man.

10. Thou

70b XXXIII.

eth Occasions against me, he counteth me for his Enemy.

11. He putteth my Feet in the Stocks, he marketh all my Paths.

(f) thou art not just: I will answer thee, that God is greater than Man.

Paraphrase.

10. Behold he find- 10. Thou hast likewise asferted, God hath, like angry Men, fought out for Pretences and Occasions of hurting and punishing me, and for flight Matters declares himself my Enemy.

> 11. He lays me under the straitest Pressures, fo that I cannot stir, and watches me fo narrowly, that the least Slip cannot escape his Notice, and is chastised with the severest Vengeance.

12. Behold, in this 12. Consider, whether thou art that upright Perfon thou pretendest to be, when thou thus finnest with thy Lips, and chargest God foolishly and falsely. There is no Comparison between God and Man: God alone is just and righteous, and his Ways equal; Thou, and all Men are Sinners, whose Ways are unequal, and there is not one clean without Transgression. Thou hast therefore passed strive against him? For he giveth not Account of any of his Matters.

13. Why

Chap.III.

70b XXXIII.

- 14. For God speak- 14. Not that God envies eth once, yea twice, yet Man perceiveth it not.
- a Vision of the Night, when deep Sleep falleth upon Men, in Slumberings upon the Bed:

16. Then he openeth the Ears of Men, and fealeth their Instruction;

17. That

Paraphrase. passed a wrong Judg-ment upon thy Maker and thyself, and art thereby felf-convicted of Arrogance and Impiety.

- 13. Why dost thou 13. Why dost thou prefume to contend with God, and find fault with the Ways of Providence? His Actions are not to be cenfured, cannot be rightly judged of by Man, as they are founded upon Principles, which are too deep for human Capacities to fathom.
  - Knowlege to us, for he teaches us various Ways, and repeats his, Instructions, though too often in vain.
- 15. In a Dream, in 15, Even at a Time when 16. the Senses, those Inlets of Knowlege and Instruction, seem to be quite stopped and shut close by deep Sleep, God imprints the most useful Images upon the Mind by fuch Reprefentations, as have a stronger Influence, and work

Chap.III.

70b XXXIII.

17. That he may from bis Purpose,

(g) and hide Pride from Man.

18. He keepeth back his Soul from

(h) the Pit, and his Life from perishing by the Sword.

upon his Bed, and the Multitude of his Bones with strong Pain;

20. So that his Life abhorreth Bread. and his Soul dainty Meat.

21. His Flesh is confumed away, that it cannot be feen. and his Bones, that were not seen, stick out.

22. Yea, his Soul draweth near unto the Grave, and his Life to the Destroyers. 23. If of Instruction. 17, And this is frequently withdraw Man 18. done, to diffuade a Pro-

work more effectually than the usual Methods

Paraphrase.

fecution of some ambitious Schemes, which would end in the Ruin of the proud Contriver.

19. He is chastned 19 Another Way, and a also with Pain 22. more common one. taken by God to check a wicked Course, is by fending Sickness and Diseases; and, if this Admonition be not attended to at first, by increasing them more and more, till the Offender is brought to the most extreme Misery and Danger, and within the very Jaws of Death and everlasting Destruction.

70b XXXIII. Chap.III.

> (i) Messenger with him, an Interpreter, One among a Thoufand. to shew * unto Man his Uprightness;

24. Then he is gra- 24. cious unto him, and faith, Deliver him from going down to the Pit, I have found a Ranfom. + be fresher than a Child's; he shall return to the Days of his Youth.

26. Hel

Paraphrase.

-23. If there be a 23. But even in a Case feemingly fo desperate, when Man is upon the very Brink of Death and Ruin, if the Angel-Mediator, or great Redeemer, flyled by way of Eminence One among a Thousand, shall appear and intercede in his behalf, by fupplying him, out of the inexhaustible Fund of his own Uprightness, what is wanting (and fome-thing must be always wanting) in that of Man;

Then God withdraws the uplifted Hand of Vengeance, and fays to the Executioners of his Wrath, Save the Man from perishing, for my Justice is fatisfied, and the Sinner's Soul is redeemed by the Atonement made by the Mestiah in his behalf.

25. His Flesh shall 25. He may perhaps recover his Beauty and Strength here, but will certainly be young again at the Refurrec-

tion

* Le Adam, in Usum Hominis, says Merc. † Heb. Cover, or Coverer.

70b XXXIII.

unto * God, and he will be favourable unto him, and he shall see his Face with Joy; for he will render unto&Man Righteoufness.

any fay I have finned, and perverted that which was right, and it profited me not;

28. He will deliver his Soul from going into the Pit, and his Life shall see the Light.

Chap.III. Paraphrase. tion of the Body, and appear in full Bloom and Vigour.

26. He shall pray 26. Upon his Prayer, or Confession of his Sins to God, putting his Trust in the Redeemer, he will be restored to the Favour of God, and he shall enjoy the beatific Vision; and this God or God-Man, whom he shall see. will render unto Man, or apply for the Use of Man, bis own, that is, the Righteousness of God.

27. He looketh up- 27, But this Mercy and Faon Men, and if 28. your is granted only to fuch as acknowlege their Guilt, and duly apply for Pardon through the Redeemer: Such shall not only be kept from going down to the Pit of Destruction, but shall be taken out of the dark Chambers of the Grave, to be placed in the Regions of Light, and be perpetually happy in the Presence of the Light of Light. Q-2 29. Take

29. Lo,

§ Le Enosh.

70b XXXIII.

* God oftentimes with Man.

30. To bring back his Soul from the Pit, to be enlightned with the Light of the Living.

31. Mark well, O 31 70b, hearken unto me, hold thy peace, and I will speak.

22. If thou hast any thing to fay, anfwer me; speak, for I defire to justify thee:

33. If

Paraphrase.

29. Lo, all these 29, Take particular No-Things worketh 30. tice of these merciful Methods of Providence, made use of for the Benefit of Mankind, to reclaim and correct Sinners, and at last to restore them to the Favour of God and eternal Happiness: And Repentance will prevail at last, and raise the Sinner from Bed of Corruption, to be enlightened, and rejoice in those Mansions, where Death and Darkness are entirely excluded, where there is Nothing but Life and Light, the Light of the living Ones, and the Light of Jerusalem which is above.

Attend closely to what 33. is faid upon this capital. interesting Subject, as it is an Answer to all thy Doubts and Complaints. If thou can'ft make any just Objections to the Doctrine here laid down and afferted, let me hear them :

33. If not, heaken unto me; hold thy peace, and I shall teach thee Wisdom.

Paraphrase. Chap.III. them; for I should be glad if thou couldst prove thyself so righteous, as to need no Assistance: If not, which from thy Silence I guess to be thy Case, hearken attentively to me, and I will teach thee more Wisdom and Religion.

ANNOTATIONS.

(a) After a general Address to 70b's three Friends, and the rest of the Audience then prefent, Elibu, the young Moderator, who fpeaks and is obeyed as One having Authority, now applies himself, and directs his Speech, to Job in particular. He charges him with arrogating to himself unspotted Innocence, a Conduct unblameable without Sin, and an independent Perfection. These Claims offended Elibu, raising his Anger and Displeasure against Job, and he quotes Job himself for the Truth of what he objects to him. This gave Elibu Occasion to explain, publish, and inculcate the Doctrine of Righteousness, which we find at the 23d and following Verses. The Declaration there exhibited points out the principal Design of this Book.

(b) Unless Elibu had been confessedly and undeniably some extraordinary Person, or known to represent such a One, Job, and his three Friends

 $Q_3$

would

Chap.III would fearce have been filent, when so young a Man was talking of himself in so high a Strain; especially when he was reproving Job for ascribing too much to himself, and for glorying in his superior Knowlege, and consummate Integrity: Yet, we see, this Personage lays a Claim, without Interruption or Contradiction, to a clear, well-furnished Head, and a sincere, untainted Heart, from Job and his Friends, who were, one would think, sufficiently provoked (had there been the least Room for it) to retaliate his free and severe Censure.

(c) The Spirit of God. In other Places where this Phrase is used, the original Word for God is generally Elabim or Jebovah, but in this Place EL; which feems to be (as above observed) the personal, characteristic Distinction of the fecond Person in the Trinity, when described as acting feparately or principally in the Oeconomy of the Redemption: So that RUaCH EL, Spirit of the Lord, in this Place, feems to point out particularly the Holy Spirit, or third Person, principally acting in forming the Humanity of EL, or the Human Nature of the Messiah. He is called the Spirit of the Elabim, when acting, though principally, yet conjunctly, with the Others, as in the Creation of the World, Inspiration of the Prophets, &c. But in forming the Humanity of Christ, there was Occasion for marking that peculiar Act by an appropriating Expression, to design that Person, viz. the the Holy Spirit, whose peculiar Office it was to Chap.III. act in this Instance, as well as Him, viz. EL, who was the Object and Subject of this Operation. The Word translated bath given me Life, should, I think, by the in prefixed, be rendered shall enliven me, or give me Life: Accordingly Pagninus's Version is vivisicalit. Upon the whole, this Verse, compared with the Account of our Saviour's Conception and Birth, is a most exact, clear, and prophetic Description how Christ was to be manifested in the Flesh: To whom else can these Words belong, if not to Him, who was conceived of the Holy Ghost?

(d) Behold I am, &c. So our English Tranflation; and the Translators must, we may judge from it, be fully apprized of the spiritual Meaning and Character, which this Description points to. But the literal Rendring of the Original is thus, Behold, I am as thy Mouth to God, EL, I also am taken from the Clay, or, formed out of the Clay; Behold, my Terror shall not make thee afraid, my Burthen shall not be heavy upon thee: Could the Mediatorial, Intercessorial Office of our Saviour be more emphatically, peculiarly expressed? Who besides is our Mouth, or prevailing Orator in our behalf? By appearing in the Flesh, and taking upon him our Nature, here fignified and declared in the Words formed out of the Clay, the otherwise unsupportable Terror of the divine Majesty and Splendor was softened and done away, and a Way opened again for Man to con-

Q'4

Chap.III. verse once more with his Maker, without being terrified with such an Appearance. Was not this the real Case (as here represented) when the Divinity inhabited the Humanity, and conversed with Mankind upon Earth? The Word for formed, may be rendered cut out, decerptus, says Schultens, a Piece selected out for the Potter's Use. But it was, though Clay, the choicest Piece of Clay, and the most curiously, perfectly worked (understood of our Saviour's Body) that was ever formed into the human Shape. This Construction to me is not only probable, but necessary to support the Sense, the Consistency, and the Dignity of the Scriptures in this Passage. must evidently appear by the contrary Supposition. * Had Elibu only intended to affure 70b, that

* From what is here and elsewhere said of Elibu, He may perhaps be supposed to be an assumed Character or personal Exhibition of the God-Man, as he was to appear, or God manifest in the Flesh, which learned Men have afferted Melchizedek to have been. For my own part, I am afraid to call him a mere Man; but would not advance any new Opinion upon my own Authority: If, upon farther Examination, learned Believers may countenance fuch a Supposition, I shall be ready to come into an Interpretation, which will render this Character perfectly uniform and confiftent throughout. In favour of it I beg leave to suggest, that by Elihu's not being mentioned originally in the IId Chap, among the Friends of Job, and by his appearing all at once in the Capacity of a Moderator and Judge, upon the first Mention of him, and just when the Knot required and deserved a divine Person to untie it, He seems to challenge an Authority more than Human. I would add, that, upon that he was a Man as He was, and Nothing more Chap. III. really or representatively, what Force would this have given to his Speech, "Hearken to me, because I am just such a Mortal as thou art." He had no great Occasion to tell Job that he was a Man, which was to be known by his outward Senses, had not his Appearance raised a Doubt, whether he was not something more than Man in human Shape. Any modern Orator in the Pulpit, or at the Bar, who should introduce his Discourse by affuring his Audience, that he was a mere Man, and came into the World as they and other Men do, in order to gain Credit and Authority, instead this Supposition, the Word Buzite must not be understood as a Nomen Gentilitium, but a descriptive Characteristic predicted of our Saviour, Ps. XXII. 7, derived from a Verb, which fignifies to despise, or the Noun, fignifying Contempt. Upon reviewing and comparing two or three Paffages in Scripture, I am the more confirmed in this Opinion of Elibu. After being called HaBUZI, XXXII. 6. He calls himself TZaYIR TZaYIR ANI Le IoMIM, I am small or little in respect of Days (in our Translation young) which was literally true of our Saviour, who was cut off in his Prime. But both these Characteristicks of our Lord occur together in Ps. CXIX. 141. English Translation, I am small and despised: The Hebrew gives the very same Ideas from the same Roots, the same Letters for small, TZaYIR, and near the fame with BUZI, the Radix being the very same. Bishop Hare has observed the near Resemblance between many Passages in Fob and the Book of Pfalms; fo that where this happens, they ferve as the best Comment upon each other. If therefore this Description of the Pfalmist be peculiarly applicable to our Lord in the lowest State of his Humiliation, as was That of Ps. XXII. 7, we have in them corroborating Proofs of the above-mentioned Hypothesis.

Chap.III: instead of attaining those Ends, would undoubtedly meet with Laughter and Contempt. The latter Part of the 7th Verse, Neither shall my Hand be beavy upon thee, exactly corresponds with the eventual Fact, as stated by our Lord himself, My Yoke is easy, and my Burden is light. Schultens fays, that the Word rendered Hand fignifies properly Clitellæ, Sarcina: Clitellæ are Dorsers or Pannells put upon Carriage-Horses. Sarcina the Pack or Load placed thereon. The Word Caph fignifies Vola, or the Hollow of the Hand when in a grasping Attitude, and, from its Refemblance to it, the Hebrew Letter is so named: and it is likewise, in this Book, used for Hemisphere, as descriptive of that particular Incurvation: The Word Ecep therefore, derived from this Noun, very properly signifies a Burden, as well as Hand, though the Hebrew and English Word, when understood of the divine Laws, are used metaphorically.

(e) From Verse 9th to 12th is contained the Charge against 30b, as well as the probable prevailing Opinion of the Deists of that Age, viz. That Man could perform his whole Duty, and be pure of Himself, and by his own Strength, without the Assistance of any Redeemer or Purisher. This Charge is collected and supported from the preceding Speeches of 30b, Chap. XIII. 24—26. XIV. 15—17. The Word translated clean in the 9th Verse sully expresses the great Crime of 30b, or spiritual Pride at its Height:

The

The leading Idea of it must be taken from the Chap.III. Thing which it is applyed to, viz. the purest Oil, as Bolducius observes, "Maximam, et cum Can"dore conjunctam Munditiem importat Nomen
"Zac, quo Oleum vocatur purissimum, cui Nibil
"Faccis vel Labis est admixtum." Exod. XXVII.
20. Job claimed an unsullied Virtue, such as might appear in the Presence of God, without any Alloy or Mixture of Impurity:

It may be faid, that Job in other Places has talked in another Strain, which feems to mitigate. if not discharge, the Imputation of so high a Crime; particularly Job faith, Chap. VII. 20. I have finned, what shall I do unto thee, O thou Preserver of Men? &c. But the Reader must be put in mind here, that the original Word translated sinned is used in Leviticus for Sins of Error and Infirmity; which makes it probable, that fuch were here meant under this Form of Confession: Original Sin may likewise be here confessed and alluded to, if the Words Preserver of Men be rendered literally Preserver of Adam, or Mankind in Him, as the Demonstrative He before Adam requires. Then the Address and Invocation of God by this Attribute will be pertinent, and have its due Weight, "O Thou, " who sparedst Adam after his Transgression, or " all Mankind fince who were involved in his Guilt, or have been guilty only of flight Errors, upon a right Application only and duly plead-66 ing their Pardon, what dost thou require of " me

Chap. III. " me, to obtain Forgiveness, that thy Judgments may be removed from me, fince this Kind of "Guilt alone can be laid to my Charge?" Had great and heinous Sins been comprehended under the Expression I have finned, "Infinitely good "Creator" might have been a more proper Style of Address, than that of Preserver of Mankind, in the general Latitude of that Phrase; especially considering how fresh the Memory of the whole World's Destruction, except eight Persons, for such Crimes, must have been in those Days. But it may be farther urged, that the Application for Pardon in the last Verse of this Chapter amounts to a full Confession of actual, personal Guilt; which is farther evidenced in Chap. IX. 20. where Job says, If I justify myself, mine own Mouth shall condemn me; if I fay I am perfect, it shall also prove me perverse. What Schultens observes upon the Passage cited from Chap. VII. may be fairly applyed as well to the 20th Ver. of the IXth Chap. as the 21st of the VIIth, viz. that Job was only putting a Case, Reatu posito, sed non concesso, since it is undeniably plain, that he did not allow he was really guilty of any actual, mortal Sin or Transgression, from what he afterwards strenuously infifts upon Chap. X. Thou knowest that I am not wicked. By faying this he, without all Doubt, retracts whatever Confession the Smart of his Afflictions, and his Friends Reproaches or Perfuafions might before have extorted from him, ffill flill maintaining his Integrity or indefective Obe-Chap. III. dience. If any Doubt may yet remain, the Charge here exhibited by Elibu must be sufficient to remove it, and six the special Crime of Job. Upon Job's saying, that if he justified bimself, bis own Mouth would condemn bim, I shall offer a conjectural Explication to the Reader, which he is at Liberty to admit or reject. By that Expression may, I conceive, be meant that general Confession of Sin, which was offered by Job as officiating Priest at the Time of Sacrifice, in the Behalf of All then assembled, as he was the Mouth of the Congregation; or at most, his Use of the general Form of Confession used at that Time may hereby be understood.

Thus have we feen the Case opened, and fairly stated against Job by a real Friend, an upright and knowing, I had almost faid, considering his Character, all-knowing Judge. A Confidence in his own Merit and Righteousness was the Accusation brought against Job, who seemed to think, in the Course of his Punishment, that a Confession of some Peccadillos, or smaller Transgressions, might be sufficient to pacify the Wrath of God, and take off his afflicting Hand, when the Root of Bitterness remained behind, and could not be carried off by the Medicines hitherto applyed, sharp as they were. He could plead a fettled, habitual Course of Piety and Virtue, a Series of great and good Actions, without doing any wilful Injury or Injustice to any Man; but herein

Chap.III. herein was laid the Foundation of his Guile, and herein confifts the peculiar Danger of good Men. Self-Idolatry, the most dangerous of any, was his great Offence, which he was not aware of, when by his farcastical Question; * Did I fee the Moon walking in Brightness, &c. he feems to reproach the neighbouring Nations with this odious, grievous Sin, and at the fame Time value himself upon his Innocence in this Refpect. But it now appears, that he was likewise an Idolater, and worshipped Self. Spiritual Pride and Self-fufficiency lurked at the Bottom, and were with Difficulty brought forth to view. It is a long Time before this Malady, this AUTAPHEIA, will discover itself, or bear touching, which generally renders it incurable.

Is not this the Case of too many amongst us, who in one Instance reason like Job, though they live like him in very sew? Do I fall down, saith such a one, before a Piece of Paint or Stone? Do I pray to a Saint for Protection or Pardon, as the neighbouring Nations do? But dost not Thou, O vain Man, worship Thyself, or trust in thy own Powers and poor Performances, without imploring the Help of a Redeemer, or thinking thou needest any Assistant? And were not the ancient Adorers of the Sun and Moon,

are

* See what Boldicius fays upon this Matter, Vol. II. Pag. 461. and the Practice even of their People before they enter the greater Church, which, by his own Account, feems to come near the Adoration paid by the Jews to Thammuz.

are not the Image-Worshippers of modern Rome, Chap.III. more excusable and rational in their Worship than the Self-Idolater? The former of these worshipped the visible and immediate Powers, which feemed to give Life and support it; Vos. o clarissima mundi Lumina, must have been a general and natural Invocation, had not the fuperior, infallible Light of Revelation directed Man to the only adorable Being. The latter may likewife boast, that their Devotion is paid to a beautiful Piece of human Art, representing some Person, who was in his Time an Honour to human Nature, and the Glory of the Christian Name: Whereas the adored Object of the Self-Idolater is the Image of God made ugly by Guilt, and defaced by Pride.

(f) Just. To be just, is to give to all Perfons respectively what is due to them. But it appears from the Charge of Elibu, consisting of what He himself was an Eye and Ear-witness of, that Job not only wronged God by ascribing That Righteousness to himself, which was in no Man whatever, but accusing his Maker and Redeemer of Cruelty, and undeserved Institutions of the severest Punishments. He likewise gave himself more than was ever due to any Man, a Life without Sin, without Spot. Upon these Grounds, well might Elibu say to him, in the strictest Sense, Thou art not just, however thou mayest pretend to justify thyself.

Chap.III. (g) Hide Pride. Elibu feems here to allude to one Method, which had been used to reclaim Job, in order to cure or cover that Sort of Pride or Self-sufficiency, which was his peculiar Crime. He had complained of his being scared with Dreams, and terrified through Visions, which were, in all probability, mercifully prefented to him, to effect the Purpose, which in this Place is particularly mentioned, that, upon Job's humbling himself, God might cover or pardon his former Elation of Mind, according to Schultens's Version.

(h) The Pit. It may not be amiss to throw together in this Place what is to be observed, in order to give the Reader the true and full Meaning of this Word. The Hebrew Word, now, when a Noun, is rendered Fovea, a Pit, as in this Place, and below. When a Verb, it signifies, to corrupt, destroy, &c. quite cast down, so as to be trampled upon and over, as the Street itself is; and non, to add Fuel to a Fire, to collect fire Coals, or set Coals on fire, metaphorically to consume, or lay level, as Fire does, so Prostration, and Consternation. Avenarius.

This Verb is used for the Destruction of Sodom by Fire, Gen. XVIII. and this seems to be the leading Idea, though it be used in a secondary Sense for Corruption in general, or the Dissolution of Bodies by other Causes, and, more remotely, the Grave, or Place where Bodies are corrupted and dissolved. Where the leading Idea gives the best

best Sense, That will demand our Choice, and Chap. IIInecessarily directs us (as in Ver. 24—28.) to that State of Perdition and Torment, where Fire is the Instrument of divine Wrath, and Fuel is perpetually adding to it. Where it is used to signify Corruption, or Perdition by Dissolution, the Effect is generally put for the Cause, as when it is said, All the Earth hath corrupted its Ways,
i. e. the Inhabitants of the Earth had, by Sin, made themselves, and all they had, justly obnoxious to Destruction; they were corrupted, destroyed, and all their Inheritance, or the Bodies upon Earth were dissolved.

Going into the Pit, at Ver. 28. fignifies paffing over (מעבר, a Transitu) or entering upon, for a Passage, any dividing Limits, as a River, or Sea, from one Shore or Land to another; and fo here feems to fignify croffing the Boundary, placed between the Righteous and Wicked in a future State, between whom an impassable Gulph is fixed. The great Coverer will keep fuch as he shall shelter and protect, upon the happy Shore, and shall not suffer them to be carried away and transported to the Coalt of Misery, or the Habitations of the Wicked which lie within it. In short, the Pit of the Grave is the Pit of Dissolution, where all Bodies are corrupted; the bottomless Pit is the place of Execution, or everlasting Burnings, prepared for the Devil and his Agents.

Chap.III. (i) If there be a Messenger, &c. Hitherton Elibu hath stated the Case of Job, and in so impartial a Manner, that he could make no Reply; though he was very quick in giving an Answer to the three Friends, and their Objections. Two Methods, made use of by God to instruct and reform Man, have been just now particularly specified, as they had been tried upon Job in the Course of his Sufferings: The first, Dreams and Visions, with the Design expressed, to bide Pride from him, from Man, the Text fays, that the Application might be general, and what now was Job's particular Case might serve as a general Lesson of Instruction for Mankind, or all Men under the same Circumstances. No one, I think, can suppose that Job, to whom this Difcourse is particularly directed, was not within the Speaker's View. He was the principal Object, and Instrument of conveying to Mankind the Doctrine of Humility, and the Necessity of depending upon a Redeemer. The fecond Method above-mentioned, viz. That of Diseases and Pains, &c. had been likewise tried upon Job, in the severest Manner, with the same gracious Intention: His bodily Substance was reduced to Skin and Bone, but all without Success: As he was now upon the Brink of Destruction, without feeming to be fenfible of his Offence or Danger, and must foon, had he continued obstinate and impenitent, have fallen into both Pits, the Place of Corruption, and the Place of Execution, in this this dreadful Extremity Elibu directs him, and Chap. IIIall Men in fuch Circumstances, to the only Affiftant who can and will help, when duly invoked, in fuch terrible Distress. This is a delicate, a divine Introduction to the Declaration of that Doctrine of Righteousness, which it was, in my Opinion, the principal Defign of this Holy Book to inculcate. As the true Construction of these Verses is given in a * Pamphlet, published in the Year 1743, I shall here transcribe it, " If there shall be above or over him " (in the Way of Protector and Defender) the " Angel-Mediator, One among a Thousand, to " shew unto Man his Uprightness; Then he is " gracious unto him, and saith, Deliver him from " going down to the Pit, I have found a Ransom. " If we read Mediator, instead of Interpreter, " this Passage will appear to be one consistent 66 Prediction and Declaration of the divine Wills " and Scheme of Providence, in restoring fallen " wicked Man by the Merits and Intercession of " a Redeemer and Mediator, by his vicarious " Sufferings and perfect Uprightness."

The whole Passage has been interpreted by many great Writers, Papists and Protestants, in such a Manner as to take away, or wholly obscure that comfortable and salutary Sense, supposed by the Paraphrase here given to be plainly declared in the Expressions used in it.

R 2 The

* Miscellaneous Restections on Mr. Squire's Two Essays, Pag. 16, 17.

Chap.III. 'The * Papists will admit of Nothing that may weaken the Power of their Church, where they think, or would have others think, all Defects are to be fupplied, and a fufficient Stock of Merit may be obtained. What may be the + Protestant Motive, is not so easy to ascertain, unless when the Deists appear under that Shape and Name. As some of the peculiar Expressions, contained in the Passage, from Ver. 23 to 31, have been wrested from their true Signification and Meaning, I shall here add a few Observations, to restore them to their genuine Construction. 1. Where the Angel-Mediator in the 23d, and God in the 26th (which, by the bye, feems to make them one and the fame Person, as the fame divine Act is equally attributed, and made the Work of Both) is faid to shew unto Man his Uprightness, or to § render unto Man bis Righteousness.

* See what Bishop Burnet says with regard to them, under the Article concerning Justification.

† The old Puritans and the Presbyterians in general, till a Division happened lately among them, deserve Praise for their steady Adherence to the principal and fundamental Doctrines of Christianity.

§ The Verb here used in piel fignifies, according to Robertson, habitare fecit, sedere fecit, collocavit; so that if the Pronoun His be interpreted of Man, Elihu must be supposed to fay, That God would cause Man's Righteousness to abide with, or reside in Man, or would place it in him. It is hard to fay, whether the Senfe, or Divinity, of this Interpretation deserves the greater Contempt. But to fay that the Righteousness of God shall be placed in, or caused to dwell in Man, i. c. shall be fubflituted as that inhering, indwelling Righteoufness, teoufness, there can, I think, be no reasonable Chap. III. Doubt to whom the Possessive Pronoun bis belongs; fince common Sense requires us, and Grammar permits, if not requires us, to give it to the Angel-Mediator, or God, whose Uprightness and Righteousness was to ransom Man from going down into the Pit, could give him a Reprieve from the Grave, a Restoration from its Captivity, and an entire, total, perpetual Deliverance from the Infernal Pit; "Utramque " Mortem complectitur," fays Schultens. The Verb translated to shew fignifies to reveal, declare authoritatively, and in Hiphil (as here) to cause to be proclaimed and made public; whence must appear the Abfurdity of supposing, that Man was to be ranfomed by declaring to Man how righteous he was. Common Sense will not allow us to suppose, that Elibu, after so severe a Reprimand of Fob for his High-mindedness, could with any Confiftency, or without entirely fubverting the Defign of his Interpolition, intend to persuade Job to plead his Virtue, or rely upon any Saint to plead it for him. This would be to puff him up, instead of convincing him that neither which Man wants to reftore him to the Favour of God, and fanctify his Actions; or that God will cause his Righteousness to be applyed (Le Enosh) for the Benefit of finful Man (as the Word Enosh primarily signifies) when such Sinner is qualified to receive it, by such a Confession and Supplication as are here mentioned to be requisite, the Place, I say, so understood, affords true Sense and Divinity.

Chap.III neither he, with all his Virtue, nor any Man else, could be righteous in the Sight of God, or could fay that he had paid every thing that was due to his Creator and Redeemer. But a Declaration, that the Uprightness of the Angel-Mediator, or the Righteousness of God, should make up what was wanting in the Righteoufnels of Man (and fomething is always wanting) and should perfect and sanctify his imperfect Acts, was comfortable, feafonable, and comported with the Business which he came upon, viz. to fatisfy Job, and in him Mankind, that Nothing but the Redeemer's Righteousness could justify and fave any Man. Bolducius inverts the Order of the Words, turns a dative into a genitive Case, to pervert the true Construction, and favour his own. After this Violence, he fupposes, that the Righteousness of Man was to be shewn and pleaded by one of the Angels in ordinary to God, in order to obtain a Pardon. But was I as righteous as Noah, Job, or Daniel, I should not rely upon such a Mediator to intercede with that Being, who chargeth even his Angels with Folly, All but the Angel-Mediator. And as to any Plea or Display of human Virtues, they have ever fo great a Mixture of Folly and Imperfection, that they will never be fit to appear before the divine Majesty, till they are cleansed and polished by the divine Purifier himfelf. There is fomething, even in the most fincere Repentance of Man, which still needs Repentance; pentance; and the best Man, with respect to Chap.III. God, must call himself an unprofitable Servant, deserving Stripes, not Wages.

2. The 25th Verse scems to have an Aspect to the glorified Body of Man in the Morning of the Refurrection, when the Condition and Description here given will be literally true, without Figure and Metaphor. The Body of Job was restored to the Condition it was in before his Suffering, and fome additional Beauty and Firmness might be added to it by the extraordinary Gift of God: But it could not probably be faid literally, at his Time of Life, that it was fresher than a Child's, or that he returned to the Days of his Youth. But this happened, or will happen to him, and all, at the Refurrection of the Body. An everlasting Bloom will begiven to the glorified Body, much fresher, vally superior to what was ever seen in the most perfect, healthy Infant, as it will be composed of incorruptible Materials; Man at that Time will be properly faid to return to the Days of his Youth, when he shall begin an immortal Life, and be for ever young.

3. The 30th Verse seems to refer so particularly to a future State, that the Expressions, I think, cannot be well understood without such a Supposition. To call a Recovery from a dangerous or painful Illness, a bringing back the Soul from the Pit, to be enlightened with the Light of the Living, is too ftrong Colouring for the noble R-4. Simplicity

Chap.III. Simplicity of Scriptural Descriptions, where a real Case may be substituted to answer the Description. It is really and every way true, that when the * animal Frame shall be brought from the Pit, or Grave, it will be enlightened with the Light of the Living, shall enjoy that Light, which shall shine amongst such as are raised to immortal Life. To fay that a sick Man shall partake of the Light of this World, when he is well again, if not Nonsense, is such low, shat Stuff as borders near upon no Sense. The Words may be rendered, to cause his Frame to return from the Pit to Light, or to be enlightened by or with the Light of the living Ones, a distinguishing Title of the Elahim †.

If the Reader will only look into Schultens, he will fee my Construction partly supported by a Person of great Learning, who supposed that the Scope of Elibu, the Stress of the whole Disputation, and capital Point in View, are collected and applyed in this Passage.

After this Declaration, well might Elibu call upon Job to attend to, and confider the great Point he came to expound, and declare, Mark well, O Job. Job was too modest, too well convinced, to contradict; and my Reader is, I hope, as well satisfied. Elibu gives Job a little more Time to ruminate upon the Case, which allows the Reader, and myself, the same Indulgence.

706

* Nepesb. + See this Word as before explained.

70b XXXIV. (A) r. Furthermore Elibu answered, and faid,

- 2. Hear my Words, (a) O ye wise Men, and give ear unto me, ye that have Knowlege.
- 3. For the Ear tri-(b) eth Words, as the Mouth tafteth Meat.

- 4. Let us choose to us Judgment; let us know among ourselves what is good.
- 5. For Job hath said, I am righteous; and God hath taken away my Judgment.

6. Should

Paraphrase. Chap.III.

1. Job making no Reply, Elibu proceeded, according to his Promise, to teach him, and all that were present, more Wisdom.

2. I defire, that fuch in particular as pretend to fuperior Wisdom, and think themselves more knowing than others, will hearken to, and duly weigh what I shall fay.

3. For the Ear is the Scale, or Ballance, which tries, and impartially determines the Weight, or intrinsic Worth and Importance, of Words, as the Taste, or Palate, is given us to try, and judge of Food.

4. When we have duly weighed every thing, let us pass Sentence: After fuch a Trial, we may ourselves judge what is right and fit for us to fay and do.

5, Job hath declared and 6. infifted that he is righteous, and complains of God for giving a contrary Sentence:

Should

Chap.III. 70b XXXIV.

6. Should I lie against myRight? My Wound is incurable, without Transgression.

> 7. WhatMan is like 70b, who drink-

(c) eth up Scorning, like Water;

8. Which goeth in Company with the Workers of Iniquity, and

(c) walketh with wicked Men?

o. For he hath faid, (d) it profiteth a Man nothing, that he should delight himself with God.

(e) en unto me, ye Men of Understanding: Far be it from God, that be should do Wickedness, and from Almighty, the

that

Paraphrase.

Should I, fays he, give up my Plea, and fay what is false, to condemn myself? I will maintain it, that I have not offended, though I am afflicted so severely, as to be, I think, past Cure.

7, What Man, like 70b, 8. hath greedily fwallowed the Sayings of the Scorners, and, from being a devout Worshipper of God, hath entered into a Confederacy with his most hated Enemies, walking in their Way?

o. For he hath faid, after these Men, that serving of God will be of no Use to Man, and if there will be Pleasure, there will be no Profit in obeying him.

10. Therefore heark- 10. Having thus laid before you what Job hath faid for himself, and adheres to, be pleased, O ye who pretend to fuperior Knowlege, to hear and confider what I have to fay by way of 70b XXXIV. that he should commit Iniquity.

(f) of a Man shall he render unto him, and cause every Man to find according to bis Ways:

12. Yea furely, God will not do wickedly, neither will Almighty pervert Judgment.

13. Who hath given him a Charge over the Earth? or who hath difposed the whole World?

(g) Heart upon Man, 15. felf against Man, as if he gather unto himself his Spirit

Paraphrafe. Chap.III, of Answer. Be it far from any one to think, that He who is Almighty should wrong any Man, or fwerve from the Rule of Righteousness.

11. For the Work 11. He will always render unto Man his Due.

> 12. The supreme Judge of the World will never condemn an innocent Person, nor pronounce an unrighteous Sentence.

> 13. He is not accountable to any for his Administration, as he doth not act by a delegated Authority. The Laws, prefcribed to all created Beings, were given and fettled by himfelf, and they are governed by his Providence, those original Laws.

14. If he set his 14, If God should set him-one human Antagonist against another, and should

Chap.III.

70b XXXIV. Spirit and his Breath:

- 15. All Flesh shall perish together, and Man shall turn again unto Duft.
- Understanding, hear this; hearken to the Voice of my Words.
- 17. Shall even he. (h) that hatethRight, govern? and wilt condemn him that is most just?
- a King, thou art wicked, and to Princes, ye are ungodly?

Paraphrase. fhould refume that Spirit and Soul which he gave, Man would be destroyed from off the Face of the Earth, and his Body return to that Dust from whence it was taken.

- 16. If now thou bast 16. If thou art wise, mind what I have faid, and confider also what follows.
  - 17. Could fuch an Enemy to Justice, as you suppose God to be in his Dealing with you, govern the World, as he does, by impartial Rules of Justice, and oblige Man to act according to those Laws, which he himself prescribed?
- 18. Is it fit to fay to 18. No good Subject will fay to his Prince, though he may through Infirmities be faulty in his Administration, art a wicked and ungodly Ruler; becaule all fuch Powers are ordained of God, and supposed to act as his Vicegerents.

Impiety is it there-

19. How much less to 19. What him

Job XXXIV. bim that accepteth not the Perfons of Princes, nor regardeth the Rich more than the Poor? for they all are the Work of his Hands.

shall they die, and the People shall be troubled at Midnight, and pass away, and the Mighty shall taken away without Hand. 21. For his Eyes are (i) upon the Ways of Man; and he feeth all his Goings.

of Death, where the Workers of Iniquity may hide themselves:

23. For he will not lay

Paraphrafé. Chap.HI. therefore to fix fuch Charge upon the most high and righteous God, who made and governs both Princes and their Subjects?

20. In a Moment 20, Even Princes them-21. selves, in the Height of their Pride, die in a Moment; and People, their Subjects, when they think themfelves most fecure, are greatly troubled, and go off the Stage of Life, even the greatest amongst them, by a fecret Stroke of Providence; who by feeing all that passes, and even the Hearts of all Men, gives the fatal Blow where Justice, tempered with Mercy, shall direct it.

22. There is no Dark- 22, Nothing, not even the ness, nor Shadow 23. Regions of Darkness itself, to which Wicked shall be configned, shall conceal the Objects of divine Vengeance, as Darkness Chap.III.

70b XXXIV. lay upon Man more than right, that he should enter into Judgment with God.

- in Pieces mighty without Men Number, and fet others in their ffead.
- 25. Therefore their knoweth Works, and he overturneth them in the Night, so that they are destroyed.
- as wicked Men, in the open Sight of others;
- ed back from him, and would not

Paraphrase.

is no Darkness with Him. But though the Criminals must be brought to an open Trial, God will not charge any Man with that of which he is not guilty, or give him Reason to accuse him of Partiality in this Respect.

24. He shall break 24. He needs no Information, but judges great Oppressors without examining Witnesses against them, or regarding the Strength of their Numbers, conferring their Dignity on others.

he 25. By removing and destroying them at a Time, when no fuch Judgment is expected, it is evident that he feeth and knoweth their great, though hidden Wickedness.

26. Hestriketh them, 26. By such Judgments he makes them public Examples, for the Terror of their Neighbours;

27. Because they turn- 27. Because they would not follow his Counfels, nor regard any of his Commands; 28.

Paraphrase.

70b XXXIV. not consider any of his Ways:

- the Cry of the Poor to come unto him, and he heareth the Cry of the Afflicted.
- 29. When he giveth 29. Quietness, who then can make Trouble? and when he hideth bis Face, who then can behold him, whether it be done against a Nation, or against a Man only?

30. That the Hypocrite reign not, lest the People be enfnared.

(k) to be faid unto God, I have born Chastisement, I will not offend any more. 32,1

- 28. So that they cause 28. But went on in their Oppression of the Poor, till they cried to Heaven for Vengeance upon them: And the Cry of fuch afflicted People God never fails to anfwer.
  - When God orders Rest and Peace, no Man can give Disturbance; but when he withdraws his Presence and Protection, no Man can do any Good, or shew any Favour: And this is true of whole Nations. as well as of one fingle Person.
  - 30. He will not let a wicked Prince reign always, though he pretend Piety, and public Good, never fo much, left the People should be enfnared into Sin by his Example.

31. Surely it is meet 31. Wherefore it is best for a Person in Affliction (as thou art) not to complain, but to suspect himself, and fay

Chap.III.

70b XXXIV.

- 32. That which I fee 32. not teach thou me; if I have done Iniquity, I will do no more.
- cording to thy Mind? He will recompense it, whether thou refuse, or whether thou choose, and not I; therefore fpeak what thou knowest.
- 34. Let Men of Un-(1) derstanding tell and let a wife Man hearken unto me.

Paraphrase. fay to God, I confess this Suffering is just, I will not offend bypleading my Innocence.

- If I have overlooked any Sin that I have committed, do thou bring it to my Remembrance; and if I have done wickedly in any Point, I will take what Care I can to do fo no more.
- 33. Should it be ac- 33, Must the Ways of God. 34. with regard to the Distribution of Rewards and Punishments, be determined by thy Sentiments of what is fit and right? He will render to every one according to his Works, whether Man likes or diflikes the Measures of his Justice. But if thou, or thy Affociates, who pretend to fo much Wisdom, can make any Objections to the Proceedings of Providence, or what I have faid, let me hear them: therwise attend to what I fay.

Fob XXXIV.

35. Job hath spoken without Knowlege, and his Words were without Wildom.

36. My Desire is, that 70b may be tried unto the End, because of bis Anfwers for wicked Men.

(m) Rebellion unto his Sin, he clappeth bis Hands amongst us, and multiplieth his Words against God.

Paraphrase.

35. Job, for want of being well instructed, and a thorough Knowlege of his Subject, hath not faid what is right, or delivered the Dictates of true Wisdom.

36. Therefore I am fo. far from wishing that he may be presently releafed from his Afflictions, that I would have this his Smart and Trial continue, till he recant an Opinion fo injurious to God, who never punishes without a just Cause, and so fatal to all Sinners, who may by fuch Example be hardened into Impenitence.

37. For he addeth 37. For Job, by still insisting upon his Innocence and Integrity, and a Sullenness, Kind of which attends fuch a Way of Thinking under Chastisements, shews himself quite obstinate, and like a declared Rebel to his God.

Chap.III.

ANNOTATIONS.

(A) Bishop Patrick (whose Paraphrase I frequently make use of) observes, in his general Argument before this Chapter, that though Elibu had invited Job to make what Exceptions he pleased to his Discourse in the former Chapter, he would not open his Mouth, because he plainly faw, that Elibu had hit upon the Thing wherein he was defective. And Schultens, in his Argument before the Chapter, infers from the Silence of Job, that Elibu had convinced or convicted him of Pride, and Contumacy against God, which was the Effect of that Pride. Wherefore he repeats in this Chapter the most material Articles exhibited against him, to prove so grievous a Charge; and then gives a full, sharp, and fatiffactory Answer to every Objection which Job had made to the Providence and Justice of God.

(a) Ye wise Men, that have Knowlege, give ear. These Men are styled, Ver. 10. ANSHI LeBaB, Men of Heart, in our English Bible, Men of Understanding. This Phrase seems to describe Persons, whose Hearts were elated with an undue Opinion of their own Abilities; and this Address of Elibu to these By-Standers and Hearers, seems to carry in it much Irony and Sarcasm. These were probably the very ANSHI, sinful Men, whom Job is charged at Ver. 8. with associating himself to, Men who taught him their Wisdom (opposite to that Sort of Wisdom which Elibus teacheth).

an unprofitable Service which would turn to no Account, and to be guided by fuch wife Men as they were; who by their fuperior Wisdom, and following the Dictates of their own good Understanding, were their own Masters, quite easy and happy in themselves.

(b) The Hebrew Word for Ear is the Word likewise for Scales, which gives the ideal Meaning; and the Verb translated tasteth, according to Leigh, is used both in an animal, corporeal, or intellectual Sense, as in the English Word Taste.

(c) Scorning, &c. walketh with wicked Men, Men of Impiety, ANSHI ReSHaNG. By Scorners are described, as in Psalm I. such as despise the proffered Means of Grace and Salvation, setting up themselves, and their Opinions, above all divine Instructions and Lessons of Wisdom: And these are marked out as Sinners of the first Magnitude, seldom reclaimed, profligate and rebellious to a high Degree. Leigh tells us, that the Word ReSHaNG signifies this, and more. It signifies the Restlessiness of an evil, seditious, turbulent Spirit, which will not suffer itself, or any Person or Thing near it, to be quiet.

(d) It profiteth a Man Nothing. This is the usual Topic from whence such Men reason; good Men will not be the richer for being good, either from the Blessing of God, or the Encouragement of Man: For we may too often see Chap.III. fuch in an indigent Condition, the Jest and Contempt of the vilest Part of the human Race.

(e) Ye Men of Understanding. In this Compellation and Form of Address, wherein all 70b's new Affociates were comprehended, are, I think, pointed out all vain Pretenders to Science, falsely so called, especially the minute Philosophers of that Age, which probably abounded with them; in other Words, the Idolaters of Reason, and Setters up of that strange God, a depraved human Soul, with all its perverted Faculties, above infinite Wisdom and Goodness. The Yews, in the Time of Isaiah, seem to have been generally infected with these dangerous Notions, by what is taken notice of at the 13th Verse of the XXIXth Chapter, Their Fear towards me is taught by the Precept of Men. The Cafe of the Fews, here stigmatized and pointed out by the Prophet, for the Admonition of us and our Posterity, plainly shews how unwarrantable it is to form our Conduct upon any Principle, but an Obedience to the declared Will of God, as fuch, even where Men may pretend to teach the Fear of God or true Religion. God will be ferved according to the Commands he has given, and will not allow Man to plan his own Rule of Duty. Iam the Lord, was the repeated Sanction of the Precepts delivered by Moses, to prevent any Mistake, or Forgetfulness, in this necessary Point. Where we know that God is the Legillator, our Conformity to his Laws, upon the Authority

Authority of the Law-giver, must be the true, Chap.III. the rewardable, first Principle of Obedience.

- (f) Shall be render unto him. One of the Senses of the original Word, and that which governs here, signifies to render in such a Manner as to finish and compleat what was imperfect. God is so far from passing a wrong Sentence, or punishing where a Reward is due, that he makes up what is wanting on the Part of Man, and compleats that Work for him, which the most Diligent and Sincere is not able by his own Strength to accomplish; and for such Work, so performed, he will reward him as sully, as if he had been able to have done the Work himself.
- (g) If be gather unto himself his Spirit and his Breath. In this, and the following Verse, are particularly and diffinctly mentioned the three constituent Parts of Man, called by St. Paul, Spirit, Soul, and Body; the first under the Name of RUaCH, the fecond under NeSHeM, and the third ADaM. The second is used for a Mole, which gives us some Idea of the Soul, or reasoning Faculty, which works invisibly in the human Earth, or Adamab, as the Animal of that Name doth under Ground, to be traced only or furely by certain little Workings, and dirty Hillocks. which it casts up to View as it passes on. When these three are united, and act conjunctly, they are fometimes called NePeSH, which Word, the Jews fay, may fignify any Being, from the Creator to the lowest Creature; as when it speaks of Chap.III. of itself, My Nepelb, signifying its own peculiar Mode of Existence. When Man was endued? with his Spirit and intellectual Powers at first, and they placed in the Adamab, he became a living Frame; his Nepelh, or Mode of Existence, was peculiarly, specifically distinguished by the Union of these combined Powers in one living Nepelh, or a Nepelh of Lives. Under the Word Adamab, or \(\Sigma\), are, I think, comprehended all the animal Powers and Appetites, which die at the Diffolution of the Frame. Without fuch Appetites and Passions, the Body simply is HoPHeR, Duft, from which it was taken, and to which it must return. It may suffice to add, that Ruach is St. Paul's Husuma, Spirit or foiritual Life, Aura divina Particula, which was the governing Principle before the Fall, wherein confisted the Image of God, which is renewed in all that are regenerated or baptized.

(h) Govern. The Margin of our Bibles has bind, the Hebrew fignifying the metaphorical Binding or Obligation of Laws. The following Comparison between God and Princes, and a dutiful, suitable Behaviour to each, is much more conclusive and pertinent upon a Supposition that Job was a great Prince, as it is probable he was, Rex idem Hominum, Phabique Sacerdos; Bolducius makes him both,

(i) As some Expressions, used in the following Verses, are the same with those in the XVIIIth Pfalm, which describe, I think, the last Day,

Q.Whether that Day, and a future Judgment, be Chap. III. not alluded to in some of the following Verses: The Reader may compare the two Scriptures, and judge for himself.

(k) Surely it is meet, &c. Schultens gives another Construction of these Words, supposing them to be quoted by Eliba as Part of 70b's Plea, and therefore produced as Evidence against him: He makes them speak this Sense, Insons plector, luo quod non contraxi. Though this Interpretation makes more for the present Hypothesis, yet I have chiefly followed Bishop Patrick's Paraphrase.

(1) The ANSHI LeBaB are here again applyed to, or called upon, in a contemptuous Way, as Persons, who, professing themselves wife, became Fools, styled in Ver. 36. ANSHI AVeN, Viri Vanitatis, as Schultens renders the Words; and the Beth prefixed shews, that Job was amongst fuch vain Men, or Men filled with spiritual Pride, Be ANSHI AVeN, with or among ft vain Men.

(m) He addeth Rebellionunto bis Sin, he clappeth bis Hands. The former Part is a full Charge upon Job, and takes away all Occasion of Boasting. He is charged now with the highest Act of Disobedience, with Obstinacy and open Rebellion. The Sense seems to require, and the common Rules of Construction may, I think, admit a Rendring, different from the usual one. The original Word Jispoc here used, having a S 4

Chap.III. Jod prefixed, and Vau in the third Order, must. I think, fignify past and future; There hath and will be Clapping of Hands, and be, that is Job, shall multiply Words, and thereby give more Occasion for Clapping of Hands. The Word for Clapping Hands, being a Participle and Imperfonal, must, I think, belong to the whole Company or Audience, or the wife Men described above, who clapped their Hands at Fob's Speeches; He multiplieth Words, being a Verb in the third Person singular with the prefix Jod, must be applyed to one only, viz. Job, and rendered, be will multiply, according to Pagninus, or if the Reader chuses, be multiplieth, as it did not appear that he ceased from speaking. and therefore the Action is supposed as present or continuing: So that the Sense is, 70b will talk on, and the Audience, or wife Men his Friends, will clap their Hands. And now let us fee what is contained under this Expression. The Verb with Sin, or * Samech as here used, is rendered suffecit, the Noun, Sufficientia. I meet with the Verb in two Scriptures, which explain, I think, what Kind of Sufficiency, and Idea.

* Robertson, &c. observes, that both the Roots, one beginning with a Sin, the other with a Samech, have near the same Sense, only the latter (used in this Place) signifies more particularly percutere Volum, striking the Palms of the Hands. In this Note both are considered, as agreeing in the Sense here supposed to be contained under them, being used promiscuously in this Book to describe the same Thing.

Idea, is contained and exhibited in this Word. Chap. III. It is used in this very Book, Chap. XXVII. 23. Men shall Clap their Hands, when Job declares that there shall be this Kind of Clapping Hands against the Hypocrite, upon his Punishment, after the Manifestation of his Guilt; which Passage is probably alluded to here by Elibu, as a more severe Rebuke, taken from his own Mouth when he passed Sentence on others, and retorted upon him with double Force. And Schultens's Note upon this Place is very remarkable; " Fispoc, says he, impersonaliter sumendum, ut " uno posito plures intelligantur. Complodent omnes quivis Sanctorum, qui Judicia Dei in " Hypocritas spectabit." Plaudet, says Pagninus's Version, sc. qui viderit. I have therefore Authority for my Supposition of its being used impersonally in the Place before us. In both Places is implied. He that feeth the Punishment of the Hypocrite claps his Hands, as a Token of that Joy which that Person feels, who takes a Pleasure in feeing others brought to Difgrace and Punishment, whilst he himself, by escaping public Justice, flatters himself into a Persuasion of his own Innocence, and a Self-Complacency in that personal Virtue, which exempts him from the like Chastisements. The louder he claps his Hands, and the more vehement he appears in his Exclamations against his suffering Neighbour. the stronger Sense and Consciousness he betrays of his own Integrity and Self-fufficiency. But though Chap.III though this Correction feemed to be intended principally by the Way of Retaliation, for the Reformation of Job; yet most Men have more Need of this Lesson of Instruction than Job had, and may learn from hence, that fuch as are most aptito infult over evil Doers, when under the Punishment of God or Man, are themselves too commonly the very Hypocrites which they would feem to clap and his out of the World, as were probably these wise Men who treated Job in this. Manner. The Noun stands for the Cause, viz. Self-sufficiency, and the Verb for the Effect of that Cause, as clapping of Hands, or expressing an unwarrantable Pleasure some other Way, as it is used in Isaiah, Chap. II. 6. They pleased themselves with the Children of Strangers; sufficientes; fuerunt, as Pagninus; here renders the Verb: satis se babere putarunt, acquiescunt, applauce serunt five satisfaciunt, five congratulantur et es placent," fay the Commentators upon the Expression here; and "Cognationem babet cum SaPaK (with a Samech) fignifying to: clap: Hands. The House of Jacob seem here to be. reproved for pleasing themselves, or adopting, out of their superior Judgment, a strange Religion, one of human or diabolical Invention, in opposition to That commanded by God. The Word occurs likewise 1, Kings XX. 10. and is in our Translation rendered suffice, to which Place Kircher refers.

of a common

- Since some Things have been faid in our pre-Chap.III. fent Enquiry concerning Eliku, which feem to raife his Character infinitely above what hath been faid of him by many learned Men, and the general Tribe of Commentators, I should be injurious to this high Character, and wanting to myfelf, if I passed over in Silence an Authority, that ought to be observed, at the latter End of. this Chapter, which feems to support my conceived Opinion of this great Personage, and ought to be produced in Evidence of his being the true Representative of Him who was the God-Man. The Margin of our English Bible renders the former Part of the 36 Verse, * My Father, let Job be tried; the Vulgate Latin, Pagninus, &c. agree in rendring the Words to the same Sense, and the Word ABI can, I think, have no other right Construction. This Apostrophe of Elibu is, as Bolducius observes, " ad-

* What Gusselius saith upon this very Place, and the Construction of the Word ABI here, deserves the Reader's Notice. He gives, I think, unanswerable Reafons why the Construction, my Desire, cannot be justified, by any Rules of Grammar, &c. and says of the Translation, my Father, "Hæc est genuina Signification hujus" Loci Scripturæ, et Vocis Usus constantissimus." He seems to be a little at a Loss, how to account for Elibu's making use of this Form of Address; but contents himself with this Solution of his Doubt herein, "Was it not lawful for one of the Faithful, under the ancient Dispension, to call God his Father?" The Reader, I hope, finds in this Account of Elibu a more satisfactory Answer, and a Construction, as agreeable to true Divinity, as well as Grammar.

Chap.III. " Deum ipsum," adding, " ut ferè omnes expo-" nunt;" and he fays, that the Translation of my Desire, instead of my Father (which is unaccountably adopted by the English Translators): was made by two Rabbies, Kimchi and Levi, which, I think, can be no Recommendation of it. This Form of Elibu's invoking God, fixes,: I think, his real Character, and justifies every particular Observation concerning his Person and Office, which hath been laid before the Reader. No mere Man is allowed to call upon God in the Style of my Father: The Saviour of the World alone could use this Expression, and at the fame Time taught the Difference, by faying my Father and your Father, John XX. 17. He was. his Father in a peculiar, incommunicable Sense, and invoked as fuch in his last Agonies.

Bolducius was puzzled about this Form of Address, but says Nothing deserving the Reader's Notice. After he hath read Bolducius's own Confession, that Elibu in this Place speaks to God himself, I desire the Reader's particular Attention to this Remark, as this peculiar Form of Invocation fixes the representative Character of Elibu beyond any reasonable, I had almost said, possible Doubt. The two Rabbies, here mentioned, knew and feared the Conclusions, which would be drawn from the true Interpretation of my Father, if that Version continued: They had therefore Nothing to do but to try the Chance of an Experiment, in offering another violent Construction, as they had succeeded in Chap.III. other Attempts of this Kind, by finding some nominal Christians, who might support thereby some particular Notions, and therefore were willing to have it so. Their Followers herein, viz. Such as have been misled into Errors by these treacherous Guides, thus blinding them and perverting the Word of God, are Objects of Pity, and may probably be easily admitted to plead the general Pardon; but the Case of those, who have wilfully and designedly misled them, or shall do so, must be more dangerous.

The Words my Father, as used relatively between God and Man, occur in, and may be fatiffactorily explained by the LXXXIX. Psalm, 26th and following Verses; which Places must be interpreted, I think, folely of the Redeemer's Address to, and future Invocation of the Deity, or are expressly predictive of what did happen at, and after the Crucifixion. The Pfalm fays, He shall cry unto me, Thou my Father, ABI, as here, and as throughout the New Testament, when our Saviour invokes the Deity. My God, ELI, as addressed upon the Cross at the very expiring Moment, when the affumed Tabernacle, or Humanity, was forfaken by the Divinity, that it might die. The Rock of my Salvation, the ZUR, fung of in Moses's triumphant Song, Deut. XXXIV. 4, &c. And if any Doubt remained concerning the Person intended to be defcribed in this Pfalm, the following Expressions 5. must Chap.III. must remove it effectually, Also I will make him my First-born, styled in the New Testament, πρωτοrongs masns utiseus, higher than the Kings of the Earth, HeLION, a Word descriptive of the divine Exaltation. The Continuance of his Throne as the Days of Heaven, fo Verses 26, 37. These Descriptions are not applicable to the typical or first David. I need say no more upon this Point, but must observe to the Reader, that this Expression, as used Prov. IV. 2. I was my Father's Son, must be likewise understood of our Saviour, as the Context plainly shews. Solomon could not be said to be the only one (there is no Hebrew for beloved ) unicus, in the Sight of his Mother, as she had * three more by David; much less could David use the authoritative Style of a Legislator, Keep my Commandments, and live, as the Father here is faid to have spoken. The Father, and Son therefore, here pointed out, are the fame as we suppose to be referred to in the Pfalm above, and in this Place of the Book of 70b. The Exclusion of a spiritual or Christian Sense, where it would give Life and Spirit to the facred Text, where likewise the Flatness of the literal Meaning requires, and feems designedly to refer us to another and higher Sense, has given the chief Occasion to Scoffers and Infidels to ridicule and burlefque the facred Writings. Christian, who has a just Sense of the Dignity and Importance of these Books, would six down here fatisfied with the literal Meaning, and fup-Chap.III. pose, that the wisest of mere Men could begin a most serious Discourse with an Affertion, which, literally understood, would not be used by any common Declaimer. But any Point must, it feems, be given up by Christians, rather than they should maintain a disagreeable Doctrine; though thereby a free Passage be opened to the most impious Absurdities, and the Word of God be made of none Effest. It is to be farther remarked upon this 36th Verse, that the Words to the End, should be rendered, even to Victory. Elibu prays that Job might be tried by Afflictions, till he came off victorious. This Prayer was granted by Him, to whom it was addressed, even EL, who was afterwards himself, in his human Nature, more than Conqueror by Afflictions.

- 1 P

* See I Chron. UI. 5.

70b XXXV.

moreover, and faid,

2. Thinkest thou this to be right that thou saids, my Righteousness is more than God's?

3. For thou faidft,
(a) what Advantage will it be unto thee, and what Profit shall I have

Paraphrase.

 To this Job making no Answer, Elibu preffed him again, and faid,

2. Let me appeal to thy own Conscience, dost thou think this to be right that thou saids, I am righteous in the Sight of God?

3. Or because thou hast faid, what Advantage or Profit shall I receive in having a Sin-Offering made for me?

4. I

Paraphrase.

fob XXXV.

if I be cleanfed from my Sin?

- 4. I will answer thee, and thy Companions with thee.
- Look unto the Heavens, and see, and behold the Clouds, which are higher than thou.
- 6. If thou finnest, what dost thou against him? or if thy Transgressions be multiplied, what dost thou unto him?
- 7. If thou be righteous, what giveft thou him? or what receiveth he of thine Hand?
- 8. Thy Wickedness may burt a Man as thou art, and thy Righteousness may profit the Son of Man.

4. I will answer thee, and thy wickedly wise Asfociates, who talk and think as thou dost in this Respect.

5. Cast up thine Eyes to the Heavens, look upon the Clouds and the Sky; if they are so much above thy Reach, God is infinitely more fo.

6. How therefore can thy, or any Man's Wickedness affect God? Be thy Sins ever so great, or many, thou can'ft not hurt him.

7. Neither is he the better for thy being righteous, nor can'ft thou confer any thing upon him, which he hath not already.

8. Thy Wickedness, in the several Instances of Oppression, Injustice, &c. may greatly hurt thy Brethren; and thy Virtue, in the various Exercises of Charity, and brotherly Kindness, may

Job XXXV.

9. By reason of the Multitude of Oppressions they make the Oppressed to cry; they cry out by reason of the Arm of the Mighty.

where is God my

(b) Maker, who giveth Songs in the Night?

11. Who teacheth us (c) more than the Beafts of the Earth, and maketh us wifer than the Fowls of Heaven.

12. There

Paraphrase. may be of great Service to Mankind.

9. The Cries of the Oppressed tell us what Mischief Injustice doth, and how miserable it makes them; the Tyranny of the Mighty forces them to cry aloud to God for Vengeance; who, though he be not hurt himself by it, is touched with a Sense of their Affliction.

10. But none faith, 10. But none of these miserable Wretches answer the Design of their Afflictions, by looking up to, and gratefully acknowleging their Creator, and Redeemer from all Evil, who cutteth off, the Oppressors of his People in the Night, and thereby filleth the poor innocent Sufferers with Joy.

11. He likewise hath distinguished Man from the Brute Creation by superior Faculties and Abilities, which should direct him to that Being who hath declared,

Chap.III.

70b XXXV.

12. There they cry, 12. (but none giveth Answer) because of the Pride of evil Men.

(d) not hear Vanity, neither will the Almighty regard it.

#4. Although thou (e) fayest, thou shalt not see him, yet Judgment is before him, therefore trust thou in him.

Paraphrase. I create Good, and I create F.vil.

This is the Reason, why God doth not fometimes deliver Perfons in Affliction, because they lie crying indeed under their Affliction, but it is not a Sense of him, but only the haughty Violence of their Oppressors, which extorts it from them.

13. Surely God will 13. God will not give a favourable Ear to a Petitioner, who is puffed up with a Conceit of his own Excellency, nor pay any Regard to any vain Man, who can infift upon his own Righteousness.

14. Though thou hast said, thou shalt not fee him, Chap. XXIII. 8, 9, that he will not interpose in, or concern himself with such Matters, yet be affured that Justice and Judgment are about his Throne; therefore condemn thyfelf, and then trust in him for thy Delive-15. For rance.

15. But !

70b XXXV.

it is not so, he hath visited in his Anger, yet he knoweth it not in great Extremity.

16. Therefore doth 70b open his Mouth in vain he multiplieth Words without Knowlege.

Paraphrase.

15. But now because 15, For Want of such Con-16. fession and Acknowlegement, God hath severely afflicted Job, and continues to afflict him, till he shall be brought to a true Sense in that Matter; though 70b in his extreme Mifery doth not feem to know the true Reason of his suffering so much. Till 70b therefore shall fubmit himself before God, give up his Plea of Sufficiency, and fincerely confess himself to be a Sinner, all he shall say will be to no Purpose, unable to remove the Cause of his Complaints.

ANNOTATIONS.

(a) What Advantage, &c. The learned Mr. Jul. Bate, in his Remarks upon Mr. Warburton, &c. pag. 63. translates the Words, What Profit shall I have by an Atonement for my Sin, the Hebrew Word fignifying both Sin and the Sacrifice for Sin? And he observes, from this Passage, that Elibu hereby charges Job with faying, he wanted no Atonement.

Chap.III. (b) Who giveth Songs in the Night. The Commentators, whom I have perufed, give not fuch a Construction of this Place as seems to be confistent with the Context. But upon confulting Robertson, I have satisfied myself, and hope to fatisfy the Reader, by viewing there the different Senses of the Verb ZaMaR, from whence the Hebrew Word, here translated Songs, is derived. Here we are told, that the third Signification of this Radix is putare, præcidere, to prune, or cut off; fo used Lev. XXV. 3, 4. from whence the Noun ZeMeR, Palmes, a Vine-Branch, or, according to Buxtorf, the Pruning of Vines, or Time of Pruning; and hence likewise the Word for pruning Knife. This Noun likewise, according to Avenarius, fignifies Excision, as in Isaiab XXV. 5. where we read, The Branch of the terrible Ones shall be brought low; which Words are rendered by Mercerus thus, Amputationem Tyrannorum humiliabit, i. e. "nè ampliùs possint " fævire. Alii, Excisio (quæ veniet a Deo) bumiliabit fortes." This is the right Tranflation. "Alii tamen pro Cantu sumunt, et sic exponunt, Cantum vinolentorum humiliabit, " juxta Ab. Ezram, q. d. faciet Deus, ne Tyranni ampliùs de justis triumphent." Excision of the Oppressors is the Cause, Songs or Joy is the Effect; both Senses comprehended under this Word: The Sense therefore of Excision. feems to be the first and leading Idea of the Word; the other Senses to be subordinate, or

Senfes

Senses of Accommodation. The Vine-branch, Chap.III. which requires fo much and constant Pruning, that it may be faid to live and flourish by Excifion, gives the Idea: And this Excision of Oppreffors, and Joy or Songs confequent thereupon, being in the Night, at a Time when Man feeth. not, nor acteth, and therefore has no Hand in it, appears plainly to be not only the Work of God, but may be properly and emphatically called the Gift of God; inafmuch as a Deliverance from Tyranny and Oppression is, perhaps, as great and fensible a public Benefit, ascan be bestowed upon any People. So far we are obliged to the Prophet Isaiab, for helping us to a fure, intelligible Comment upon this puzzling Paffage. He may perhaps be of farther Service, at least to give an useful Hint, to explain and afcertain the particular Allufion and Meaning of Elibu in this Place, and what is faid by him to the same Purpose in the immediately preceding Chapter. The Passage, here cited from Isaiak, is well known to describe the Case of the proud, oppressing Princes, or great Men of Tyre, whom God would humble by cut-. ting them off. The Prophet, in Chap. XXIII. 5. compares the Judgments of God upon Tyre to those of Egypt; not those Judgments, I. presume, which were to be inslicted upon Egypt, and were but just then foretold, but that remarkable Series of divine Chastisements, which befelthat People in the Time of Moses. This was a well T 2

Chap.III. well known, recorded Fact, to which the Prophet might refer the People for a Comparison, fuch a Comparison as might deter any Nation, or Person, from being guilty of the like Contumacy and Rebellion: And I am perfuaded, that this Description of Elibu was taken from the same Original, I mean, from what happened to Pharaob and that Nation, for the Deliverance of the People of God, as the History of that Matter was then fo fresh and well known. The characteristic Phrases are these, Chap. XXXIV. 20. In a Moment shall they die, and the People shall be troubled at Midnight, and pass away, and the Mighty shall be taken away without Hand. Where did this ever happen fo literally true, as in that general fatal Excision, when the First-born of the Prince, the Mighty, and the People, were taken away without Hand, or the Intervention of any human Power, and a general Trouble was hereupon caused at Midnight? The Text expressly fays, Exodus XII. 30. And Pharaob rose up in the Night, he, and all his Servants, and all the Egyptians, and there was a great Cry in Egypt; and the 29th Verse says, this Excision was at Midnight. So Job Chap. XXXIV. 22, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29. As to what we read Ver. 22. There is no Darkness, nor Shadow of Death, where the Workers of Iniquity may bide themselves; may not this allude to that dreadful Darkness, which was the Judgment immediately preceding the cutting off the First-born, or to the Darkness caused Į, caused by the Locusts, which Pharaoh calls this Chap.III. Death? Breaking in pieces mighty Men without Number, in that Night, and the Destruction of the Red-Sea, and setting others in their stead, overturning them in the Night, so that they are destroyed, Striking them as wicked Men in the open Sight of others, and thereupon giving Songs in the Night, or great Joy to the oppressed People of God, are remarkable descriptive Expressions of those Calamities, which then happened to the Egyptians; and the Reason of all, as given in the 27th Verse, seems to fix the particular Case here referred to, they would not consider any of bis Ways: Plague after Plague, Punishment after Punishment would not bring them to confider, and do Justice; so that they caused the Cry of the poor afflicted People of God to come unto him, and he beard their Cry, and delivered them with a mighty Hand, hereby giving an illustrious Proof to all Ages, that he can as easily manage a Nation as a fingle Person, Ver. 29. And thus gave he Songs, or great Joy, to his People, by deftroying their Oppressors in so aftonishing a Manner: One of those Songs is recorded, to perpetuate the Memory of this wonderful Deliverance.

(c) Who teacheth us more, &c. It is very plain from what is faid at the 14th Verse of this Chapter, that a Sect of Opiniators, called the Companions of Job, were considered by Elibu, and pointed out in his Reproofs, Men who valued themselves

T 4

Chap.III. upon their rational Faculties, and a Wisdom superior to the animal Creation; but they seem to have boasted, as though they had not received this Superiority. Elibu therefore reminds them, to whom they are indebted for these Advantages, and who taught them more than the Beasts of the Earth. These wise Men were become so forgetful of their supreme Benefactor, that the severest Punishments, even Oppression itself, would not teach them to seek after God, tormenting and fretting themselves with fruitless Complaints and soolish Reasonings.

(d) But furely God will not bear Vanity. The Hebrew Word, here used for Vanity, signifies a trifling, frivolous Levity, an inconsistent Rashness in Words and Actions. We need not go so far back as the Age of Job indeed, to produce Instances of this Kind: And as the Advice in the following Verse may perhaps be as serviceable in England, as it was of old Time in and near the Land of Uz, I shall subjoin a larger Paraphrase upon it, in the Way of Address to all such fuch.

(e) Although thou fayest, &c. "Make no more foolish and wicked Remonstrances against the Author of thy Afflictions, neither imagine that thine own Wisdom or Strength can ease thee, or lighten the Burden laid upon thee. Though thou mayst think that the most High taketh no Notice, yet Judgment is before him, and will certainly be executed by him;

" therefore

- " therefore trust thou in him. Make a right Chap.III.
- " Use of thy Afflictions; and instead of applying - to, or depending upon thine own Abilities, to
- extricate thyself out of thy present Straits,
- " and make thee easy, look up to the God who
- " made thee, and redeemed thee, for Deli- " verance: Call upon Eloab. Humbly, but
- " firmly, trust in him."

70b XXXVI. (A)

- 1. Elibu also proceeded, and faid,
- 2. Suffer me a little, and I will shew thee, that I bave yet to speak on * God's Behalf.
- 3. I will fetch my
- (a) Knowlege from (b) afar, and I will ascribe Righteoufness to my Maker.
- 4. For truly my Words shall not
- (c) be false; he that is § perfect in Knowlege is with thee.

Paraphrase.

- 1. Job being still silent, Elibu proceeded in this Manner,
- 2. Be patient, and I will declare to thee what may be faid farther with regard to God's Proceedings with Man, and the Administration of Providence.
- 3. I will fetch my Knowlege from far beyond the Reach of human Wifdom, and will attribute Righteousness to my Maker only, as the fole Fountain of it.
- 4. Affure thyfelf that what I fay cannot be false, as he that discourses with thee is perfect in Knowlege.

5. Be-

5. Be-

* Eloah. here has Deus. § The Margin of Montanus's Bible

Chap.III.

Job XXXVI.

5. Behold, God is (d) mighty, and defoileth not any:

fpileth not any;

be is mighty in

Strength and Wisdom.

6. He preserveth not the Life of the Wicked, but giveth Right to the Poor.

 He withdraweth not his Eyes from the Righteous; but with

(e) Kings are they on the Throne, yea, he doth eitablish them for ever, and they are exalted.

8. And if they be bound in Fetters, and be holden in Cords of Affliction; 9.

Paraphrase.

5. Behold, God is mighty in the highest Sense, or the powerful One; and shall not he who is so reject, with Disdain and Contempt, the Man who is powerful only in Strength of Heart, or is swelled with a conceited Opinion of his own Strength?

6. God will not continue the Lives of fuch as go on to do wickedly, but he will do Justice to the Poor and Afflicted.

- 7. For whatfoever Affliction the Righteous fuffer, God never ceases to take a special Care of them; and God watcheth over and guardeth not only the poor Righteous, even Kings who are fo, whom, after chastifing, and a due Submission and Reformation, he restoreth to a happy Condition, and highly exalteth.
- 8, Or if they should fall 9. into any Trouble, which
- lies as heavy on them, and holds them as fast

70b XXXVI.

9. Then he sheweth them their Work, and their Transgressions that they have exceeded.

their Ear to Discipline, and commandeth that they return from Iniquity.

ferve bim, they shall spend their Days in Prosperity, and their Years in Pleafures:

not, they shall perish by the Sword, and they shall die without Knowlege.

crites in Heart heap up Wrath; they cry not when Paraphrafe. Chap. III. as if they were bound with Chains and with Cords, it is only to make them reflect upon their Lives, and to shew them their Sins, when they grow strong, and begin to prevail over them.

10. He openeth also 10. He disposeth them hereby to listen to Instruction, and admonishes them to forfake their Sins, and return to their Duty.

11. If they obey and 11. And if they profit fo much by their Affliction as to obey his Counsel, and devoutly ferve him, they shall regain their former Splendor, and pass the rest of their Life in Prosperity and Pleafure:

12. But if they obey 12. But if they be disobedient, they shall be utterly cut off, and die in their Folly.

13. But the Hypo- 13. And they that are falsehearted do but heap up Wrath to themselves by their counterfeit Piety;

Chap.III.

70b XXXVI. when he bindeth them:

- 14. They die in Youth, and their Life is among the Unclean.
- 15. He delivereth (f) the Poor in his Affliction, and openeth their Ears in Oppression.
- (g) he have removed thee out of the strait into a broad Place, where there is no Straitness, and that which should be set on thy Table, should be full of Fatness.

(h) filled the Judgment of the Wicked; Judgment and Justice take hold on thee.

18. Be-

Paraphrase. Piety; they cry not to God for Help, when his Punishments take hold of them. 14. They die before their Time, in the Flower of their Age, and perish, like the * impure Sodomites, with an hasty and unexpected Deftruction.

15. Whereas he delivers the poor humble Man in his Affliction, and makes his Oppression the Mean's of giving him wholesome Counfel. i. it faces to ex-

16. Even so would 16. Even so would he have refcued thee, as he has done other Princes, out of these miserable Straits to which thou art reduced: If thou hadft humbly fubmitted to his Correction, Ease. and Plenty should have been thy Portion.

17. But thou hast ful- 17. But thou hast maintained the Cause of the Wicked, and therefore thou art condemned and punished.

70b XXXVI.

18. Because there is (i) Wrath, beware lest he take thee away with bis Stroke; then a great Ranfom cannot deliver thee.

(k) thy Riches? No, not Gold, nor all the Forces of Strength.

20. Desire not the Night, when People are cut off in their Place.

(1) gard not Iniquity; for this haft thou chosen rather than AfflicParaphrase.

18. As the Displeasure of God, upon this Occafion, feems to be hot against thee, take heed. lest thou incense him to fuch a Degree by thy Obstinacy, that he may be provoked to put an end to thy present Life: In that Case, after Death, there will be no Room for the Interpofition or Intercession of the great Redeemer, no Ranfom will be accepted afterwards.

19. Will he esteem 19, Think not that the 20. greatest Wealth or Power can protect thee, when God is displeased with thee: Neither canthe thickest Darkness fcreen thee, when he shall be pleased to cut thee off from the Land of the Living.

21. Take heed, re- 21. But let thy Sufferings teach thee Caution; and shew not the least Liking to that perverse Conceitedness, which . hath brought upon thee fuch Judgments; for thou hast done it too much already,

Chap.III.

70b XXXIV.

(m) alteth by his Who Power: teacheth like him?

(n) joyned him his Way? Or who can fay, thou hast wrought Iniquity?

(o) thou magnify his Work, which Men behold.

25. Every

Paraphrase. ready, in chusing rather to blame the Justice and Providence of God, than to fubmit patiently to, and be reformed by his Chastifements.

22. Behold, God ex- 22. Consider the vast Extent of God's Power: And as he is omniscient, as well as omnipotent, thou shouldst hearken to his Instructions, whether he teacheth by Words or Afflictions.

23. Who hath en- 23. Thy Complaints of his Administration are most abfurd and foolish: for what Inspector is there over him, able to examine and take account of his Actions? Or what Mortal can prefume to fay unto the fupreme Governor of the World, This That is not well done? 24. Remember that 24. Be it thy Care, as it is thy Duty, instead of prying into, and condemning the fecret Ways of God's Providence in his moral Government, to admire, magnify,

70b XXXVI.

25. Every Man may
(0) fee it; Man may behold it afar off.
26. Behold, God is
(p) great, and we know bim not,
neither can the Number of his Years be fearched out.

27. For he maketh fmall the Drops of Water: They pour down Rain, according to the Vapour thereof; 28. Which Paraphrase. Chap.IID magnify, and adore his Name for those wonderful Workings of his in the visible Creation, laid open to Man for his Contemplation, in order to excite in him proper Ideas of the Creator's Grandeur, and by such a View to humble himself, and fall down before the Footstool of such a Being.

25, No Man, who is born 26. with the Senfes and Capacites of a Man; can be ignorant of this Matter; the most distant. as well as near Parts of the Creation teach this universal Lesson; the Earth in every Production proclaims the infinite Power and Goodness of its Creator, and and the Heavens declare the Glory of God: This awful Being is incomprehenfible and eternal.

27, We owe the Fertility
28. of the Earth, and the Fruits of it, to this gracious Being, who by fcattered Droppings, and gentle Distillations, calleth

70b XXXVI. Chap.III. 28. Which Clouds do drop, and distil upon Man abundantly.

> 29. Also can any (q) understand the Spreadings of the Clouds, or Noise of his Tabernacle?

30. Behold, he spread-(q) eth his Light upon it, and covereth the Bottom of the Sea.

(q) judgeth he the People, he giveth Meat in Abundance.

Paraphrase. calleth forth and bringeth to Perfection all Vegetables, which whole Clouds poured down at once would drown and destroy: ThisDistillation refresheth Man likewise, and all the animal tion.

29. And can any one understand how he spreads those Clouds, makesthem hang in the Air, when they are full of Water? Or give an Account of the dreadful Sounds which are heard from thence, and which tell us that his Strength is in those Clouds?

30. Observe also how he fpreads the Beams of the Sun upon these Clouds, and how they penetrate even to the Bottom of the Sea, the very Roots and Foundations of the Deep.

31. For by them 31. These Agents are frequently, in his Hands, the Instruments of rewarding or punishing according Men, their

32. With

700 XXXVI.

(r) covereth the Light, and commandeth it not to Shine by the Cloud that cometh betwixt.

33. The Noise there-(s) of sheweth concerning it, the Cattle also concerning the Vapour.

Paraphrase. Chap.III. their respective Obedience or Disobedience.

32. With Clouds he 32. By these Clouds also he fometimes quite hideth the Sun from us, and fometimes he intercepts the Light of him by the Intervention fome opake heavenly Body, as in Eclipses.

33: The very Cattle perceive the Cloud, as foon as it arises, and declare what God intends to do with it, whether to turn it into Storms and Tempests, or into fruitful Rain and Showers.

ANNOTATIONS.

(A) In this Chapter, Elibu is supposed by Schultens to repeat and enforce the Charge brought against Job in the XXXIIId Chapter. He therefore declares, that fuch only live and die happily as fuffer themselves to be reformed by the Chastisements of God; that the Stubborn and Disobedient, sooner or later, come to a bad End, and fuffer a miserable Death; that the Hypocrites especially, who are puffed up with an Opinion of their own Righteousness, will be made terrible Examples of in the Manner of their Destruction. Towards the Conclusion of `this Chap.III. this Chapter, another fruitful Topic is produced, and pursued in the following Chapter, from whence the strongest Lessons of Humility may be drawn, viz. A Consideration of God's Workings in the natural World, which, seriously attended to, would be sufficient to humble the proudest Head and Heart.

- (a) I will fetch my Knowlege from afar. There is fomething fo peculiarly folemn in this Introduction, that one cannot help paying an uncommon Veneration to the Character of the Speaker, and thinking him to be particularly instructed at least, if he be not in some Respect the same with him, who answered Job out of the Whirwind. The Knowlege which he fetched from afar, if compared with the Questions in the remaining Chapters, appears to flow from the same Fountain of Wisdom. The supposing the Humanity and Divinity of Christ to be here reprefented under two Speakers, will account for this remarkable Congruity of Sentiment and Diction, and that authoritative Manner of speaking, which is fo conspicuous in this and the following Verse.
- (b) I will ascribe Righteousness to my Maker. The principal Design of Elibu, and the great doctrinal Point which he intended to establish and declare to Mankind through Job, are contained in these Words; Righteous art thou, O Lord, and thou only, is the Doctrine here taught. God alone is absolutely, inherently good; Man can be only fo, compared with other Men, and owes Chap.III. to God even that superior Goodness or Righteousness whereby he excells other Men. I observe that there are two Hebrew Words, for the same English Word Maker, used in the 10th Verse of the preceding Chapter, and in this Place, which is to me a strong Confirmation of what is said above concerning the Character of Elibia. In the former Paffage, the Speakers; or supposed Invokers of the Creator, are Mankind in general, and the Word there used is HaSHI, the Verb signifying to frame or put Materials together in a common, usual Manner, as Mankind are generally formed and fashioned after the same Manner by their common Father or Creator, where the Form and Matter are the fame: But the Maker of Elibu is here described under the Name * בעלי, which, the Lexicons fay, fignifies the Perfection of any Act or Work that is a perfect Work. The Greek Parios, the Latin polio, our English Word polish are formed from hence, and the most excellent and curious Workmanship is defcribed

* It may be objected, that in Chap. XXXII. and last Verse, where Elihu calls God my Maker, the Hebrew is Hashni, not PoheLi; but the Reader will observe, that he is here speaking under the Character of Mankind or common Men. Gusseius hath a long and critical Examination of this Word, and therein it plainly appears; that Hasha signifies to work Works, or working ad extra, as PoheL. does the Consilium agendi, or secret Determination to act in such a Manner as to produce such or such an Effect. But this, as well as other Words, is used frequently in a more general or lax Sense, when applyed to common civil Descriptions.

Chap.III. scribed by it. Where these two Words meet, and are to be contradiffinguished, as in Isaiab XLI. 4. the former, fays Robertson, i. e. לעל. est Consilii, Decreti, the other Effectionis. This Sense suits the Character here personated, as he was made as yet only by Counsel or Decree, and was fo made from or before the Foundation of the World: The Sense of Effectionis, or the real actual Exhibition of what before was in Scenery. was explained when God was manifest in the Flesh. The Word here used for Maker may take its full and true Sense from its Use in Deut. XXXII. 4. and this Passage gives good Reason to suppose, that the Maker of Elibu, and of the Work there mentioned, was the fame. The English Version is, He is the Rock, his Work is perfect, &c. 7137 fays the Original, Petra, perfettum Opus ejus, חעלו, nam omnes Viæ ejus Judicium, Deus Veritas et non Iniquitas, justus et rectus ipse. Montanus's Version. Here is THE Rock, emphatically so styled by the Ha prefixed, and the Rabbies feem to point out fomething extraordinary here by the Capital TSaDe here used: Whatever pretended Reason they alledge for it, all the Expressions here used plainly, I think, declare that That Rock was Christ, whose Work, פעלן, is alway perfect, whose Ways are Justice and Judgment, He is God, Truth, there is no Iniquity in him, He is just and Upright. Are not these the Characteristicks we find all along in stating the Doctrine of Righteousness in the Book of 70b, and what what Eliku here ascribes to his Maker, or the Chap.III. human Nature in Christ to the divine? An obvious Reslexion arises from this Observation, that if the Humanity of Christ, which was without Sin, ascribes his Righteousness to the Divinity, his Maker, how much more ought any mere Man so to do, even the best among the Sons of Men?

(c) He that is perfett in Knowlege is with thee. Could any natural Son of the first Adam, any Enosh, say this of himself? Or, if he should, would it not discredit every thing else he should say, instead of recommending his Exhortations, as the Words of Truth and Soberness? Would not his Vanity far exceed that, which he so greatly and justly censured and condemned? Consider the Import of what he afferts with such Considerce; "You may depend upon what I "say as infallibly true, as I, who am now with thee, am perfect in Knowlege." The original Words for perfect and Knowlege are plural, and may intimate One possessed of Perfections and Sciences without Limitation.

After what hath been faid of Elibu, supported by Authorities not to be questioned, not by such at least as believe the Inspiration of the Scriptures, I am forry to observe what a late learned Prelate hath published concerning this wonderful Person. He calls him Learned considering the Age be lived in, pro illis Temporibus erudito. As there are some other Particulars in the Passage

 $U_3$

where

Chap.III. where the above cited Expressions occur, which I may have Occasion to refer to, I will subjoin the * Whole, and leave the Reader to make his own Conclusions and Reflections, after a fair and Chap.III. impartial Consideration of all Particulars, since I am not disposed to censure any, much less to speak disrespectfully of the learned Dead, especially of a Person, whose great Learning and Rank in the Christian Church must oblige us to conclude, that he believed the divine Inspiration of the Scriptures: But a Silence in such a Case would, I thought, be criminal.

* Pfalm CVII. v. 40. Sopec. "Utrumque Pe-66 riodi hujus Membrum babetur Job XII. 21-24. 66 Sed ibi fex Versiculi interpositi sunt inter illa; quæ hîc 66 funt conjuncta. Verum uter ab altero desumpserit, cum incertum sit quo Tempore Liber Febi scriptus 66 fuerit, aliis Indiciis investigandum est. Mihi quidem videntur hæc de Jobi Libro desumpta, cum Sopec in 66 Tob optime conveniat cum reliqua Orationis Structura; · ibi enim fingulæ Periodi, a decimâ feptimâ ad vicefimam quartam, a Participio activo inchoantur: Hîc vero, si Structura Orationis servaretur, dicendum es potius erat jispoc in Futuro, ut intuenti liquebit; quod 66 observandum duxi, quia contra censet Cl. Clericus, 4 Auctorem Jobi sua e Psalmis hausisse, in Libello dicto Les Sentiments, &c. contra Simonii Criticam Histoce riam, ante Annos quinquaginta conscripto; a quâ 66 Sententia nunquam videtur decessisse. Liceat verò 55 hîc obiter observare, Librum istum non modò Metro, ut Pfalmos, scriptum esse, sed certissime Drama sacrum 'esse; quod cum aliis Argumentis, tum hoc " maxime constat, quod si totum Librum in septem es æquales Partes dividas, quatuor implent Jobus et tres Amici ejus, primis Capitibus connumeratis, quintam Gobus folus, fextam Elibuus, septimam Deus. Elibuus Dei Causam in se recipit ex Voto Jobi IX, 32. et alibi; Deus vero ipse tandem introducitur, quem se 66 visurum tantâ Fiduciâ Jobus dixerat XIX. 23. ut " mæstissimo Dramati nalas goon tandem selix obtingat. 44 Addam ex c. XXXII. 16. videri hujus Dramatis . Elikuum ipfum Auctorem fuisse, qui το πρεστον egregiè 66 servayit in ultimo Capite, ubi hi tres Jobi Amici a Deo culpantur, quod non de ipso recte loquuti sint. Jobus verò in Integrum restituitur: At de Elibuo 66 Nihil dicitur, quæ ejus Modestia fuit. Sed et tota Dramatis Compositio Elibuo unice convenit, Homini fc. Ingenio juvenili, vivido, facundo, Inventione et 56 mirà dicendi Copia luxurianti, iis præsertim Partibus, quas Deo tribuit, et pro illis Temporibus erudito."

(d) Behold, God is mighty, &c. The Sense and Construction given in my Paraphrase must, I think, be admitted, as most consistent with the general, allowed Rules of Interpretation. The Translation in our Bible, which breaks the Verse by making a Stop at a Verb transitive, or putting the Word any (for which there is no Hebrew) to be governed by it, and then beginning as it were a fresh Clause with the Words, be is (not in the Original) cannot, I think, be defended or approved of, especially when a literal Version, without Supplements, gives a better Sense: The Version in Montanus's Bible is, Ecce Deus fortis, et non abjiciet fortem Potentia Cordis. This Tranflation rectifies the latter Clause in Point of Grammar, by making the transitive Verb govern the following Word fortem; but the Sense is hereby more obscured. My Opinion therefore is, that the latter Clause should be rendered interrogatively, Shall be not, i. e. shall not God, reject, with Disdain and Contempt, him who is powerful in Strength of Heart? the Verb fignifying, ac-U4 cording Chap.III. cording to Robertson, rejicere cum Fastidio, tanquam vile et contemptum, quippiam. Thus the sull Sense of each Expression is preserved, and the Drift of the whole Speech carried on and supported: Vain Man, who would contend with Omnipotence, is placed in that ridiculous Point of View, which such a Competitor deserves.

> If the latter Clause be made an entire one (which no Grammar Rules, I think, can allow) then God must be denominated præpotens Robore Cordis, which is the literal Version given by Schultens: But, I think, the Denomination of one very powerful in Strength of Heart is better faid of a felf-sufficient Man, than of God, whose Strength is of another Kind. Mascleff says that the Interrogative is frequently understood, though not written, and, by being added where the Sense requires it, clears up many Obscurities in the Scriptures. In the IId Chapter of this very Book. Ver. 10. the English Translators thought themselves obliged to suppose this 7 to be understood, though not written, and render this very Adverb, Lo, as though it were ,, annon, and thereby make the Sense full and compleat, Shall we receive Good at the Hand of the Lord, and shall we not receive Evil? The Interrogative is not here expressed, but necessarily understood, and appears to me to be necessary to be understood and applyed in the Passage here confidered. The Reader may fee more Instances in Glassius.

(e) With Kings are they on the Throne, &c. Chap.III. What is faid here, and in the following Verses, concerning Kings, seems to confirm what many have afferted concerning Job's being a great Prince in the East; and upon this Supposition, this Part of Elibu's Speech is more pertinent and conclusive. The Words rendered, establish them for ever, may be rendered, be will cause them to be restored to, or return to a State of that Kind of Felicity and Pleasure, which those enjoy who, by true Courage and Perseverance in Duty, are victorious over their Enemies: The Verb NaTSaCH (whence the Word translated in our Bible, for ever) signifying victoriose Operam ad Finem perducere. Robertson.

(f) He delivereth the Poor, &c. (g) Even fo would be have removed thee, &c. God has no Regard to the Distinctions of High or Low, Rich or Poor, Prince or Subject, in his Dealings with Men. Such as fincerely endeavour to pleafe him, by an entire uniform Obedience, are, through the Merits of a Redeemer, accepted by him. A proud Heart is his greatest Aversion, whether it be found with Riches or Poverty. Where this happens, God in Mercy oftentimes fendeth Afflictions, to bring fuch Offenders to a right Sense of themselves; and when they anfwer the Intention of these Punishments, by bumbling themselves under the mighty Hand of God, he withdraweth the Burden which lay fo heavy on them: And Job would have found this Ease, Chap.III. could he have brought his Heart to such a Submission. Blessed are the poor in Spirit, is the finest Comment upon this Passage.

- (h) But thou hast fulfilled the Judgment of the Wicked. The Obstinacy of Job, and his adhering to the Opinion of such as thought Man might be unblameable in his Conduct, and so righteous as to need no Repentance, or Assistance in the way of justifying him before God, made Job miserable, and kept him so *.
- (i) Because there is Wrath, beware lest he take thee away with his Stroke; then a great Ransom cannot deliver thee. The Argument, here used by Elihu, shews the Height of Joh's Crime. All the Artillery of Heaven, usually employed against such Rebels, had hitherto been unsuccessfully applyed, so that Nothing remained but the last Stroke, or a fatal Excision; and whoever shall die with such spiritual Pride about him, must inevitably perish, without Hopes of Deliverance or Redemption. After Death, the great Ransom, Rob CoPHeR, as the Original speaks, the great Cover or Coverer, who

blotteth

* It appears hence, that Job was not yet perfected by Sufferings, or brought to a fincere Confession of that great Sin, for which he had suffered so much: And God teems to have prolonged his Punishment, and made him pass through such a Course of Misery, to fix the Attention of Mankind to this great Point, and convince them of the great Danger of this capital Crime, which threatned the Salvation of his People, and was like to be the great stumbling Block, and most successful Device of Satān, through all succeeding Generations.

blotteth out the Transgressions of the humble Chap. III. Penitent, and bideth his Sins, fo that they may not appear against him in Judgment at the last Day, will not deliver any. Permit me to enlarge the Comment upon this important Passage, in the way of a personal Address to 70b in his extremest Afflictions. "The Grace " and Mercy now offered to thee, upon finse cere Repentance, and Faith, and Trust in a "Redeemer, cannot, after Death, be extended 56 to thee or any Man. If thou dieft in an ob-56 stinate, impenitent State, thou must feel the Wengeance of a despised Saviour, and in vain " implore the Affistance of his Merits, when " thou shalt find that thou hast none of thine 66 own that can fave thee from Punishment, much " less intitle thee to any Favour or Reward. 56 Thou mayst then apply thyself to him or "them, who perfuaded thee to reject the proffered Righteousness of the Redeemer, and to se rely entirely upon thine own: But be affured, " that if thou leavest the World with such an "Opinion, and depending upon fuch a Reed, "thou wilt rife to Judgment with the highest "Sin about thee." This spiritual Pride was the very Sin of Lucifer, and the Foundation of that Plan of Independency, which caused the Fall of Angels from their first Estate, and which the Arch-Rebel has been constantly erecting his Batteries upon, to demolish the Christian Fabric, and Chap.III. and ruin the gracious Scheme of redeeming Mankind by Jesus Christ.

The above Comment is chiefly founded upon the English Translation, being taken away by his Stroke. But the Words will admit, and, I think, require another Construction, not inconsistent with that already given, but more just, and more apposite to the principal Point in view. The Hebrew Word, rendered by his Stroke, is translated in Montanus's Bible, in Sufficientia, which is the true Interpretation of it, by the Consent of Lexicographers. Sapek is plainly the Noun of the Verb, which is rendered fuffecit; fo that the Translation must be, according to this Version, He will remove thee, or * cause thee to be taken away in thy Sufficiency, i. e. whilst thou entertainest this vain conceited Opinion of thyself. Was there any Doubt what Job's Crime was, or what was the Scope of this Book, and the Reafon of God's Dealing thus with 70b, this Place is, I think, full and plain enough to fatisfy any impartial and reasonable Enquirer: Elibu here expressly warns Job, that if he persisted in his Notion of Sufficiency, and, in that Sense, bolding fast bis Integrity, he would be in Danger of being taken out of the World, with his spiritual Pride sticking fast to him. Then such as have neglected or refused to be sprinkled with the

Blood

* The Verb here used is in Hiphil, and this marginal Comment is set down in Montanus's Bible, e Mundo removeat te Flagello.

Blood of the Lamb, to wash away Sin, to con-Chap.III. fecrate and perfect human Virtue, shall be exposed to the merciles Rage of the Lion. To his Friends and Supplicants our Redeemer is a Lamb; but to his Enemies and Scorners a roaring and devouring Lion.

(k) Will be efteen thy Riches? all the Forces of Strength. (l) Regard not Iniquity. (m) * Behold, God exalteth by his Power. The Word, translated efteen, fignifies to fet in Array, as Armies are before an Engagement, and therefore Schultens renders the Expression, in Acie stabit: Shall Job contend with God, or presume to engage with Omnipotence, trusting in his Royalty, or any strong Forces which he may be possessed of? He, who gave them, could soon take them away, and thereby put a speedy and easy End to the Dispute. Elibu therefore advises him not to regard Iniquity, to put away this accursed Opinion of his being perfect, without needing any Assistance, and then he should enjoy real, though delegated

* As the Verb, translated he exalteth, is a Future in Hiphil, it should, I suppose, be rendered, he will cause to be exalted or raised: And as it must have hereby a translitive Construction, Man must be the Substantive understood, for the Action to pass upon, and the Word Power, in that Case, must relate to Man, as the immediate Antecedent. The Translation, according to these Rules, must run thus, Behold God will cause Man to be restored or exalted in his, or in respect of his, Strength or Abilities. A marginal Reference in Montanus's Bible interprets this Verb, eruet Hominem: Thus the Sense will be, It is God alone, who is able to lift up and enlarge the Faculties of the human Mind, or Intellect.

Chap.III. delegated Power; his Strength and Wisdom should thus be increased, as it is God alone who exalteth by his Power, and who teacheth like him? Two Hebrew Words, MAMeTSI CoaCH, rendered here Forces of Strength, may be explained to an useful Purpose. The former Word is an Hemantic Noun, from a Verb which fignifies to invent or to suffice, autagnew; to be self-sufficient; and properly expresses the Inventions and vainglorious Imaginations of Men, wherein they are apt to place their chief Confidence. The primary Sense of the other Word, is any imagined human Excellency, wherein Man is apt to trust, and which often fails him, and is an Occasion of his Ruin: It is used for that Strength; wherein Sampson trusted and excelled; likewise for the Power of the King of the North, Dan. xi. 25. What we understand by the Word Faculty, seems to be the leading Idea; but it is frequently attributed to God, as in the following Verses of this Chapter, and in other Places, inasmuch as every Kind of Power and Strength was and is originally in him, and derived from him *.

As

* It may be added, that Buxtorf likewise, from Scripture Authorities, tells us, that the Verb MaTSA signifies fufficere, as well as invenire. Upon the Whole, the leading Ideas of these two Words sully express that State of spiritual and intellectual Pride, which is supposed to be the high Crime, which it is the Scope of this Book to bring down and reform in the Person of Job and his Adherents. The Strength and Virtue by them relied upon were only imaginary Notions or Inventions, wild Conceits

As Schultens has an useful Note upon this Place, Chap.III.

I will here give it the Reader for his Curiosity and Instruction, as well as the Support of my own Opinion. "Negat Elibuus omnia illa, a

" quibus confidere videbatur Jobius, imprimis Mu" nificentiam in Pauperibus folandis, reliquafque

"Virtutes, strenuè ac præclarè ab ipso exercitas

" ad Ornamentum Reipublicæ, ad Decus Eccle-

" siæ, valituras esse apud Tribunal Dei, ubi se-

" mel, ut contumax, venisset per Æstum Nasi, se

" haud Deo submittentis," &c.

(n) Who bath enjoyned him his Way? One would think, by this Question, that such a Set of Blasphemers infested the Patriarchal Church, as have appeared in the latter Days, who prefumed to dictate to the God who gave them Breath, and Life, and all Things. However that might be, some modern Writers have dared to do what feems by this Question to be esteemed so absurd and ridiculous, and have enjoyned God his Way, fuppoling him to be under a Necessity of acting according to the eternal and immutable Fitness, Nature, and Relations of Things, as stated and established by themselves: And where they think he has faid or done otherwife in their superior Judgment, they correct, reject, and blaspheme. Charges of Absurdities, Contradictions, Impossiceits of an inherent Sufficiency, which had no real Foundation. Their Knowlege therefore was of that Kind which puffeth up, and their Strength such as would certainly fail and give way.

Chap.III. bilities to be found in the facred Records arise from hence, and make the Contents of every infidel Book which appears: And what is still more lamentable, these high Impieties and Accufations feem to be the only Recommendations of fuch Books, and make them faleable, fince they afford Nothing that can please a Christian or a Scholar. Such as alledge any other Law, prior or fuperior to that which we find in the Word of God, would do well to ask themselves (for they are autodidantoi, self-taught, and ready to answer the Question, Who teacheth like him? by infifting upon their own fuperior Abilities) Who was the Lawgiver, as no Law can be such without a Legislator? When was this Law promulged? Where is any authentic Copy depofited, should there be any Dispute about the original Reading? If no greater Legislator can be found than vain, finful Man, the Breath of a Laugh may perhaps break the Bubble, which they have been fo much pleafed with. As to the Promulgation and Original, they must go back to Babel, and try whether any, and what was the Religion fettled and established there by the Meeting of fo many Advocates for a Religion of their own framing, as they will not find any Thing compleat of that Kind elsewhere, not even in that Country where all Religions, it is faid, may be found.

(0) Remember that thou magnify his Work, &c. Man may behold it afar off. Here Elihu introduces another Topic, from whence the most co-Chap.III. pious and powerful Arguments may be drawn to press and inculcate the Doctrine of Humility, and the necessary Dependance of all created Beings upon him, who made and governs all the natural World. What are all the poor little Efforts and conceited Excellencies of human Power, compared with the stupendous Effects of infinite Power and Wisdom, displayed in every Part and extended View of the visible Creation, especially the celestial Globe, or that which is afar off! As an excellent modern Writer hath placed this Argument in a strong and beautiful Light, I shall present the Reader with an Extract, relative to this Point, from his Book, which is intitled, Knowlege of divine Things from Revelation, &c.

" When Man views the numberless Species of

" Creatures that are below him in Degrees of "Perfection, he is apt to be exalted with his own Self-fufficiency: But when he looks up" wards, and fees how much farther he is re-" moved from the infinite Being of God, when he considers the Heavens, even the Work of his Fingers, the Moon, and the Stars, which he hath ordained; filled with Wonder at the divine

"Wisdom and Mercy, and abashed at his own

16 Ignorance and Weakness, is forced to cry out,

Lord, what is Man, that thou art so mindful of

" bim!"

This Extract is sufficient to shew the Propriety of Eliku's referring Job, and in him all Mankind. X

Chap.III. Mankind, to the Contemplation of the magnificent Theatre of the Universe, more especially the ample and bright Canopy of the Heavens, to learn Humility. Its Connexion likewise with his principal Defign plainly appears: It is no wanton Digression, or the Excursion of a sportive Fancy; festinat ad Rem, in this as well as other Parts: All tend to lower the Swellings of an aspiring Mind, and make Man know himself. The Author of the Book of Wisdom shews this Connexion in one remarkable Line, For thy Power is the Beginning of Righteousness, Chap. XII. 16. which is proved by an Induction of Particulars in the following Verses of this Chapter.

(p) We know bim not, &c. By we is underflood human Nature, or Mankind, who are not able by their own Powers to know God, whatever they pretend to, and actually, if we believe Elibu, know not God. The New Testament says the same Thing, The World by Wisdom, that is human Wisdom, knew not The Being and Attributes of God therefore (if these Things are so) are not to be proved or demonstrated from merely natural Principles, without Data, or by the unaffifted Powers of human Reason. I believe in God, is an Article of Faith, as well as the Resurrection of the Body: The Instances of God's gracious Providences vouchsafed to Man, here given, are enough to filence any Boaftings of the most liberal and best-disposed Mind: They are remarkably pertinent and applicable to Job's Plea of Chap. III. Merit, in relieving many and various Objects of Charity. If 70b relieved a few: Neighbours in Diffress, which he thought so great a Merit, what was bis, compared with the Millions daily fed by the Bounty of God, by whose Liberality even Job himself was supplied and made liberal? There is fomething likewife divine enough to filence any little Boafter of this Kind, in the Manner of God's bestowing his Benefits, as here represented. The Clouds are sent to every Part that wants, and commissioned to distribute, as they fail along, an universal Plenty, distilling and fpreading their Riches and Fatness in such Portions, as may be fufficient for each Part of the Earth, and in fuch Quantities, as may be required in different Seasons. How such a Conspiration or Co-operation of the Elements, for fo many various Purposes, should be effected, without a constant, directing, superior Power, is not, I think, to be accounted for by any Academy or Royal Society, by any fettled, fure Principles of what is called Philosophy.

(q) Also can any understand the Spreadings of the Clouds—Noise of his Tabernacle?— Spreadeth his Light upon it, and covereth the Bottom of the Sea—By them judgeth he the People. Here are Cases put, which, I think, cannot be satisfactorily explained by the greatest Adepts, even of this enlightened Age. By understanding the Spreadings of the Clouds is meant, I presume, a Knowlege of X 2

Chap.III. the Laws of Expansion, or how Fire, Light, and - Air, in their feveral Combinations and various Operations, produce fuch strange Effects: By what Powers, or Springs of Action, the Clouds are gathered, fpread, contracted, dilated, suspended, diffipated, and entirely diffolved; and all this iust when and where these Alterations are necesfary or serviceable to the Uses of the terraqueous Globe. What is translated Noise of his Tabernacle, may, I conceive, be rendered the Devastations of his Covering or Tabernacle, i. e. the Waste that is sometimes made by the Burstings of Clouds (here called his Tabernacle) and those terrible Inundations, which lay waste and destroy a Country and the Inhabitants of it. The Word. rendered Noise, comes from a Verb fignifying vastatus est; desolatus est. Waste seems to be the leading Idea, Noise the secondary, as these great Cataracts are attended with frightful Noises, Strepitus, veluti ruptarum Nubium, as Schultens speaks. Hereby the Clouds and Workings of the Firmament (though generally ordered for the Support and Preservation of this sublunary World) are the Executioners of God's Vengeance; and the Calamities brought upon Men, and Loss of their Fortunes by these Instruments, are manifest Declarations of the Wrath of the Almighty. Sinful Man may ask, why do not these Clouds more frequently burst, for Destruction, than fall in small Drops, for the Use and Preservation of Man? To whose restraining Power, and abused Goodness and.

and Mercy, is this to be attributed? Let us Chap.III. think of these Things, and be thankful for the Restraint laid upon these Clouds, that their Burstings are not more frequent.

(r) (s) These two Verses do not seem to be fully explained in any Translation or Comment I have met with. Le Clerc has given us the best Assistance herein, by the Construction of the Word CaPHIM—Si sic omnia! The true English of this Word is Hemispheres, not Clouds, as in our Translation, or Hands, as in Schultens's. Its Idea is fetched from Caph, a Hand, or rather Vola, the Hand in a balf-bent Attitude, as about to grasp any thing: When it is incurvated, it gives the Figure of an Hemisphere, and therefore, as it is here plural, must fignify both the Hemispheres, instead of the geminam Manum of Schultens, which gives no Sense, as I think the other Construction does, when the other Words, here joined with it, are explained. The Word, translated covereth, does not always fignify such a Covering as concealeth, but any Sort of spreading over, as here, a Garment of Light. Sometimes it gives the Idea of a Throne; and then will fignify the Throne, or principal Place, where Light relides and shines, as in its Throne. The first Part of the first Verse may then be rendered, Over and upon the Hemispheres he hath spread Light as a Garment, or inthroned it in its highest Majesty and Splendor; then follows, according to the literal Translation, And he bath made StaChap.III. tutes or Laws (from ZaVa) by, or with regard to. an Intercessor or Intervener, which he bath caused or appointed. The Verb PaGaNG, whence the Noun here used for Intervener is derived, fignifies, as the Lexicons agree, occurrit, incurrit, intercedit, intervenit, each Word descriptive of the various Motions of the heavenly Bodies. The first and necessary Sense of these Expressions is intended to account for, in my humble Opinion, the Nature of Eclipses, and the Laws made by the Creator concerning these Appearances; which were explained in fome Measure, to quiet the Apprehensions of God's People, whenever they should happen. They were therefore informed, that in the planetary Revolutions, and their different Ways of Motion, whenever one of these opake, floating Bodies should pass between the Light and any Part of the Earth, its. usual Effect and Splendor would be interrupted. But there was a farther and spiritual Meaning in hinting the Business of this MaPaGING, or natural Interceffor. As this did fometimes intercept the קבה, or that burning Fire which was in the folar Body, fo did the Redeemer, or divine Interceffor, stand between Man and the Wrath of God; which Wrath is called by this very Name in this Chapter, CHeMa. The Reader may fee Authorities for the Use of the Word PaGaNG, in both the Senses here alledged, in Stockius and others: I would translate the next Clause thus, He will cause to be proclaimed (the Verb is in. Hiphil)

Hipbil) upon it or over it (Light, or the Place of Chap.III.) it) this Sound, which is the Voice of Thunder, Oracle of God: And the last Clause seems to be the Declaration of the Deity, after such an awful and solemn Notice, to command Attention.

The Treasure of Wrath, or the whole Store of divine Vengeance, is against (reserved for) an aspiring, proud Man. Schultens's Comment upon the Words, The Noise thereof sheweth concerning it (de eo) is this, " Nempe de Fulmine, quòd fic " Ira inflammatissima contra Superbos:" So that he makes the Words to speak the Greatness and Fulness of God's Displeasure against Pride and Loftiness of Mind. The Lexicographers say, that Mikneb, translated in our Bible Cattle, fignifies a Possession, Treasure, Inheritance, or Cattle, used promiscuously as synonymous Expressions, because the Treasure or Possessions of Men in the first Ages consisted in Cattle. HOLE, translated in our Bible Vapour, has not that particular Limitation of its Senses in any Lexicon that I have met with. In the Margin of the English Bible it is interpreted, That which goeth up. It comes from a Verb which fignifies to ascend; and as the Word here is the Participle Benoni, the present active Participle, it must point out a Thing or Person in the Ast or Condition of ascending, or aspiring, and therefore, as to the Sense, is well rendered by Schultens, elatum, more grammatically in Montanus's Bible, ascendente; both Words, Ascending and Vapour, are aptly descriptive of a X 4 Perfon

Chap.III. Person still rising in his own Opinion: So that the Reader, if he pleases, may take in the Idea of a Vapour in his ascertaining the intended Meaning of this Passage, inasmuch as the Fumes of a proud fantastick Imagination are Nothing more than a Vapour.

The Reader may observe, that I have used Bishop Patrick's Paraphrase upon the last Verse, as most conformable to, and making Sense of the present English Translation, though I have altered the latter Part of the Paraphrase on Ver. 32. It is lest to impartial Believers, how far the new Construction here offered should be accepted, my Intention being only to propose what I think is right, without presuming to dictate, or to impose my private Opinion upon any.

Job XXXVII. (A)

1. At this also my

- (a) Heart trembleth, and is moved out of his Place.
- 2. Hear attentively (b) the Noise of his Voice, and the Sound that goeth out of his Mouth.

Paraphrase.

1. These Noises and Devastations, in and from the middle Region of the Air, make my very Heart to tremble, and to be so violently agitated as though it was leaving my Body.

2. Hearken to those terrible Noises, which come from these Clouds: The smallest Murmurs of them are so dreadful, that they may be fitiy

ftyled

Job XXXVII.

- 3. He directeth it under the whole Heaven, and his Lightning unto the Ends of the Earth.
- 4. After it a Voice roareth; he thundreth with the Voice of his Excellency, and he will not stay them when his Voice is heard.
- 5. God thundreth marvellously with his Voice; great Things doth he which we cannot comprehend.
- 6. For he faith to
- (c) the Snow, be thou on the Earth; likewise to the small Rain, and to the great Rain of his Strength.

445

Paraphrase. Chap.III. styled the Voice of God, calling Men to stand in awe of him.

- 3. It is heard far and near, piercing the whole Region of the Air, accompanied with Flashes of * Lightning, which shoot to the Ends of the Earth.
- 4. After them follow the Claps of Thunder, more terrible than the Roarings of a Lion, which grow louder and louder, till they conclude in violent Rain, or Hail, or Tempest.

5. And he, who thunders thus with his most wonderful Voice, doeth other great Things, which the Wit of Man cannot comprehend.

6. He likewise, in the immediately succeeding Winter Season, makes the Snow fall from the Clouds, and commands it to cover the Earth; and at the same Time fends a Variety and great Plenty of Rain.

7. He

7. The

* So Bishop Patrick.

Chap.III.

7. He fealeth up the Hand of every Man, that all Men may know his Work.

8. Then the Beafts go into Dens, and remain in their Places.

 Out of the South cometh the Whirlwind, and Cold out of the North.

God Frost is given, and the Breadth of the Waters is strait-ned.

11. Also by watering

(d) he wearieth the thick Cloud; he feattereth his bright Cloud,

Paraphrase.

7. The Quantity of Rain and Snow that falls is formetimes fo great, that the Husbandmen cannot go on in their Work; and when this happens, it is designed that they should look up to God, as the Author of it.

8. At this Scafon, the very Beafts retire to their lurking Places, and keep close within their Dens.

9. From one Quarter of the Heavens blow tempestuous Winds, and from the opposite Quarter cold, chilling Blasts.

10. These sharp Winds are likewise that Breath of God, whereby Frost is given, and the Waters are so bound up by it, that they cannot flow.

r. The fame Being likewife wearieth the thick, clofe-compacted Clouds, by fpending and feparating them by the intervening Beams of the Sun, when they begin to have more Strength; and the Intervention of these Beams give a bright

12. And

70b XXXVII.

12. And it is turned round about by his Counfels; that they may do whatsoever he commandeth them upon the of Face the World in the Earth.

come, whether for Correction, or for his Land, or for Mercy.

14. Hearken unto (e) this, O 70b: Stand still, and confider the wondrous Works of God.

(f) when God difposed them, and caused the Light

Paraphrase. Chap.III. bright Appearance to 4 these Clouds.

12. The Course of these Clouds is according to his Counfels, to execute his Commands, according to their various Aspect towards, and Influence on, the Earth in its annual Revolution.

13. He causeth it to 13. God indeed sendeth the Rains fometimes in too great Plenty, to punish a finful People, in order to reform them by feafonable Check: But most commonly they fall for the Benefit of the Land, and in Mercy to a penitent People, when reclaimed by the Chastisements of God.

> 14. Listen diligently to these Things, O Job; do not dispute any more with God, but confider these his wonderful Works.

15. Dost thou know 15. Dost thou know when Things were first ranged in that beautiful Order, wherein thou now beholdest Chap.III.

Job XXXVII. of his Cloud to fhine?

Ballancings of the Clouds, wondrous

(g) Works of him which is perfect in Knowlege?

- ments are warm, when he quieteth the Earth by the South-wind?
- 18. Hast thou with! him spread out the Sky, which is strong, and as a molten Looking-glass?

we shall say unto him; for we cannot

Paraphrase. beholdest them? Or can'it thou tell when Light was first formed?

16. Dost thou know 16. Can'st thou account for the Suspension of the Clouds in the Air, and what is that fecret Power which keeps them in that Situation? Can'st thou assign the Reasons of many other fuch Works, as are effected by an all-knowing Being?

17. How thy Gar- 17. Why do the same Garments feem to be warmer at one Time than other? How do Calms come out of the fame Quarter, from whence come Tempests?

18. Didst thou co-operate with God, when stretched out the Sky; in which, as in a Mirrour, we behold the admirable Power Wisdom of him, who, though it be fo wide and vast, made it as firm, as it is clear and bright?

19. Teach us what 19. Teach Mankind, thou can'st, what Anfwer they fhall make

to 70b XXXVII. cannot order our Speech by reason of Darkness.

20. Shall it be told him that I fpeak? . If a Man speak, furely he shall be fwallowed up.

fee not the bright Light which is in the Clouds, but the Wind paffeth, and cleanfeth them.

22. Fair Weather cometh out of the North: With God is terrible ... Majesty.

Paraphrase. Chap. III. to these Questions: They must confess, that their Ignorance is fo great, that they are quite confounded when they attempt it.

Is any thing that Man can fay worth his Notice? Whoever it be that goes about to anfwer him, shall lose himfelf, and his little Stock of Knowlege be foon spent.

21. And now Men 21. Men perceive not the Causes of that bright Appearance, which there is fometimes in the Clouds; but the Air passeth through thinneth them, fo that the Rays of the Sun thereby appear in them, and brighten them.

Fair and ferene Weather feems likewife to come from the northern Pole; as the Sun, in the Summer-Season, seems to begin and end its daily Course that Way. in many Parts of the The Conclu-Earth. sion of this Point is, that the Majesty of.

God

23. Touch-

70b XXXVII. Chap.III.

> 22. Touching (h) Almighty, we cannot find him out; he is excellent in Power, and in Judgment, and in Plenty of Tustice; he will not afflict.

> fear him: He respecteth not any that are wife of Heart.

Paraphrase. God is dreadful, and his Works and Proceedings not to be too curiously pried into, but adored and praised with the deepest Reverence.

the 23. For when we have done all we can, we must acknowlege that the Almighty cannot be comprehended by Understanding: His Power is fo excellent, his Judgment fo exact, his Justice so unexceptionable, that he ought not to be questioned by us for what he doeth; but if he be, he will not give an Account of his Actions.

24. Men do therefore 24. Which should make all Men stand in awe of him, and lowly adore, rather than boldly difpute with him: For he despiseth all those, who are wife or good in their own Conceits.

ANNOTATIONS.

(A) The Argument taken from the Contemplation of the Firmament and celestial Orbs, and and applyed in general in the latter Verses of Chap.III. the preceding Chapter, to give Job and others just Notions of themselves, of the divine Power, of human Weakness and Insignificancy, is here continued and enforced, in a strong and curious View of the particular Vicissitudes or Seasons of the Year, which are entirely owing to the Direction of Providence, acting in and upon the visible Creation.

(a) The Alexandrian Copy of the LXX makes this the concluding Verse of the last Chapter, as do likewise Tremellius and Junius. Though this be no very material Point, yet the fresh Call of Elibu upon his Audience, for Attention to what he had farther to urge upon this Subject, and more solemnly to introduce what he was about to say upon the concluding Part of his Advice and Sentence, makes this Division, I think, more proper than the common one.

(b) Upon the Supposition (hinted by Schultens) that this Chapter contains a Description of the four Seasons of the Year, to mark out more particularly the Work of the divine Agency in each to the Observation of Job, &cc. this Passage, from the 2d to the End of the 5th Verse, connected with what is said in the latter Verses of the foregoing Chapter, is, I think, fully descriptive of the first or Autumnal Season. The Terror excited in Man by the Noises of broken Clouds, and descending Cataracts, when these Clouds burst, with the wasting Inundations which are caused

Chap. III. caused hereby, refer us to this Season, when such Thunder-Clouds most usually happen. At this Time likewise, these dreadful Noises, which are fometimes enough to move the stoutest Heart out of its Place, are made more terrible by amazing Flashes of Destruction, sent forth from the Almighty in horrible Thundrings and Lightnings: These are said to be directed to every Part of the Firmament, and this Light or these Lightnings are extended to the Wings of the Earth. By these Wings, I suppose, are meant the Airs, by whose Columns or Pillars the Earth is supported, and by whose Agency, in a great Measure, it is whirled round with a swift, but a well-ballanced, and well-conducted Flight. The latter Clause of the 3d Verse, rendered bis Lightning unto the Ends of the Earth, must be tranflated, And his Light is upon the Wings of the Earth: The Light acts with or upon the Wings or Airs, to effect the annual and diurnal Motion of the Earth. Though the Phanomena feem to be produced by some inherent Powers of the Air and Light, in a particular Condition or Combination, or by an Agent who claims a Principality in this Region, and was worshipped by the Mediation of those Powers, yet God is here declared to be the fole Agent and Cause of these astonishing Productions. It is God who directeth every thing in, and under the whole Heaven. It is the Voice of God, the Voice of his Excellency or great Majesty. These wonderful Works Works have no other Author; Mankind are Chap.III. only to adore what they cannot comprehend.

One Defign of Elibu's being so particular in these Observations upon the Workings of and in the Firmament was, I presume, to reprove and refute the common Idolatry of that Age, and the Country bordering upon Job, which was the Worship of the Host of Heaven, and the stupendous Powers supposed to be principally in the Firmament, which produced such grand Effects, far beyond the Reach of human or visible Power.

(c) We have from this Verse to the End of the 10th, a perfectly descriptive Account of the Winter Season; and the Author of all the Appearances which mark it out is expressly declared. As God is the sole Cause of all those Effects which distinguish the Autumnal Season, so is he likewise of those surprizing Changes of the Face of Nature in the Winter Part of the Year; which are often ascribed to second Causes, or a necessary eternal Order of Things, established upon certain independent Laws of Nature. God is said expressly to order these seemingly natural Effects by the same Fiat which he used in Creating the World. Enough perhaps is said in the Text and Paraphrase to illustrate and point out the Characteristicks of this uncomfortable Time.

I have supposed, that Elibu began with the Autumnal Season in reclaiming to God, as their true Cause, the Operations of the natural World.

This

Chap.III. This Season was the first in Order, as the World was supposed, upon good Reason, I think, to have been created at that Time, when every Part of the vegetable Creation was in that Condition wherein it appears at that Season. The Fruits of the Earth, particularly the Trees of Fruits, (HeZ PeRI) according to the Hebrew Idiom, being in the State of Innocence appointed to be the necessary Food and Support of Man, were in their highest Beauty and Perfection, when their Lord and the Favourite of Heaven was placed in his well-stored Garden. He had a fine Stock to begin with; and a pious Acknowlegement of the Author, with an easy Cultivation and Act of Obedience, would have been fufficient to have continued every Bleffing he enjoyed. But the Condition of Man feemed to sympathize with the Alteration of the Face of Nature and the Course of the Year; the Fall of Man and of the Year were immediately succeeded by a Winter Severity, which for a short Time seemed to kill both. Man and Nature lay in a State of Death, when the Powers of both seemed to be sealed up. But this was permitted that all Men may know bis Work; that a fuller Display of his Power, Wisdom, and Goodness might be opened in the wonderful Scheme of reviving and redeeming Man. The natural World was foon restored to Life and Beauty; the Frost and Snow soon melted away and vanished, and the Year by infensible Degrees recovered itself, and appeared in a new, fresh Bloom.

Bloom, and most engaging Dress. The Pro-Chap.III. mise likewise gave new Life to Man, and clothed him with a richer and more glorious Immortality, than even Innocence itself would have intitled him to: For had not Man fallen, the Son of God would not have dignified our Nature by taking it upon himself; and his Appearance in it must certainly be a Means of an higher Glorisication, than it would otherwise have been advanced to. Befides, by dying, Man will be more fensible of the Bleffing of Immortality, and more thankful for it. Without feeing the World in its Death of Winter, the increasing Beauties of Spring would not afford half the Pleasure which we feel in the Variety of its Drefs, in its advancing Progress, in its leifurely, and so more observable Expansions, and in its fuller Appearances. The gradual Steps of Man and Nature, towards a perfect Recovery and Restoration, serve to mark out more distinctly the remarkable Manifestations of the Glory of God in his two grand Works of Creation and Redemption. agreeable Affociation of Ideas has infenfibly prevailed upon me to take my Reader a little out of the Way, he will, I hope, pardon me.

(d) The next three Verses mark out the Spring Season, when the Clouds are in another Condition, not so heavy and close as when they fall in Spouts and wasting Cataracts, nor yet so full as to make great Rains, and by them great Floods; but they are spread over the Earth in such a Man-

Chap.III ner as to water it with a convenient and fruitful Distillation, when the Seeds and new Labours of the Hulbandman want their friendly Assistance to call them forth into fresh Life, and carry them on to their full Strength and Perfection. The Light now expands them; the warm Rays of the Sun, which with furprizing Subtlety pass through, separate, and mix with them, give them a genial Warmth, and fuch an invigorating Principle, that wherever they fall in their Effects they drop Fatnels. In this Operation, the thick Cloud is faid, by an apposite Metaphor, to be wearied; the literal Traslation is, Serenity will cause the Cloud to be tired, his Light will cause the Cloud to be dispersed. The latter Clause is so translated by the LXX, διασκορπισει νεφος φως αυτε; the intervening Rays of Light will fo work upon the Body of a thick, fullen Cloud, that by dividing and breaking the Force it had when its Parts were united they will foon vanish, and so dissolve it that it will, as it were, faint away; the Substance, before fo difmaying, yields to the prevailing Force of Serenity. The 12th Verse is so descriptive of the Condition and Working of the Clouds at this Seafon, as cannot but fix and afcertain the Application. The Circulation, Croffing, and transverse Motions and Distillations of the Clouds at this Time, as though they were fent to water as Man planteth, that God may give a proper Increase, cannot have escaped the Observation of the most Incurious. They hover about, and furround round the Field, till they have quite refreshed, Chap.III. and fufficiently replenished it. But God puts in here his Claim, as the fole Giver and Difpenfer of these Bleffings, that the Idolaters of those Days might not suppose, that there was any rival, independent Power in the Heavens, who could perform fuch Things. Every thing of this Kind is done by his Counsels, and they may do what soever be commandeth them (nothing more) upon the Face of the World in the Earth. Sense and Grammar, I think, require us to render the latter Clause, according to the Aspett of the Orb, or Heavens, towards the Earth. The Words, rendered here by our Translators World and Earth, are TeBeL and AReTS, which are pretty much confounded by Lexicographers; where they occur they should be contradistinguished, as they must be supposed to have distinct Significations. I will produce another Scripture, to justify this Observation: It is the. fecond Verse of the xcth Psalm, where God is faid to have formed the Earth and TeBeL; Terram et Orbem, says the Translation in Montanus's Bible, Terram Orbemque babitabilem, say Tremellius and Junius, as though the Earth and babitable Orb were distinct Parts of the Creation. The Explanation of the Word TeBeL will clear up this Matter, and as I have found in Moses's Principia sufficient Informations for this Purpose, I shall venture to take from thence enough to fatisfy any reasonable Enquirer.

BeL

233

Chap.III.

Be L or BUL feems to be the Root, which fignifies the Mixer or Mixture, and is a conditional Name of all, or Part of the Heavens in Circulation; the Branches from this Root varying a little as they spread, according to the Prefix, or fome additional Radical at the End, which may add to, or alter, in some Respect, the first The Word TeBeL, from this Root BeL, partakes of the Ideas of two cognate Words, formed from the fame Radical: One fignifies an Ark, a Place for all Creatures, except Fish, to live in; the other fignifies to mix or confound. The Word TeBeL is used likewise Lev. XXI. 20. for the transparent Sphere of the Eye with opake Spots in it; another Word from the same Root signifies a concave Thing, a Sphere. These Ideas, united, exhibit and explain the very Thing we are confidering, beyond a Possibility of Mistake, as no other Subject or Thing will take them all in; fo that in comparing and collecting them we shall soon perceive, that TeBeL fignifies every thing in the universal Orb, except the Earth or terraqueous Globe. It is that grand, concave Sphere, wherein all Animals, except Fish, live, move, and have their Being. It is likewise the great Scene of Mixture and Confusion, whereby the continual Working, and, as it were, Warring of Fire, Light, and Air, the Viciffitude of the Seasons is effected, the Earth made fruitful and healthy, and all the Animals in and under it are fustained and refreshed, its Agency and Effects fects penetrating even to the Centre of it. Light, Chap.III. the most active of the three combined Powers in this System, reaches even to the Roots or Bottom of the Sea, as Elibu speaks before. TeBeL is likewise that transparent, chrystalline Orb, wherein the Planets, like fo many opake Spots, are continually floating. In fhort, it is the grand Circumference of the Universe, which, together with the enclosed AReTS, or Earth, contains the whole fix Days Work of the Creation. The Earth is variously affected as to its Seasons, according to the Face of that Part of the celestial Orbs, which may be towards the Earth in its annual Revolution. In the 13th Verse Elibu affigns the final Causes of these Productions of the Clouds, or the Ends of Providence intended and effected by them in the moral Government of the World. They are fometimes fent for Correction, in the way of Chastisement, to reclaim a finful People; in which Case they fall in such Abundance, as to drown and starve the Earth, instead of nourishing and refreshing it: But they are naturally and principally for the Benefit of the Land and its Inhabitants. Sometimes thefe Rains, for the Sins of Men, are with-held, in what is called a backward Spring, and that fo long, that the Heavens feem Iron, and the Earth Lead: But upon Repentance and Humiliation, they have been ordered to fall, and the latter Spring hath been fo gladdened and enriched by warm and enlivening Rains, that Man hath per-Y 4 ceived

Chap, III ceived the joyful Face of Plenty smiling most agreeably upon him, where Nothing but Barrenness was lately to be seen. Just at a Time when he has been forrowing and despairing, fruitful Showers have been fent in Mercy. Elihu, by fetting before Man this Variety of Difpensations, farther intended unanswerably to convince him, that no inherent Powers in the Orbs themselves could cause these Productions, or any stated Law of Nature, whereby she is uniform, and has but one Way of acting. But the Variety here afferted and known to be true, under an apparent Sameness of Causes and influencing Circumstances, is a Demonstration of a most wife, superintending, directing Providence, acting in and over the whole Creation.

(e) Elibu, being about to vary the Scene, prepares Job for a distinct Contemplation of it, by awakening his Attention, and calling him out of that State of Amaze and deep Reflection, wherein his Observations and Questions had probably fixed him. He could fmartly and quickly reply to the Temanite, the Shubite, and the Naamathite: But the Words of the Son of Barachel have Force and Weight enough to forbid any Attempt towards answering, or any Replication. He calls once more however, after a proper Pause, upon Job, whilft he sat in a pensive Mood; and observing the good Effect which his Reasonings were working upon him, he thought it proper to perfect what he had begun, gun, and lay the remaining Season before him, Chap.III. to give him still a higher and more amiable Image of the Creator and Governor of the Universe, and a lower and more dependent Notion of Man, who cannot do any thing of, or for himself, and for whom all this glorious and magnificent Theatre was created and ordained.

(f) Dost thou know when &c. The latter Clause literally translated runs thus, Dost thou know when God caused the Light to illuminate his Cloud? This Question must probably have puzzled Job, and all his wife Companions, both with regard to the Manner, as well as Time or Beginning of the Action of Light. The Use of this Power must be very great and extensive, by its being created fo early: It was probably the great Instrument made use of by the Creator in forming and beautifying his other Works. This Question concerning Light was a proper Introduction to the descriptive Marks of Summer, when this glorious Agent appears in his Strength and purest Lustre. These Marks are contained in these following Expressions, Ballancings of the Clouds - Garments becoming warm - The Earth quieted by the South Wind - The Sky being spread strong as a molten Looking glass - Now Men see not the bright Light in the Clouds, but the Wind passetb and cleansetb them- Fair Weather cometh out of the North &c. Is not this Summer? Are not the Causes and Effects set forth here in such plain distinguishing Characters, that there can be

Chap, III. no Mistake? None but the Author of Nature could draw this Picture of her. Recourse must be had, I think, to the Bible for true Philofophy, as well as true Divinity; and were there a Person sufficiently qualified by Learning, and duly enabled by divine Affistance, to open the Meaning of the peculiar Phrases used in the several Problems propounded to Job for his Solution concerning natural Causes and Effects, the State of the Animal Creation, and the History of Nature, a much more fatisfactory and true Foundation of natural Philosophy in its feveral Branches might be laid, and a more august and durable Structure might be formed and established upon it, than hath as yet appeared, or been erected upon any human Theory, or what hath been called experimental Philosophy.

The State of what is called natural Philosophy hath been so different in different Ages, that no System hath lasted much longer than till it could be thoroughly examined, still changing with the other Fashions of this World; which is a clear Demonstration of their Impersection, and the real Ignorance of such as seem to have laid the fairest Claim to the Title of Philosophers.

The Sons their Father's failing Systems see, And such as Des Cartes is, shall Newton be.

The History of this Science seems to be capable of being as briefly described, as that of the Lives of many ancient Patriarchs, late Posterity knowing knowing little more of its various Productions, Chap.III. than that they were born and died. If they lived many Years, their Acts were not of Importance enough to be recorded, or useful enough to be transmitted down to distant Ages. The Fragments of some of these Philosophers, which are preserved, are justly treated with Contempt; and the Bodies of this Philosophy, as framed and prepared by the greatest Names, have shewn the Weakness of the human Mind, when it is left entirely to its own Ways of thinking and acting. A new Scene feems now to be opened by many furprizing Operations called electrical Powers, which are produced by the Combination of Fire, Light, and Air, acting together. What new phi-Iofophical Scheme may be built upon Experiments in this Way, a few Years may shew: The many furprizing Effects of these natural Agents already discovered have produced Nothing hitherto but a stupid Admiration *. What is here said concerning the Insufficiency of all human Endeavours in fettling a compleat Body of Philosophy, or any thing of that Kind, upon right and fure

* A Differtation, lately printed by Dr. Wilson at Edinburgh, under the Title of Disquisitio Physico-Medica DE LUCE, opens a better Prospect, and shews what useful Purposes these Experiments may serve. The learned Author deserves the Thanks of the Public for the clear, undeniable Instances of this Kind produced by him, and he will, it is hoped from this Specimen, be more large and particular, at his Leisure, in observing the Uses and proper Application of these Experiments for the public Benefit.

Print

Chap.III. Principles, is authorized and supported by what is suggested by Elibu himself in this Place. He calls upon all natural Philosophers in the Person of Job, to assign the true Causes of all natural Effects. Teach us, fays he, what we shall say unto him? What Account can we give to God, when we cannot give any rational, lasting one to Man? He therefore expressly declares, in the Name of Mankind, We cannot order our Speech by reason of Darkness. Lest the Nature of this Darkness should not be rightly ascertained, Tremellius and Junius translate it Tenebræ Mentis, gross Ignorance. Shall it be told him that I speak? Is what any Man can fay worthy of the Notice of God? Shall Man prefume to open his Mouth? Surely be shall be swallowed up. His little pretended Knowlege will be foon exhaufted and abforbed, fo that Nothing but an empty, ugly Bottom will appear. Well might Elibu fay, and Fob be convinced, after such an Enumeration of the various Acts and Manifestations of divine Power and Wisdom, which appear in the Conduct of Nature through the different Stages of the Year, God is terrible in Majesty.

There seem to be more sublime Speculations, and more clear Declarations in Philosophy, exhibited in the Book of Job, as well as a more refined, and (if I may so speak) more Christianized Scheme of Theology, than is contained in any other Part of the ancient or first sacred Code, or perhaps in the whole Body collectively, if we except the prophetic Lyre of David. And Chap.III. Bishop Hare is of Opinion, that such Passages in the Psalms, as nearly resemble many in the Book of Job (as those are not a sew) were probably taken from thence. It is certain, they had the same Author. But if the Book of Job was the more early Production (as I make no doubt it was) the Time of its Birth must necessarily be placed much higher than some learned Men have fixed it.

(g) Him which is perfett in Knowlege. The Reader is defired to observe particularly, that this Characteristic, ascribed here to the Deity, is the very Character assumed by Elibu in the 4th Verse of the last Chapter, and I shall leave the Inference to himfelf. I have compared the two Places, and observe only a small Difference in the Original. The Word for Knowlege is plural in both Places (as is that for perfett) but, when applyed to Elibu, the Termination is feminine; in the Passage before us the Termination is masculine. This Variation may be intended to inform us, that divine and human Knowlege differ in Kind (Genere) as Bishop. Patrick justly observes. The former is all perfect, and always the same; the latter is capable of Degrees, recipit magis et minus, as the Schoolmen speak, and was never really perfect, but in one Person, whose Humanity Elihu is here supposed to represent. Our Saviour therefore is faid, with Respect to his human Nature, to increase

Chap. III. increase in Wisdom, as well as Stature; and when it was mature, he began to teach, as did our Elibu his Representative, and taught as One baving Authority. I have hinted, Elibu's Perfon was probably diftinguished from that of common Men by fomething extraordinary and awful in his Appearance; which accounts for his affuring Job that he was a Man as he was formed out of the Clay; which there was no Occasion to have done, had he not appeared to be distinguished by some shining Difference from the Generality of Mankind. He might not improbably have had fuch an honourable, illustrious Mark fixed upon him as Moses, that eminent Type of the Messiah, had; and such a Lustre in his Face, or Glory round him, would probably have the same Effect, and strike with an unufual Awe and Reverence all that beheld him. But this is submitted, though set down, as I look upon it to be a probable Conjecture.

(h) These two Verses conclude that Part of the History, which is attributed to Elibu; and his Conclusion or Decree is short, but full, pertinent, and sententious: It reaches all Mankind, who have been, or shall be wise of Heart, that is, puffed up with conceited Notions of their own Excellencies of any Kind, boasting as though they had not received them, supposing, that they are able to do great Matters of themselves, especially in religious Attainments, thus making themselves righteous, not only in their own Eyes, but in the Sight of God himself. But the Judge Chap.III. here expressly declares, that God rejects with Contempt and Disdain such Righteousness, and the Pretenders to it. It is loathsome in his Sight, and abhorred, according to the Prophets Phrase, as filthy Rags. It is observable, that the Text here doth not fay, that the Words of Elibu were ended, as was faid at the Conclusion of 70b's Defence, or that he ceased to speak, as was said of the three Friends; which is to me a corroborating Argument in favour of our Hypothesis, tending to prove, that the Doctrine of the human and divine Nature being to be united in one Christ, was hereby declared and illustrated by Elibu's speaking under the Character of the former, and God out of the Whirlwind, without noting any Difference of Person, under the Character of the other. The Transition therefore is easy, as the fame Person is still the Speaker, only under another Character, and still continues before 70b to exhibit a fensible Demonstration and fatisfactory Evidence, that God would be manifested in the Flesh. The Voice of God out of the Whirlwind was a well-known Attestation of the divine Presence, and therefore Job said, I have beard of thee by the Hearing of the Ear, extraordinary Thunders and tempestuous Commotions being called in this Book the Voice of God; but now faith Job mine Eye SEETH THEE. In the Person of Elibu (who was here represented as one with Him, who spake out of the Whirlwind)

Chap.III. Whirlwind) Job had a Sight of God, in the Sense of our Saviour's Declaration to Philip, He that bath seen me, bath seen the Father, the Verb here used for seeing, in its primary Signification, denoting a sensible Exhibition of the Object to the Eyes of the Beholder. We need not wonder therefore, that no particular Mention is made of Elibu in the Conclusion of this Book: After a Discharge of the particular Office of his former Character, he had no Occasion to re-assume it particularly, but rather to shew, that God should be all in all.

The Exhibition of this Scene, or Appearance of the God-Man, as he was really to exist in the Fulness of Time, laid Job prostrate with all his Wisdom and Virtue about him, and brought him to this ready Confession, I abbor myself, and repent in Dust and Ashes. He was now tried according to the Prayer of Elibu, Hed Natsach, even to Victory, till he became a Conqueror by Afflictions. Now the History is gloriously determined, the Devil is defeated, who expected to conquer by his old Suggestion and successful Weapon of spiritual Pride.

The Weakness of Man hath been sufficiently exposed by Elibu, the Necessity of being clothed with Humility, and depending upon the Righteousness of God for eternal Happiness, is sully declared. We are taught, that such as are, comparatively speaking, the best Men, are in the greatest Danger of falling into the most diabolical Crime, unless they keep a steady Eye Chap.III. upon the Fountain of all Virtue and Happiness, from whence they derive, and must look up to for, the Continuance and Addition of all the Blessings they enjoy or expect:

bolical

The doctrinal Inference from the whole is this, that * the LORD is our Righteousness, of whom are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us Wisdom, and Righteousness, and Santification, and Redemption; and that, according as it is written, He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. To such the Promise is given, and will undoubtedly be made good in the most ample Manner,

He that bumbleth b imself shall be exalted.

* Mr. Alexander, quoted in the Preliminary Discourse, Page Ixxxii. has the following remarkable Words, Page II, 12. 'On which Passage (viz. Jeremiah XXIII. 6.) I find in the Book called Ikkarim, Orat. II. c. 28. this Rabbinical Comment; which may tend to their own (the Jews) Conviction. "The Scripture calls the Name of Messiah the LORD our Righteousness, because the Mediator is to be GOD, by whose Hands we are to obtain Righteousness from God Himself, and therefore it calls Him by the Name JEHOVAH."

CHAP. IV.

Other Passages in the Book of Job, relative to the Subject of this Enquiry, cited and explained.

Chap.IV. A LTHOUGH the Observations contained in the foregoing Chapters are, I think, fo well founded as to need no additional Support, yet I am induced to cite a few other Passages from the same Book, as a Kind of corroborating Proof of what is above advanced, upon the following Confideration. It may possibly be faid, that Elibu's Part of the Conference does indeed directly point to the Mark, which I have been viewing and shewing the Reader, and that the feveral Interpretations leading this Way might be admitted, were they confistent with the general Tenor of the Book, fo that one Part might not feem to contradict the other. Now if the same Truths and Doctrine are taken notice of in the other principal Parts of this History, if the Traces of them manifestly appear, and shine to Observation, illustriously distinguished throughout the whole Course of it, great Strength will be added to our present Argument, and the Objection of Inconfistency be removed: There will be no Room left to fay, that the capital Design of the Book of Job, as above stated.

ftated, could never have been the principal Ob-Chap.IV. ject of the facred Writer, because the State of religious Knowlege at this Time, and amongst these Eastern Princes, will not allow us to suppose them to be so well instructed in the Covenant of Grace, the Belief of a future State, and Faith in a Redeemer.

Though the Degree of Revelation communicated to the Patriarchs, in the Days wherein 70b is supposed to have lived, may be farther confidered in the following Chapter, it will be proper here to clear the Way, by producing fome undeniable Testimonies from this very History, to prove, that the general Tenor of the Book, instead of being repugnant to the Purpose and Doctrine here supposed, is throughout confiftent and uniform in this Matter. When the Reader has confidered these Passages, I persuade myself that he will not require any farther considerable Enlargement upon this Point, to direct and fix his Opinion. Some of these Places will likewise shew the deistical Opinion of those Times, above observed, and justify the Allegation of Fob's special Crime herein supposed, harmonizing with the Passages in Elibu's Part concerning these Matters.

As to fob himself, it is evident from what is said in the Introduction of the Book, concerning his punctual Attendance upon and Performance of the public Duties of Religion, and the special Mention of the Countenance of the divine Chap.IV. Presence upon these Occasions, that he was a true Worshipper of the Deity, that he and his House did serve the Lord. And we may prefume from the Goodness of the Man, that he would certainly communicate any faving Knowlege to his Friends, supposing them to have been otherwise destitute of the Means of Instruction. To fay nothing of that high Testimony of Job given him by God himself, there is I fay but little Room for doubting (none, I. think, for a reasonable Mind) whether such Servants of God were acquainted with the necessary. Means of Salvation. And how unaccountable foever it may appear to common Minds and Observers, that so good a Man as Fob, and Perfons fo well informed as his Friends appear to have been, should be under the Dominion and Guilt of the highest Offence, or how incredible foever it may be to many, that a Principle of Independency should be so rooted and rank, where there was fo true a Sense of Religion in other Respects; yet Facts, divinely attested, will be heard, and must be allowed. The Possibility of fo strange a Contrast and Contradiction of religious Sentiments in the same Persons is too evident from what we daily hear and fee, even in this Age and Country, where the Light of the Gospel shines with the purest and strongest. Rays.

I. The first Passage I shall cite, as confirming the above Hypothesis, is Job IV. 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 Verses. Now a Thing was secretly Chap.IV. brought to me, and mine Ear received a little thereof. In Thoughts from the Visions of the Night, when deep Sleep falleth on Men, Fear came upon me, and Trembling, which made all my Bones to shake. Then a Spirit passed before my Face; the Hair of my Flesh stood up. It stood still, but I could not discern the Form thereof: An Image was before mine Eyes, there was Silence, and I heard a Voice, saying, shall mortal Man be more just than God? shall a Man be more pure than his Maker?

The first five of these Verses are introductory to the Declaration contained in the 17th, and they are a most remarkable Description of the Manner, whereby a special Revelation, concerning the Doctrine of Justification, was vouchsafed to Eliphaz: For such Revelations were sometimes communicated to Persons who were not directly in the * holy Line. It is highly probable, that some Patriarchs and States had deviated from the true Faith in this Particular, and stood in need of a divine Direction to put them again into the right Way. When therefore the three Friends went to visit Job, hoping to put a stop to his Afflictions by bringing him to a Confession of his Sins, God was pleased in Mercy to

Z<sub>3</sub> them,

<sup>* &</sup>quot; Habebant Veteres, Loco Scripturæ, Testimo" nium & Indicationem Patrum de Verbo Dei, ad
" priscos sacto, itemque privatas Revelationes. Ita &
" Eliphazum habuisse credibile est." Cocc. in Locum.

Chap.IV. them, and to all fuch as had erred with them on this Occasion, as well as to convince 70b wherein confisted his special Guilt, to instruct them in. and remind them of, what was the Truth in this Point, by a divine Vision to Eliphaz and the Voice of the Holy Spirit. Some Expressions in the English Translation have induced superficial Readers to Suppose, that Eliphaz was here only relating a common Dream, or fomething like it, and telling a Story about an Apparition (called among us a Spirit) of which he could give but a very indiffinct Account, as generally happens, it is faid, in such Cases through Fear and Confusion. They feem to think by Eliphaz taking no farther Notice of it in the Course of this Conference, that this, like other Spectres and Phantoms, might disappear (as this likewise is faid to be usually the Case when these Things happen) when Day and Reason resumed their Empire. On the contrary, I think, we have here those most certain descriptive Characterifticks, which are usually set down as Marks of a divine Revelation. Here was that Fear, Trembling, and Shaking, which was the Effect of that first Voice, or Sound resembling Thunder (like that at Sinai, &c.) which introduced fuch divine Messages, and demanded the Attention of the Persons to whom the Message was sent, affuring them at the same Time of the Divinity of the Speaker. Then there was a most profound found Silence (* המכוה) mentioned Ver. 16. Chap.IV.

Then the Voice, + called in Elijah's Vision the

Z 4 fmall

* This accounts for the different rendring of the Verb DIT by Lexicographers, who make it fignify fperavit and expectavit, as well as cessavit and quievit: So descriptive an Idea of the most eager and earnest Expectation could not be given as the Person under the Circumstance here supposed must have—Arrestis Auribus astat.

† This Voice, I apprehend, was called by the ancient Tews the Bath Kol, the Daughter of a Voice or the Daughter-Voice, concerning which there are many legendary Tales or Talmudical Stories. Dr. Prideaux indeed is pleased to say, in a Note under Page 124. of Vol. I. Fol, That " by the Bath Kol the Jews meant 46 a Voice from the Clouds, such as was heard from thence concerning our Saviour." But in Pag. 256. of Vol. II, he tells us in a Note at the Bottom, after favouring the Rabbinical Stories, there is also another Reason for this Name (Bath Kol) " That it came out of Thunder, that the Thunder Clap went always se first, and then the Bath Kol out of it, and that " therefore the Thunder was as the Mother-Voice, and 66 Bath Kol as the Daughter coming out of it." The Doctor adds, "But this cannot be true." Why not? because, it seems, " most of the Instances (not all I 66 find) which the Fewish Writers give us of their Bath 66 Kol are without any fuch Thunder preceding." It may be fo, and they might have special Reasons for penning their Fables in that Manner. But the Doctor, who himself treats these People as they deserve elsewhere, is kind in referring his Reader, even in this Place, to what Dr. Lightfort has faid upon this Subject, in his first Vol. and pag. 485, to which I would likewise refer the Reader, defiring him only, for the present, to consult likewife what Dr. Hammond has faid upon this quen and Beovin, St. John XII. Note (b) Acts IX. 6. A judicious Reader will foon fatisfy himfelf, by this Affiftance, without farther Trouble. The Self-Contradiction of these Rabbies appears very strong upon this Subject, as they have affertChap. IV. small still Voice, clear and distinct, but soft, gentle, and agreeable to the open expetting Ear, This Voice or Articulation was accompanied with a lenis Aura, therefore called by Cocceius " Vo-66 cem lenis Auræ. ? It shifted and changed its Form fo fast, (as the Hebrew יהלף imports, Ver. 15. rendered passed) that though it stood still, to give undeniable Evidence of a real Presence, vet no particular Form could be discerned or described. Though its Influence and Power were felt, it was not known, whence it came or whither it went: Only by its Invisibility and Agency it was known to be God, or the Voice of God, described to us, so far as is proper for us to know, in the Properties of the material Spirit.

It would ferve more for Offentation, than Use, to cite many Commentators upon this Occasion: But the Reader may be pleased perhaps to know what an approved Writer of the sixth Century has observed upon the Passage before us; the Writer I mean is Olympiodorus, who is a principal Commentator in the Catena of the Greek Fathers upon Job. He supposes "Eliphaz

se here

ed, at one Time, that this Oracle of Bath Kol did not commence till after the Babylonish Captivity, or the Cessation of Prophecy. The Rabbies have likewise asserted, that it was a most ancient Way of Revelation, used towards Hagar the Egyptian, Manzah and his Wise, Abigail, in going to meet David, &c. See Observation. Foi. de Voisin in Proæm. Pugionis Fidei Raym. Martini, Pag. 101, &c. Edit. Parissis 1651.

here plainly to assume the Authority of a di-Chap.IV.

vine Illumination, either to render what he " faid more acceptable to Job, or to gain an shigher Degree of Credit: He draws an Ana-

" logy between the material Spirit and the Holy " Spirit, as observable in this Place, and that " he might not seem to be inferior to Job as to

" fpiritual Communications, he afferts that he " was not without a Portion (aposess) of divine

" Illumination, for the Spirit, Ilveuna, came or

" passed upon my Face, επι προσωπον με."

But though Eliphaz was, in a manner, compelled by this Vision to declare to 70b, and the Bye-Standers, what the Voice had faid (which is done at the 17th Verse) yet he soon relapsed into his former Error: For the Impression decayed fo fast, that he feems almost to have forgot his Commission (though delivered in such a Manner) in Chap. XXII. where he imputes the Sufferings of Fob to wrong Causes, laying to his Charge the foulest and most inhuman Crimes (which he was very far from being guilty of) instead of the real one of Self-Justification, fince that might probably be condemning himfelf and the other Friends and Neighbours at the fame Time. The Sentence therefore declared against the three Friends in Chap. XLII. 7. is principally addressed to Eliphaz as the most guilty, in having neglected to urge, or not perfifted in urging that Answer or Instruction, which he was fo divinely instructed and commissioned. Chap.IV. to deliver in the Words of the Text, for not faying, i. e. openly declaring and infifting upon what was right, or acknowledging what was fo, as Job at last did, and thereby became victorious.

What hath been here observed, concerning Eliphaz's departing from the Matter of his Instruction and Commission, serves, I think, to confirm what is above supposed (pag. 88.) of the three Friends and Elibu's putting the Trial upon a different Issue. As Eliphaz and his Friends could not be prevailed upon, though commissioned in such a Manner, to say what was right, or persist in saying it, Elibu appears in order to do it, after some Expressions of Indignation against the three Friends for not doing it.

But, after all, the English Reader may demand, how does it appear from the Words of the 17th Verse (which is supposed to contain the special Matter of this Revelation to Eliphaz) that the Doctrine of Justification is therein contained?

Nothing here feems to be afferted or declared, but that no Man is more holy or just than God; which Truth does not feem to require a special Revelation, or oracular Answer to establish, or such a solemn Vision or preparatory Solemnity to introduce. To this I am enabled to give a satisfactory Answer by a new Translation of this Verse, made by a converted Jew, and communicated to me by a learned Friend.

The

The new Version is as follows,

The fallen Man shall receive Justification from that God that bore the Curse of the Law, if the mighty One cleanse his Work. The Hebrew is as below *. Whether this Translation be just, the Learned upon Examination must judge. I will set down some Reasons why I think it to be so.

- I. As I take this to be a divine Decree and Resolution of a Doubt, to be promulgated for the Observation of Mankind, the in prefixed to ENOSH must be, I think, demonstrative and emphatical, not interrogative, as our Translators suppose it to be, as the Majesty of Laws and decretorial Forms require the positive and determinate Manner and Style to ascertain and establish what is laid down, without giving the least Room for questioning the Truth of it.
- 2. The Sense of ENOSH here given is agreeable to what many learned Men have afferted over and over, and is preserved in our Translation in the Word mortal.
- 3. ELOAH. The Word translated God in our Bible has been observed to carry the same Sense as the converted Jew gives it, who told my Friend that it was an emphatical Expression for Christ, and that the Word God was not determinate enough.

4. GiBeR

* האנוש מאלוה יצדק אם מעשהו יטהר גבר

Chap.IV. 4. GiBeR, translated the mighty One in this new, and a Man in the common Version, has been observed by Glassius in his Onomat. pag. 74, &c. to be a peculiar Characteristic of Christ.

5. The Word rendered bis Work in this new Translation, and bis Maker in the English Bible. is a Noun, generally if not always fignifying a Thing, not Person, unless a 1 be inserted between the y and w; which Robertson, contrary to the Reading of the Hebrew Text, has taken Care to do in his Citation of the Words from this Verse: This done, he renders them præ Opifice suo, in Complaifance perhaps to the English Version of before his Maker. But the Mem in this Word is, I suppose, the Prefix of the Hemantic Noun אשת, and not the Preposition fignifying coram or pra: As I am a Stranger to the Person and Character of him who gives this new Translation, I have not adopted it upon Authority, or rested the Proof upon personal Character of Learning, &c. but have fairly laid before the Reader the Reafons which induce me to accept it and prefer it to the common one: I will add, that many skilled in the Hebrew (whom I have confulted) highly approve it.

And now the Reader is to examine what hath been faid upon this Passage, and use his own Judgment.

II. Chap. VI. Ver. 10. Ver. 13. We must go back to the 8th Verse to take the Sense of the 10th.

8. O that I might have my Request! and that Chap. IV. God would grant me the Thing that I long for!

9. Even that it would please God to destroy me, that he would let loose his Hand, and cut me off.

10. Then should I yet have Comfort.

70b, you fee, is very defirous of his Diffolution, not lefs fo than St. Paul was, and probably upon the same Reasons; that he might be out of the Reach of Trouble and Sorrow; and admitted to the everlasting Pleasures of the Faithful. This is, I think, the plain Import of the Words, as they lie before us in the English Translation, baving Comfort implying, I think, not only an Exemption from Pain, but a Perception of Pleafure. But the original Words fo fix the Senseas to leave no room for wavering: Literally translated they run thus, My Consolation shall yet (notwithstanding this Dissolution) even after Death, subsist. The Word rendered * yet signifies both a Continuation and Increase of what it is applyed to, and the Verb-Substantive here used is future. by the prefix Thau; fo that the Words must carry this Sense, my Comfort shall be more and more after the Determination of this State of. Existence. Was not the Patriarch's Hope full of Immortality? What we translate, yea I would barden myself in Sorrow, in this 10th Verse, is rendered by Schultens, et Pede Terram quatiam cum Exultatione. If this Translation be just, it strengthens the former Construction, and suppofes'

* Adverbium continuativum.

Chap.IV. poses Job to be quite transported with the Hopes of what he should find in his future State of Existence, and by these Expressions he seems in some measure to anticipate it by the Strength of his Faith.

Ver. 13. Is not my Help in me? and is Wisdom driven away from me? The most arrogant, selffufficient Deift of ancient or modern Times could not speak in a more elevated, independent Style. But the Original being not fo strong, the Words will, I think, bear foftening and admit the following Construction, If there be no Help in me, i. e. admitting that I am not able to relieve myfelf under my present Distress, is Wisdom or right Reason, my very effential, distinguishing Excellency, inherent in me (TOSHIA from JeSH) banished from me? Even after this Softening, the Reader will perceive that enough is left to fix upon Job the Charge of thinking more highly of himself than he ought to think.

III. Ch. IX. 15. Whom, though I were righteous, yet would I not answer; but I would make Supplication to my Judge.

It is observable, that Job guards his seeming. Submission here with a falva Justitia sua, whom, though I were righteous (an odd Supposition this, if he did not think himself or Man might be so) yet would I not answer (in the Way of Contradiction) but I would make Supplication to my Judge. He thought it most safe and prudent, when when he was upon his Trial before a Judge Chap.IV. armed with Omnipotence, to plead guilty, though he thought himself, upon the Whole, not to be so; as may be inserred from his resuming his Challenge in the two last Verses, Let bim take his Rod away from me, and let not his Fear terrify me; Then would I speak, and not fear him, and what is said at the 17th Verse of this very Chapter, he (i. e. God) multiplieth my Wounds without Cause.

IV. Chap. X. Ver. 18, 19. Wherefore then bast thou brought me forth out of the Womb? Ob that I had given up the Ghost, and no Eye had seen me! I should have been as though I had not been, I should have been carried from the Womb to the Grave.

This Passage is here produced by way of reclaiming the true Import of it, as a great Writer would make it prove Job's Insidelity with regard to a future State, His Words are, "Nondum notam Immortalitatem Animi Tempore Jobi" fuisse hæc, ut innumera alia, clarè ostendunt." But if his innumerable other Arguments have no more Weight, and prove no more than this, the Number will not be formidable, and we may still be assured that Job's Hopes were full of Immortality: Had he been taken from the Womb to the Grave, there was the same Reason to expect a Resurrection of the Body, as though the Soul and Body had continued together many Years, supposing that a Soul had ever been united Chap.IV. to it. And this was plainly the Case here from the Expressions, Ob that I had given up the Ghost! In regard to this World, and the Sensations of Pleasure and Pain, resulting from the Union of Soul and Body, had Job been carried from the Womb to the Grave, he had not endured so much in Mind or Body, and, in this Sense, he would have been, as though he had not been! Nothing more can be inferred from this, and such like Expressions.

V. Chap. XI. Ver. 14, 15. If Iniquity be in thine Hand, put it far away, and let not Wickedness dwell in thy Tabernacles. For then shalt thou lift up thy Face without Spot, yea; thou shalt be stedfast, and shalt not fear.

It is plain from this Exhortation of Zophar; that the prevailing Opinion of that Age was; that Man's Righteousness or Justification depended entirely and independently upon himself, that he could make or keep himself clean without Spot; could be quite stedfast and invariably good, so stout of Heart as to have no Thing or Person to fear.

VI. Chap. XIII. 15. Though he flay me, yet will I trust in him: but I will maintain mine own Ways before him.

The Hebrew Word translated flay fignifies; fays Schultens, Excision, borrowing its Idea from a Tree pulled up by the Roots, and laid along the Ground: But after such an Excision, Job declares that his Trust will be in God, his Hope and and Expectation will be placed there, as the Ori-Chap.IV. ginal imports. But this Confidence and Security proceeds from a wrong Principle, a Perfuasion that he was perfect and righteous, that he had a Right to be justified: I will maintain mine own Ways before him, fays the Patriarch; every Step of my Conduct has been fo guarded, that I have not deviated in any Instance from the Line of Duty, the omniscient God himself being my Judge. Job thought it sufficient to be free from any fcandalous Immoralities or Impiety, which his Accusers were perhaps guilty of; but he was not aware of fecret Sins, of many Imperfections, even in the very Performance of religious Duties, of wandring Thoughts, uncharitable Cenfures, and spiritual Pride, so that in many Things we offend all, without excepting any.

Maintaining his own Ways before God must therefore be an unwarrantable Stiffness, not pleasing in the Sight of him who resistes the Proud.

Neither, supposing he was perfect, and in every Point unblameable, was it in his own Power to continue so, without the special assisting Grace of God: So that it may be doubted, whether his Resolution (mentioned Chap. XXVII. 5, &c.) not to * remove his Integrity from him, instead of deserving so much Praise as hath been bestowed

A a -

* If this Expression be meant of his withstanding all Temptations to Idolatry, and Worshipping the Host of Heaven, it is literally true, that Job did not remove his Integrity from him, but came off whole and entire in his Engagements with Satan upon this Occasion.

Chap.IV. upon it, was not his great Crime; whether entertaining an Opinion of his own Perfection, and hugging himself in such a Security, was not that Condition and Offence, which made him a fit Subject to be tried and purified in the Furnace of Affliction, for an Example and Admonition to his Contemporaries, and all Posterity. I came not to call the Righteous, but Sinners to Repentance, was our Saviour's Reply to the Pharifees; and therefore the Senfe, I think, must be this, that the Benefits of our Saviour and his Redemption were not intended for, or expected to have any good Effects upon, such as think themselves so righteous and whole as to need no Repentance, no Physician. May not likewise the Text, * There is Joy in Heaven over one Sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just Persons, who need no Repentance, be capable of this Interpretation, or ought it not to be admitted as the only true one? I am fatisfied that this must be the Meaning, as the comparative Part, more than over, was addressed to the Pharisees alone, who trusted in themselves that they were righteous: Pharisees therefore and just Perfons are fynonimous Terms, and the Sense is hereby clear; that one Publican, who was a fincere Penitent, was more acceptable to God, than ninety and nine proud Pharifees, who thought themselves just Persons, needing no Repentance. This was a cutting Reply ad Homines.

* Luke XV. 7.

mines. That this comparative Clause was added Chap.IV. by way of Answer to the Pharises, appears, I think, very plainly from its being omitted in our Lord's immediately following Illustration of the same Point, under the Parable of the lost Piece of Silver. Having answered the Pharises, who interrupted him at Ver. 2. he addresses himself to all the Publicans and Sinners (at Ver. 8.) who drew near unto him for to hear him. To them he puts a parallel Case, that was of general Application, where his Conclusion is positive; That there is Joy in the Presence of the Angels of Godover one Sinner that repenteth.

The many Difficulties raised about the Answer to the Pharises, and the forced, unnatural Suppositions invented by Commentators to solve them, vanish, I think, at once, and need not puzzle us any longer, if we admit the Interpretation here offered. The Text stands quite clear of any Absurdities to be charged upon it; and an Habit of Piety and Goodness may be allowed to have the same Preference and Recommendation in the Sight of God it ever had, and ever will have.

VII. Chap. XIV. 14. If a Man die, shall be live again? All the Days of my appointed Time will I wait, till my Change come.

The Verb of the Noun translated Change, signifies to change for the better, "de veteri in nowum, de debili in robustum," says Schultens, referring to the 7th Verse of this Chapter. The Lexicons say, that the Exposition is "pro, vice;

A a 2 "notat

Chap.IV." notat unius Rei pro altera commutationem." Numb. XVIII. 21. it is what the Levites were to receive by way of Recompence for their Services: Prov. XXXI. 8. with a Vau in the third Order, it signifies Transitus; Gen. XLV. 22. Mutationes, vel mutatoria Vestium, i. e. alias novas et recentes, and fo Judg. XIV. 19; XVI. 13, Cincinni. Trommius adds another Idea, and makes it fignify floresco. The Reader, from this View, may be left to make Inferences for himself, and decide the Question whether Job believed a future State.

> Kircher translates these Words donec rursus fiam, which furely expresses the strongest Dependence upon another State of Existence, in which the Body and Soul would be reunited; otherwise Fob could not fay he should be rursus, again, in this Respect, or in the same Mode of Existence wherein he was at the Time of uttering these Words. But the good Patriarch was fatisfied that, though Man must lie down in the Grave, and not rife till the Heavens be no more, Ver. 12, yet then he should awake from the Dust and long Sleep, and be again as he then was, i. e. compounded of a Spirit, Soul, and Body, though the Body should be so altered for the better, as to be a more fit and agreeable Companion for the Spirit and Soul.

> It hath been faid, that the Idea of the Word translated Change is taken from the Custom of changing Soldiers, when relieved upon Guard or Duty. But I see no Foundation for, or Sense in this Opinion.

Opinion. That it was taken from the Change of Chap. IV. old worn-out Garments for new and better, and for a Recompence and Reward for the Performance of religious Duty, we have the Authority of the holy Scriptures to bear us out in supposing. If any may contend, that the Word rendered Change, having a Jod in the third Order, may be, and feems to be a personal Noun to be rendered Changer, or the Person who was to effect this great Change by raising himself, and all Mankind from the Dead, I'shall have no Dispute with him. In this Case Job's Faith will be unanfwerably plain, and prove, that he knew, and had a full Dependence upon that Person who was to change his, or Man's vile Body, that it might be fashioned like unto his own most glorious, or glorified Body.

VIII. Chap. XV. Ver. 10, 11, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19. Any unprejudiced Reader of this Chapter must be convinced, that the State of religious Knowlege in the Time of Job was much higher, and more enlarged than many have supposed. The Verses here selected furnish Matter of curious Observation. 1. From the Expressions in Ver. 10. With us are both the gray-headed, and very aged Men, much elder than thy Father, together with what is said Ver. 17, 18. I will show thee, hear me, and that which I have seen I will declare, Which wise Men have * told from their A a 3

* It may be objected, that this very Form of speaking is used by the Psalmist, Ps. XLIV. 1. We have heard

Chap.IV. Fathers, and have not hid it, it appears, I think, that Religion at this Time was probably traditional, and the Knowlege of it preferved in the Lips of the Priests or Patriarchs. The Manner of expressing it here must induce one to believe, that but sew Generations had passed since the Revelation was given; aged Men, much older than Job's Father, were then, it seems, living, who were able to give authentic Accounts of these Matters; and wise Men, such as had attended to such important Declarations, and had received their Knowlege from * their Fathers; which Fathers were those very Persons, to whom alone the Earth was given, and no Stranger passed among them.

Con-

heard with our Ears, O God, our Fathers have told us, &c. I answer, that though the Word in both Places be the same, viz. told, in the English Translation, yet there are two original Words of different Significations. The Word in Job is 712, importing a verbal Declaration, or Annunciation; That in the Pfalm 1750, from the Verb fignifying to enter upon Record, the Noun being therefore the Word for a Record or Book, the Sense of the Pfalmist therefore is, our Fathers have recorded, and we fee in, or hear from the Reading of those Records in our daily Service what mighty Works have been done, &c. I fpeak here of the Sense of the Word as it was generally applyed after the Use of Letters: Before, it seems to have been used in the Sense of enarrare, as in this Book, and for recording Times and Facts in that rude, short Manner, whereby they were described, before alphabetical Writing was revealed or taught.

* Clouds of fufficient IV inneffes could at that Time atteff the great Facts of the universal Deluge, the Confufion and Restoration of the Heavens and Earth, or terraqueous Globe, the Affair at Babel, the Destruction of Bodom, and many other public and undeniable Proofs of a

divine

Confidering the Age of Man in those Times, Chap.IV. revealed Truths had but few Hands to pass through between Noah and Job. Noah living 350 Years after the Flood, and Shem to the Marriage of Isaac and Rebekab, the remaining Term of Years might be filled by Three or Four in a direct Line of Descent, allowing them to answer the above Description of gray-headed and very aged Men. This Account helps, I think, to fix the Time wherein Job lived. The Persons pointed out and referred to in Ver. 19. as the Fathers from whom the whole Stock of Wisdom and Knowlege was derived, as from one pure and plentiful Fountain, are plainly the little holy Family preferved in the Ark. To them alone was THE Earth given (the prefix Ha denoting here the Earth in general, no particular Part or Region) and no Stranger was passing among them, as fuch had passed among the Children of Israel, called a mixed Multitude, when they came up to take Possession of that Land which was given them. No Words could be more restrictive than these, to determine the Application, and particularly to describe Noah and his Sons, who were AaA divine Power and Providence. The moral Evidence of these Matters was to that Age, by passing through so sew Relators, as strong as any we have for any Part of the History of our last great Civil War, and the Martyrdom of King Charles I. handed down from the Great Grandfather to the now living Great Grandson; to say nothing of the indubitable Veracity, and superior Authority of such Traditions, as came down attested by the Chief of the religious Line of Shem.

Chap.IV. the * Beni Elabim, the Sons of God, who shouted for Joy upon the Earth being given them, and their beholding the Renovation of the Uses and Beauties of the Heavens and the Earth, after the shaking their Foundations, and seeming Dissolution of them. Their Pleasure must have have been inexpressible, when after so long a Confinement, though safe Custody, and sloating so long amidst the dreadful Wastes of Death and Destruction, caused by the Furiousness of the Blast of the divine Wrath, God led them forth into, and

* The Interpretation of the Word Elahim, as fignifying Juratores, Fæderatores, describing the three Persons of the Essence covenanting to redeem Man, and obliging themselves to perform their respective Parts by that Kind of Oath or Swearing, which is joined with an Imprecation, fully explains this Phrase. For the Sons of the Elahim, or these Covenanters, must be those, who by this Act of theirs were born again unto a lively Hope, and after a Forfeit of Life, and every other Bleffing, were by this Act of Grace restored to what they had lost, and were made the Children of God, or the Sons of the Elabim. Hence it undeniably appears, that none but the human Race could be comprehended under this Expreffion, as the Angels had no Share or Part in this Covenant. And such only of the human Race are included in this Expression, or understood by it, as thankfully acknowlege and accept the proffered Bleffing, endeavouring to perform the Conditions, in order to obtain the Promife. To all others the Covernmeters speak thus, Behold, ye Dcspifers, and wonder and perish! The general religious Distinction of Mankind in the first Ages was, the Sons of the Elahim; or true Worshippers of these Faderatores, Covenanters, &c. and the Sons of Adam, who followed their own Imaginations, and Religions of their own Invention, or compounding a Religion dictated by that Nature which they had as the natural Sons of the first and gave them a fresh Grant of Man's forseited Chap.IV, Habitation, after he had renewed the Face of the Earth. The first Grant was given to a single Person, but the second (as a second was necessary upon a Forseiture, and taking away of the old Grant, as here mentioned) to more, though the Number or how many be not here set down. Such as reject this Interpretation should assign any other Time or Persons when, and to whom, this whole habitable Globe was given.

From the Words no Stranger passed among them I infer, that Strangers were passing or had passed amongst some Settlers in a remarkable Manner,

Adam, and fet up in opposition to what was given and appointed by the Elahim, for the Direction and Obedience of their true Sons and Followers. We fee therefore these appellative Terms applyed in the Way of Contradiftinction, The Sons of God faw and came in to the Daughters of Adam, the true Worshippers mixed with the Daughters of Idolaters, being probably allured and tempted by their great Beauty, as was the Case in Aftertimes with the Daughters of Moab, &c. That Idolaters were comprehended under these Sons or Daughters of Adam, is evident from what we read in Gen. XI. where we are told, that the Builders of Babel were the Sons of Adam. I find the Phrase Beni Elahim only in Gen. IV. 2, 4. Job I. 6. II. 1. and the Place here cited. In all these Places they unquestionably agree in, and prove the Interpretation here given, and if this Phrase or distinguishing Appellation was not used after the Commencement of the Mosaic Dispensation, we have herein no inconfiderable Proof and internal Evidence, that the Subject of this History is more ancient than that Dispensa. tion. This Phrase, Sons of God, is used in the New Testament in the same Sense, and applyed from the Old to describe the same Persons.

Chap.IV. Manner, who were about to take Possession of fome Land granted to them. That this was the Case of the Israelites is very plain from what the Scriptures fay of the mixed Multitude that passed among them, and are supposed by some to be fettled in Arabia, that Appellation coming, it is supposed, from the Verb which fignifies to mix. The Word rendered Stranger fignifies one coming from a great Distance, è longinquo, which was the Case of the Strangers who passed the River Jordan among or in the midst of the Israelites, and travelled with them all along till they came to the Borders of the promifed Land. This being fo very particular a Circumstance, and, I think, the only Fact from whence this Description could arise, we are, I think, obliged to allow, that Fob lived, and the Matters related in this Book were in their Course of Action, at the Time of the Exodus or Passage of the Israelites out of Egypt, or more particularly at their being about to enter Canaan: At this Time, by feparating from the Strangers or mixed Multitude, they marked them out to particular Notice and the Observation of future Times, on account of the Settlements which must have been made, and the Tract of Land taken up by fuch a vast Concourse of People. We have this Authority to fix the Age of Job, &c. fince no Notice is taken of what passed afterwards amongst the Children of Ifrael, their Laws, Separation, Conquests, &c.

May not the Words, Ver. 11. Is there any secret Thing with thee? be best understood of the *Redeemer? The Word translated secret Thing may be the secret Person, then concealed, who then LAT, latuit (being then intra Causas atque abdita Rerum) according to the Verb here joined with the Noun secret Thing or Person. Le Clerc is pleased to say, that these Words refer ad Revelationem nondum patesatiam. If the personal Interpretation here hinted be admitted, the Paraphrase or full Sense will be, Is that secret Person, who is in the Fulness of Time to be revealed, and made manifest, and who will make all Things clear and manifest, at present concealed with thee?

* " Christ, amongst other characteristic Distinctions, " takes the Name of MeDeBeR" (here used) fays Heidegger, in his Ch. de Theologia Patriarcharum, p. 78. Heidegger therefore supposes, that our Saviour refers to Isaiah LII. 6. when he gave this Answer to the Fews demanding of him, who art thou? even the same that I said unto you from the Beginning. This learned Writer therefore gives the Hebrew here, that the Relation between the Prediction and Completion may more plainly appear. ברתי לכם, fum is qui ab initio vobis locutus fum. It is worth the Reader's while to confult Heidegger upon this Point. De BeR, I think, according to Mr. Hutchinson, fignifies a secret Thing or Person which is to be revealed, and it signifies a Word, or the Logos that was revealed, Prolatus. The Adytum, or Sanctum Sanctorum, went under this Name, as containing mysterious Emblems and enigmatical Reprefentations, which were to be explained and revealed in future Times. These secret Things were to be manifested at that Time, when the Logos or secret Person should be, to whom they pointed, and who was the Sub-stance from whom these Shadows proceeded.

Chap.IV. Haft thou the exclusive Benefit of his private Counsels and Instructions, which may intitle thee to thy Claim of superior Wisdom and perfect Knowlege?

IX. Ch. XVI. 17, 19, 20. Not for any Injustice in my Hands: Also my Prayer is pure.

70b, we see, cannot be prevailed upon to confess, that he has done any thing amiss, or failed in any Respect; even his Thoughts were clean. and his Prayer, with regard to the Mind whence it proceeded, as pure as the *Oil which was ordered to be used in Consecrations, without the least Mixture of any contracted Filth, or any Kind of Impurity. Schultens refers us to Chap. X. 7. for an Explanation, or parallel Place, where Job declares and infifts before God, Thou knowest that I am not wicked; and Chap. XI. 4. Zophar tells him, For thou hast said, my Dostrine is pure, and I am clean in thine Eyes. This Claim to a spotless Innocence and indefective Holiness explains the 19th and 20th Verse here cited. Also now, behold, my Witness is in Heaven, and my Record is on high. My Friends scorn me, but mine Eye poureth out Tears unto God. He appeals here, we fee, to that Person who was in Heaven, as the Witness of his Perfection, not the Coverer of his Defects, or one that might atone for them; as one, who, being on high or in the high Places, was to record his Virtues and Merits, that they might be produced upon Occasion

* From whence the original Word and Idea is taken.

casion in his Justification. The former Part of Chap.IV. the 20th Verse should, I think with great Submission, be rendered, my Mediator, my Friend, the Word * MeLITS, rendered Scorners, or who scorn me, in the English Bible, and by Schultens Illusores, coming, I suppose, from the Verb MaLaTS to sweeteen or mediate; fo that Job claims this just Person as his Friend, as having a Right to his Friendship on Account of his unblemished Conduct and Integrity. The following Words, or rather one of them, plainly shews us who this Person was, who was called upon as Job's Witness, his Record on high, his Mediator, bis Friend, my. Mediator is my Friend, and mine Eye droppeth or poureth out Tears to + Eloah, not the Tears of a penitent Sinner, but those of a virtuous Man in Diftress, complaining to his God of undeferved Sufferings. Learned Men, as hath been observed, suppose this Word Eloab to fignify and peculiarly to describe that Person who was to be, and actually was made a Curfe for us, as it is a Participle passive from the Verb

+ The original Word, here translated God. See what is faid in Chap. I. upon this Word.

* This Word is considered more at large in a Trace published in 1743, printed for G. Strahan, intitled, Reflexions upon two Essays, published by Mr. Squire, To what may be found there, we may add, that the true rendring of this Word will explain Is. XLIII. 27. where it is translated Teachers, but not as they are Teachers, but as Mediators in a secondary Sense, as offering up to God the Prayers, &c. of the People, and conveying to the People from God, and by his Appointment, various Bleffings.

Chap.IV. Verb ELaH, to swear, with an Imprecation annexed.

Admitting this Construction (which I take to be the true one) and what is faid in other Places upon the fame Point, without offering Violence to the Meaning of the original Expressions as they stand in the Context, we plainly see what was the Faith of Job in this Respect; he knew that a Redeemer lived, who resided in the high Places, that this Redeemer had restored Man to his forfeited Estate, that he would likewise deliver from Death, was a Friend to all good Men (Job reckoning himself in that Number) that he would present their Petitions to the Throne of Grace, and render them acceptable to the Deity by his Mediation, would intercede for Sinners upon due Qualification and Application, though Job did not think himself to be a notorious Offender, and therefore asked Nothing upon that Footing.

X. Chap. XVIII. 14, 15. His Confidence shall be rooted out of his Tabernacle, and it shall bring him to the King of Terrors; It shall dwell in his Tabernacle, because it is none of his: Brimstone shall be scattered upon his Habitation.

I produce this Passage for the Sake of making a Remark upon the last Part, where the Punishment of wicked Men is declared under the Image of Brimstone being scattered upon their Habitations. These Words must allude to some real, well-known Fact. The Expressions are not in themselves metaphorical as the Laughing of Vallies, or the Singing of Stars, a Land slowing with Milk

Milk and Honey, or as the Expressions in the 19th Chap. IV. and 20th Verses of Chap. XXIX, &c. But the Terms are capable of a literal Sense, though the Image of scattering Brimstone upon Houses, to destroy them, would not probably have entered into the Imagination of any Speaker or Writer, unless there had been a real Original from whence the Allusion was taken. Neither would such a Description have been apprehended by Hearers or Readers, had not real History afforded an Instance of this Manner of Destruction. But this Allufion feems to be fo well and generally understood, that it is produced by Bildad here as a Matter clearly illustrated by the Notoriety of fome Fact to which it refers, none of the Audience appearing to be any way furprized at the Oddness of it. From whence I infer, that the History of the Destruction of Sodom (which was the only Fact this Description could allude to) must be well known at that Time, and in those Parts, which were inhabited by Job and his Friends. Nay, this Fact might be within the Memory of the gray-beaded and very aged Men, then living; or however, fo dreadful and miraculous a Destruction could not well be funk in Oblivion fo foon, by the most regardless and vicious Race of Men that ever lived. But the sacred Writer has taken care to inform Posterity, that the Fact here referred to by Bildad was the Destruction of Sodom, by using the same Word, GoPRIT, for Brimstone, in both Places. Stockius observes.

Chap.IV. observes, that the Word is used but once for proper or real Sulphur, viz. Gen. XIX. 24. in the Case of Sodom; so that the Persons addressed in this Passage must have immediately turned their Thoughts to, and been well apprized of, the Manner of the Sodomites Destruction. The Allusion here was as plain and well known as the fymbolical Application of it by the Prophets, Deut. XXIX. 23. Pfalm XI. 6. If. XXXIV. 9. Ezek. XXXVIII. 22, &c. when they make use of it as a Symbol of the most grievous Punishments of God inflicted upon Sinners in this Life, or as a Type of what will befal them in the next, If. XXX. 33. The Reader is defired to make a proper use of this Remark, when he shall collect the feveral Hints fet down as I pass, for the better fixing the Age of 70b.

Another Image or Circumstance of this Kind, serving towards fixing the Age of Job, may be here anticipated and presented to the Reader's View, as the two Passages may illustrate and strengthen each other, and by being united give more Force to the Argument they are brought to support. It is contained in these Expressions, which occur Ch. XX. 17. He shall not see the Rivers, the Floods, the Brooks of Honey and Butter. If this Passage be supposed to allude to the Punishment of the Insidelity of those Israelites, who were not upon that Account permitted to enter the promised Land, whose Plenty was divinely described to Moses, Ex. III. under the Expressions pressions of a Land flowing with Milk and Honey, Chap. IV. we have another corroborating Authority and internal Evidence for fixing the Time, when the Transactions related in the Book of Fob did actually happen. This Supposition gives a clear and fatisfactory Account of this Allusion and these Expressions, and it will, I think, be difficult to give any other that is fo just, easy, and confiftent, as what is built upon this Supposition. Had Moses been dead, and Joshua actually begun to take possession of the Land by that dreadful Destruction of the idolatrous Canaanites which foon followed, fuch an Instance of God's Vengeance against Sinners would probably have been taken notice of, when the great and public Manifestations of God's Judgments against high Offenders were fetting forth, by way of Check and Admonition to the Persons then living.

I cannot forbear adding here (for the Reader's Information in fettling the Age of Job) a third Observation, as I have not met with any Writer who takes the least notice of it, and, as I think, it will be admitted to be decisive Evidence in this Case.

It is faid, Ch. XLII. 11. That every Man (i. e. of Job's Brethren, mentioned in the former Part of this Verse) gave him a Piece of Money, in Hebrew, Kesita. It is, I think, agreed upon as certain from what St. Stephen says (Asts VII. 16.) that this was real Money: The Word signifies a Lamb, and a Coin, so called from the Image of Chap.IV. a Lamb impressed upon it. This Piece of Money was some of the Æs signatum that was in use and current, I prefume, among the holy Line, or the near collateral Branches of that Line, who professed the true Faith. The other Money used in general Commerce was the Æs appensum or Shekel, which the Word fignifies, and which Abraham weighed to the Children of Ephron. This is expressly there called current Money among st the Merchants, the Weight or intrinsick Worth being pretty near the fame in all Nations, and therefore current among all, as Bullion is at this Day. What the Learned and Commentators write upon this Word to our present Purpose may be here set down. To what is said by the Annotators cited by Poole, which the Reader may confult, we may add what we find in Leigh's Crit. Sacra, under this Word as follows, " Nummus fexta Pars Denarii, Gen. XXXIII. 19. Cl. Drusius arbitratur Nummos fuisse " Agni Imagine fignatos, quod priscis non suisse " infolens docet. Argivi Lupum, Theffali Equam, Cyziceni et Lycii Leonem, Rhegini " Leporem, alii Corvum, alii alias Pecudes Num-" mis impressere. Apud Athenienses Nummus " erat Bovis Imagine fignatus, qui et Bos dicebatur, unde Proverbium, Bos in Lingua, in cos. " qui Pecunia corrupti tacent. Amama in Locum. " Job XIII. 11. Joh. XXIV. 32, &c. &c." And below, "This Coin intimated him that was " Main from the Beginning if the World." Leigh's marginal marginal Notes fay, " Nummi Genus; non Agnos Chap. IV.

" fignificare, quod Chald. LXX. Lat. arbitrati

" funt, ipse Stephanus sancivit, cnm pro eo di-

« ceret tiuns agrueiou, Pretio Argenti. Masius

" ad Jos. XXIV. 32. Paræus, & alii accipiunt

" de Nummis Agni Imagine signatis *. Hancce

"Versionem verisimiliorem esse probatur, 1. ex

" Job XLII. 11. ubi non potest commode pro pe-

" cude accipi. 2. Etiam Arabice nummum sig-

" nificat. 3. Quando pro Agno exponitur est

" fignificatio Chaldaica, &c."

. The Reader will observe, that the Word Kesita occurs only in two Places besides this we are considering, and that in Joshua is only a Reference to the Passage in Genesis. It is not once mentioned afterwards by any of the facred Penmen; which is not, I think, to be accounted for any other Way, than by supposing that the Use of this Coin was fet aside before the History of the Jewish Affairs is any way related, or any thing was transacted under the Mosaic Dispensation. Otherwise, in their various Transactions and Negotiations, this Species of Money must probably have been mentioned as well as Shekels, Talents, &c. From this Silence, I think, it more probable that this Coin was not used after the giving the Law at Sinai. The Continuance of it after-B b 2 wards

* Marius, and others render the Word KeSiT, Truth and a Lamb, whereby, I presume, they would intimate the mystical Meaning of the Coin which had this Stamp upon it, as this is the only Way that occurs to me of reconciling these two Ideas.

Chap. IV. wards would perhaps have been inconfiftent with, or a Breach of the second Commandment: Thou shalt not make to thyself, i. e. for thy Fancy or Use, without divine Appointment, any graven Image or Likeness of, &c. whereby all Images upon their Coins were supposed to have been forbidden, and this Image might, perhaps, have been abused to idolatrous or superstitious Purposes, as the Faces or Cherubic Emblems had been, in copying their Likenesses, and setting up Images fo copied in their private Houses, called Teraphim, to which they paid divine Worship, and consulted them as real Divinities. The making of these mysterious Emblems therefore to, or for themselves, DD, for their private Uses, is absolutely forbid by the second Commandment, and the facred Emblems were allowed to be only in the Tabernacle, Temple, and Sanctum Sanctorum.

If therefore it be allowed (as, I think, it must upon this State of the Case) that the Kesita, as to the Name and Thing, did not exist, whatever the Reason might be, after the Delivery of the Law at Sinai, we have a clear Proof that the Transactions recorded in the Book of Job must have happened before the Mosaic Dispensation took Place, as so many of these Coins were brought to Job upon this Occasion; Every Man brought * a Kesita.

* The original Words fignify One Kefita, each having a feminine Termination, and therefore not to be rendered.

Notwithstanding the Difference above noted, Chap.IV. concerning the Signification of this Word, I have not met with any Place of Scripture where it signifies indisputably a Lamb, the Words for Lamb in Exodus and Leviticus being no way related to this. There is another Word for the Passover Lamb, another for the Peace-offering Lamb.

An attentive View of this Passage necessarily fixed my Eye, and kept it longer than it before had been upon the Context, whereby I am fully convinced myself, that Commentators have given a low, unworthy, injurious Interpretation of the grand Conclusion of this instructive History. We are directed by them to think only from the B b 2 a Lamb. For the fame Reason, should it be urged, that, upon the Supposition of Job's offering a great Sacrifice for himself and Friends, each might bring a Lamb for Job to offer in his Behalf, we must say that this was not the Case, because such Lamb, as an Atonement for Sin, and as fuch typical of the Lamb of God who was to take away Sin by the Sacrifice of himself, must have been Male, and the Words would therefore, if this had been the Sense, expressed so much by being in the Form of the masculine Gender. I would observe farther in this Place, that had this Book of Job been written, as fome learned Men have supposed, after the Captivity, or in the Time of Ezra, it would probably have abounded with as many Chaldaisms, commonly so called, as the Books of Daniel and Ezra. The & might probably have terminated the Words just mentioned, as well as many others, the Exchange of the w for I, the final Nun for Mem, and other reputed Chaldaisms would have been as frequent and observable in 70b, as they are visible in the others. But every Reader may fatisfy himself that they are not fo.

Chap.IV. Narrative, that, after all was over, in Confideration of Job's being stripped of all he had, his Friends, contributed fomething towards fetting him up again, and as it were to begin the World with. Upon this Occasion likewife they suppose that there was great Feafting, and Merry-making, and jovial Doings. Had the Course of this History been attended to, such gross Mistakes could not have happened. We read, Verse 10. the Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before: After this every Man gave him a Kesita, which, together with the Ear-rings, were, I fuppose, brought as Oblations to this great distinguished Patriarch. After what is said in Verse 10. who can suppose that 70b wanted any thing to enrich himself? What Monarch, so immenfely rich as he was, could be supposed, when restored to his full Rights and Power, to stand in need of so pitiful a Subsidy? The Truth of the Matter feems to have been this: Job was now visibly under the Care and Protection of Heaven, the Favourite of the supreme Being, to whom the Dispensation of the divine Bleffings was committed; the three Friends were pardoned and accepted upon 70b's praying for them. What Wonder was it then that, upon hearing this Account, all his Brethren, &c. should come to * eat Bread

* The Word for Bread fignifies, in its primary Sense, I think, facrificial or facramental Food, ipsum facrificium, says Marius de Calasso. It is used for War. Mr. Hutchinfon, I think, reconciles these different Senses by supposing,

Bread with him, &c. and make proper † Offer-Chap.IV. ings, to receive the same Blessings which others had done, i. e. to be pardoned and accepted by the Prayers of this High-Priest.

I have no Doubt upon me, but that the Banquet here mentioned was a religious one, a kind of facramental or euchariftical Eating or Drinking, such as passed between Abraham and Melchisedek. Such an Act of public Homage and Graticude was very seasonable, and a bounden Duty upon this joyful Occasion, and was therefore most probably performed by Job; whose Piety would certainly induce him, and his pontifical Character oblige him to appear and act in the most high Part and beneficial Office of the Patriarchal Dignity. A religious Joy was certainly uppermost in the Breast of the good Man upon this Occathat this facrificial or facramental Food is the proper Support of a Believer in his Warfare or Combat with the grand Adverfary, and is the Prey which he gains from him in every Victory over him, by which he is enabled to make still farther Conquests over him. These are the opima Spolia, not to be hung up to display our own Strength and Glory, but That of the true Jupiter Feretrius, by whose Help and Stroke this Bread and these Spoils are obtained.

Bb 4 fion,

† Here the Offering of Ear-rings, or oftentatious Ornaments, seems to be very pertinent, as an humble Mind and the resigning up of all proud Thoughts was thereby fignified, which was the necessary Qualification for receiving the Blessing; and the Contribution of so small a Sum as a Kesita from each Worshipper and Penitent might be sufficient, as the Mind is more regarded than the Richness of the Oblation, where no particular Offering is commanded.

Chap.IV. fion, and took Possession of his whole Soul.

After the Vision he had been honoured with, he could have but little Relish for the low Pleasures of sensual Gratifications, till that sacred Impression grew more faint and weak by a fresh Acquaintance and longer Converse with worldly Delights.

This Account of the Feast, here related between 70b, his Friends, Brethren, and Acquaintance, makes the Conclusion of the History as grand as the feveral Parts which compose it. The Hero's Character is complete: He is victorious by the Assistance and visible Interposition of a real God, and is fo far from affuming any personal Merit to himself, that his first Declaration is a non nobis, Domine, expressed by a most folemn Recognition and the most public Acknowlegement of his Deliverer, with a grateful Commemoration of the Bleffings he had received. Thus the Beginning and Conclusion of the History are uniform and confistent. The Piety of him who is the chief Subject of it is illustriously distinguished, as he is perfected by Sufferings, and more than Conqueror by Afflictions. The original Expressions and Phraseology used herein (when explained aright) will confirm, I think, the Interpretation here given. But I must be contented with throwing out Hints only, as I have taken the Reader already too far out of the Way.

XI. Chap. XIX. 25, &c. I need not tran-Chap.IV. scribe this Passage, as the many and learned Comments upon it have been a Means of imprinting it in the Memory of all who either read the Scriptures, or hear them read, or are any way solicitous about the true Sense and Interpretation of the most important Places; and as I intend only to add a short Observation or two to what hath been said upon this Subject.

Bishop Patrick says, that St. Austin calls Fob. eximius Prophetarum, for this prophetic Account of the Refurrection of the Body. If the common Tradition in ancient Times, mentioned by Theophanes, be true, viz. that Job was one of those Saints who arose from the Dead to attend our Saviour in his Triumph over the Grave, some of the prophetic Descriptions set down in this Passage may receive a more satisfactory Explanation, and a more fixed and determined Senfe than hath as yet, I think, been given them by any Commentators that have fallen in my Way. By the latter Day is commonly understood all that Period which hath, and will pass between the two Advents of Christ: Modern Jews fay, that the Word ACHeRON fignifies last of all, (there is no Hebrew for Day) by which Interpretation Job must mean, that when every Thing was finished, the Redeemer should appear upon Earth, and as a mighty Conqueror * ftand upon the Chap.IV. Earth, or keep the Field of Battle, when the great Adversary the Devil should be defeated. and not able to stand before him. This happened as to our Saviour's Part immediately upon his declaring, It is finished. At our Lord's Resurrection, 70b, if raised at the same Time, had a + near personal View of him, which he promised himself in this Prophecy, when our Lord should stand last of all, or when he had finished what he came to do on Earth. But with regard to the Christian Family or Church, last of all must mean the fecond Coming of Christ, when he shall come to take Vengeance of his Enemies, and cast them with their Leader into the Lake of Fire and Brimstone. Satan as yet, though weakened, makes a strong Fight of it against the Soldiers of Jesus Christ, and takes many Captive: Whereas when the Captain of our Salvation shall come again in his glorious Power, the affrighted Arch-Rebel will disappear, and leave the victorious Messiah distributing Honours and Crowns to fuch as have diffinguished themselves by their Fidelity and Bravery in the Day of Battle.

* Bishop Patrick gives the Expression this Sense, as doth likewise the celebrated Grotius, as cited by the sagacious

XII.

fagacious and learned Bishop Sherlock, in the second Differtation, annexed to his Discourses upon Prophecy.

† The Word translated not another, should be rendered (as my learned Friend the Editor of the Hebrew Bible, printing at Oxford, thinks) not at a Distance, è longinquo, that being the proper Signification of ZaR. I would add here to this Observation, that the Words rendered here for myself must mean for my Benefit.

XII. Ch. XXI. 30, 31, 32. That the Wicked Chap.IV. is referved to the Day of Destruction; they shall be brought forth to the * Day of Wrath. Who shall declare his Way to his Face? and who shall repay him what he hath done? Yet shall he be brought to the † Grave, and shall & remain in the Tomb.

I shall produce what I take to be a more literal and just Translation, submitting it to the Learned.

For the Wicked shall be in Darkness to, or for the Day of Destruction, be shall be produced, or brought forth at the Day of | Passages or Separations. The next Verse as above, Verse 32. But or yet this very Person shall descend, or be brought to the Graves or Receptacles of dead Bodies, but be shall be awakened, or caused to awake upon the Heap, the Tumulus, according to Stockius, who, citing this very Place, tells us, that the Idea is taken from Shocks of Corn built up in a pyramidical Form: Such we know were the royal Sepulchres of Egypt, and the common Repositories for the Dead most probably imitated these in the Form of their Structure. It has been customary, I suppose, for all People to raise some Kind of Tumuli or Tombs over the Dead. The Word which I render Passages, or Separations, comes from a Verb fignifying to pass over, or between,

* Hebrew, Day of Wraths. Margin of the English Bible.

† Hebrew, Graves. § Hebrew, Watch in the Heap, Yabarot, from YaBaR.

Chap.IV. fo as to separate, divide, go forth and from. * It is used to express the Passing of the Lamp between the Pieces of the Heifer, &c. when God made a Covenant with Abraham: And as this Separation of Abraham from Idolaters was fignified in this Covenant or facrificial Act, the Word has, in the Opinion of many, a religious Sense, and that the first and best Sense of the Appellative Hebrews is, Such as paffed over from Idolatry to the Service and Communion of the true God. Abraham's passing likewise out of his own Country, and feparating himself from furrounding Idolaters, was hereby expressed. Accordingly, the Word here points out, I think, that Separation and Division, which will be made by Fire at the last Day, and is typified and prefigured by the other less important and more particular Transitions and Divisions that may be recorded. The other Word, rendered shall be produced, or be brought forth, signifies to flow or proceed from. Stockius thinks that the Noun, as used in Pf. LXVII. 6. Then shall the Earth yield ber Increase, Fruetum vel Proventum+, must here denote the Worshippers of God, whom the Earth and Seas must give up at the last Day: The * The Noun Transitus, Vadum, Separatio, see M. de Calasio. It is rendered sometimes End or Ends, as the Ends of the Earth, because there the Trajectus, or Passage, and Separation begins. We call any particular, Point, from whence we cross any great Water, such a Passage.

† See M. de Calasio, with Shoutings as of a Trumpet.

The Word in Verse 30, translated in the English Chap. IV. Bible reserved, signifies to bide in Darkness, and to corrupt, according to Trommius; so that the Sense of the former Part of this Verse must be, the Wicked shall be covered under Darkness and Corruption to the Day of Destruction, but then he shall be awakened, or caused to awake (for the Participle here used has the Sense of a Verb in * Hipbil) upon the Heap or Tumulus which covers

* The inferted before the last Radical of this Word proves that it must be a passive Participle, and not the third Person singular in the Future of Kal, as the Tranflations suppose it to be. Now Mascleff tells us, that the Future in Hophal is the same with that in Niphal. The Idea of the Verb, here rendered awakened, is given and preserved in the Noun, which signifies the Almond-Tree. Pliny, in his Nat. Hist. Lib. xvi. c. 25, says, Ex his, quæ Hyeme, Aquilà exoriente (ut diximus) concipiunt, floret prima omnium Amygdala, Mense " Januario. Martio verò Poma matura." And Dr. Smith, in a Book already cited, pag. 161, observing that the Hebrew Name of the Almond-Tree, when used as a Verb, is rendered advigilavit, shews the Propriety of the Noun's being used for the Almond-Tree by adding, "Quæ prima inter Arbores evigilat; because this Tree, "before all others, first waketh, and riseth from its Winter's Repose, &c." referring his Reader to this very Passage in Pliny. But St. Cyril of Ferusalem is very express and particular in making this Tree an Emblem of the Resurrection of human Bodies, and peculiarly descriptive of it. Speaking of the second Advent of Christ, and the Signs accompanying it, he cites Eccles. xii. 5. where upon the Words Ανθησει το αμυγδαλου, the Almond-Tree shall flourish, he observes, " Os de exnymas « φασιν, ΑΜΥΓΔΑΛΟΝ ελθον δηλος το ΧΕΙΜΩΝΟΣ το ΠΑ-" ΡΕΛΘΟΝ. μελλει δε τα ΣΩΜΑΤΑ ΗΜΩΝ μεία τον ΧΕΙΜΩ-" NA, Tole ANOEIN ETTERATION ANDOS: Quemadmodum verò cc Inter-

Chap.IV. covers his Body. It is then plainly afferted here, that the full Punishment of Wickedness shall not be in this Life. The Wicked shall die as others do, or, in the Words of Job, They shall lie down alike in the Dust, and the Worms shall cover them: The Difference will be noted and felt in the Day of Wraths or Separations, when they shall be brought from their respective Prifons

Interpretes dicunt, Amygdalum florens Hyemis Transitum fignificat, sic et Corpora nostra, post hujus Seculi " Hyemem, florebunt Flore supercoelesti." Cyril Hierof. Cateches. xv. pag. 215. Edit. Milles. As this Tree feels the most early Effects of the advancing Light, as appears by the Rifing and Circulation of the Sap, before the general Revival of the vegetable Creation, and by putting forth its Bloffoms in January, it becomes thereby a fignificative and expressive Emblem of a dead Body's Reviving upon the first Approach of the Sun of Righteoulnels, the true Light, in the Morning of the Resurrection. This Tree gives likewise with it the Idea of hastening, as it is fully explained, Fer. i. 11. and so is descriptive of that Hurry, which all the Dead shall be in to appear before the Judgment Seat of Christ, when summoned, and made to awake, by the Sound of the last Trump. How the Translators could render these Words, shall remain in the Tomb, which is a contrary Sense to that here given, I must leave the Reader to find out, if he can. Instead of the Body or Person's remaining in the Tomb, which is under the Heap, or Tumulus, that covers the Body, the Words expressly say, it, or he, shall be upon it, describing the supposed Attitude of the Body, just released from the Prison of the Grave, preparing or prepared for its Trial, and hastening to it. Even the Margin of our English Bible suggests, that the Words may be rendered, Watch upon the Heap: How then can it remain under it? Here is a noble Testimony, giving strength to, and beautifully illustrating the Doctrine of a Refurrection.

fons or Graves, to take their Trial: Then the Chap.IV. Judge of all Men shall openly declare to all the World their Ways, their most secret, most heinous Offences, and after Sentence shall make suitable Retributions, according to the Merits and Demerits of each Person.

It may be thought that I have faid enough upon the Passage above cited. But I cannot leave this Chapter without giving the Reader a paraphrastical Exposition of some other Verses in it, which are so curious in their Way, that, if it may not be admitted as directly tending towards the Point in View, it will, I hope, be favourably received, as no unentertaining Digression.

The Verses are 27, 28, 29. Behold I know, &c. "I am not ignorant of your Slanders "against me, how ready you are to pronounce " me a grievous Sinner, stained and polluted with fome capital Crimes, which have brought down these severe Punishments upon me, " though I would appear innocent in the Sight of Men, and a Person of exemplary Piety and " Morality. You support this injurious and un-" charitable Opinion of me by appealing to the "Calamities that have befallen me: You tauntingly ask, what is become of my Palace, the " Place of my royal Residence, the House of " Princes? Supposing that my Sins have provoked the Almighty to lay it in Ruins, and " that the Dwelling-places of the wicked Sons of a wicked Father, though lately fuch superb " Buildings,

Chap.IV. "Buildings, have fuffered the fame Fate, on the fame Account, and been made the Grave of "their Inhabitants by a fudden and terrible "Downfal. You have maliciously acquainted as many as you have met with passing that "Way with the strange Calamities that have befallen me and mine, and desired them to look after their usual Tokens (Signa Viarum) which used to serve as illustrious Directions in their Journeyings. They would soon hear and see that their Places now were no more to be found, and enquiring Travellers could only be directed to the Ruins of these Buildings, "which might shew the Situation from whence

"these stately Structures once pleased and commanded the Eyes of every Passenger."

I shall only add here, that Schultens mentions a Commentator on Job, called by him felix Cerebri * Bolducius, who supposes that Job, as Prince and Prelate, had two grand Palaces of Residence; the first, called here above the House of the Prince, another belonging to him as Bishop of a Cathedral; and that his being sequestered from the latter on account of his Leprosy, was one of his great Afflictions.

XIII. Chap. XXIX. 19, 20. The Dew lay all Night upon my Branch. My Glory was fresh in me, and my Bow was renewed in my Hand,

This

* A French Capuchin, who wrote a Comment upon Job in two Folio Volumes, and another Work de Lege Latâ ante Mosen, at the Beginning of the last Century.

This Chapter contains 70b's comfortable Re-Chap.IV. flections upon his former Conduct, under a State of Affluence and Prosperity; and they afford excellent Advice to all in fuch a State, to make fuch a Use of the Bleffing and Bounty of Heaven, as may administer Consolation under any great Change of Fortune and Condition. Upon fuch Distress, especially when it is severe and fudden, the Mind lays itself out to bring every thing to Remembrance that may alleviate its Burthen, and keep it easy under the Pressure of Affliction. And nothing can be a greater Cordial in a State of Adversity, than a Consciousness of having made a right Use of Prosperity. This was the Happiness of Job, who was not content with the bare Performance of his Duty to God and Man, as his then present Circumstances obliged him to do; but his Thoughts reached beyond this Scene of Action, this State of Probation: He had confidered what would happen after he should die in his Nest. From the great Favour of Heaven, which he had fo plentifully experienced, he tells us what were his Thoughts before he loft his Children and Substance, concerning the Perpetuity of the Grandeur he enjoyed in a long Posterity, after he himself should die in his Nest. This introduces the Words above cited, which cannot be explained without realizing (if I may be allowed to fay fo) the metaphorical Expressions therein used. The Reader must judge for himself when I have

Chap.IV. done this, and if he admits my Interpretation of the particular Expressions, he must agree with me in the Conclusion, which necessarily follows from Premises so stated. By Dew is frequently meant in the Language of the Scriptures, where the Context will allow it, the Bleffings of Heaven, fweetly diffilling upon and refreshing the beloved Children of God. There is fuch a Correspondence of the compared Ideas of the Grace or Bleffing of God and Dew, that the Substitution of the latter to fignify the former is more than bare Metaphor: It is Analogy, where the Nature of the Thing reprefented is in some Measure described; it is an Image rather than a diffant, equivocal Similitude. By Night, I think, is meant the Night of Death, which it so often fignifies in the Holy Books; and the Words my Branch are an eafy Metaphor to fignify his Offspring. After acquainting the Reader, that the Words lay all Night should be rendered in the future, * sha'l lie all Night, the Sense of this former Part, paraphraftically expounded, must be thus, When I die, the Blessings of Heaven shall or will descend, during my Night of Death and Continuance in the dark Grave, upon my + Offspring and Posterity, who shall be as great and prosperous as their Chap.IV. Father.

* The Noun of the Verb, here translated pernoctabit, finall lie Night, fignifies an Inn or House of Reception for Travellers, who, after a Night's Lodging, proceed forwards to the End of their Journey.

† A Commentator, cited by Schultens, fays, that by the Words my Branch are understood the Sons of Job; and Schultens himself fays, that in this Passage is contained an ample Declaration of Job's Faith, his full Hope of a happier State, &c.

To proceed, My Glory, nova erit, fays Schultens, shall be * fresh in me, my + Power and Strength shall be || exchanged for the better, i. e. fuch as will exceed any thing I have or ever had of this Kind in Degree and Duration. And now we may fairly declare and conclude what Job promifed himself and depended upon, as to himself, after Death, if we suppose that he knew the Meaning of his own Expressions. The natural obvious Interpretation of his Words must, I think, be this, or he may be supposed to say-Though my Body must rest in the Grave, as in a Bed, and lie there all Night, during the whole Time of its Separation from the Soul, in fuch a State of Inaction and Infensibility as feizes the weary Traveller when he lays himself down to rest after a fatiguing Journey, yet it will awake and arife in the Morning of the Refurrection, quite fresh and blooming with renewed and increafed Life and Vigour, haftning with Joy to the Place of its Settlement and fixed Habitation. They, who say these Things, plainly declare that Cc 2

* The Original gives the Idea of Renovation. Inflauration is used for Rebuilding the House of God, for Renewing the Face of the Earth, Ps. CIV. New Heavens mentioned in Isaiah, &c.

† The Word here rendered Bow, when metaphorically applyed to Men, says Stockius, signifies their Power and Strength.

| The original Word CHaLaPH has been already confidered above, Chap. XIV, 14.

Chap.IV. they look upon themselves as only Sojourners here, that they seek another Country, i. e. an heavenly.

XIV. Chap. XXX. 22, 23. Thou liftest me up to the Wind; thou causest me to *ride upon it, and dissolvest my + Substance. For I know that thou wilt bring me to Death, and to the House appointed for all Living.

Upon the Certainty of his Death, and his being carried to the House appointed for all Living, fob founds his Assertion, that God would list him up to the Wind, that he would cause him to ride upon it, and this to happen upon the Disfolution of his Substance, Eccles. XII. 7. is the best Comment upon this Place, Then shall the Dust return to the Earth as it was, and the Spirit shall return unto God who gave it.

By the House appointed for all Living, the Generality of Commentators understand the Grave. But whether that be the true Construction, the Reader will judge when I have explained one or two of the original Words: Ke Be R is the common Word for the Grave, and not Beth, here rendered rendered House, supposed by some to mean the Chap.IV. House or Repository of the Body, when dead. The Grave indeed is the general Place for such as are buried, but there is no particular Place appointed as a common Receptacle, or as the Repository of all human Bodies: Whereas here is plainly defcribed, I think, a Place where all Living, as fuch, shall be gathered together. The Words for all Living may be rendered for all Life. If fo rendered, the Sense will be determined; as, I think, the most absurd Commentator will not say the Grave is appointed for Life. The Rabbies indeed have told us that the Word for Life (when not attributed to the Deity) is plural, but this is notalways true. In this very Book it is used twice in the fingular by Job himself, and interpreted my Life, Job VII. 7. X. 1.

* The Orig. to ride, as in a Chariot.

† Heb. fignifies Essence, Existence, Substance; Schultens says that it implies the greatest Solidity, i. e. where the Parts are most closely united. And where shall we find any thing under Heaven sully to answer these Ideas, viz. dissolving the most closely compacted Substance, unless in the Dissolution of the Soul and Body of Man in the Article of Death, when the Essence or essential Parts of Man are dissurited, and the Union of Soul and Body, which is the closest that we can conceive, is at once dissolved.

But the Meaning of these Words, all Living, will perhaps be more satisfactorily explained, if we look back to the first Use and Occasion of them, which was very early, and upon a most remarkable Occasion, viz. that of Adam's calling his Wise's Name Eve, because, says the Text, she was the Mother of all Living, which are the very Words used here in Job. When the Words are rendered all Life, then the Semen santificans (as Divines speak) our blessed Redeemer, must be understood; otherwise, according to the present Translation, the Semen sanctificatum, all such as shall be sanctified, must be meant: So that the whole human Race, Bad as well as Good, are not comprehended under this Description, the Chap.IV. Good only, or spiritual Life, being here signified. This Kind of Life, or that Part of good Men which is the Subject of it, and gives them the proper, peculiar Denomination of the Living, is immortal: As therefore the Living in this Sense never die, no Grave can receive them or be appointed for them; fo that the House appointed for all Living must be a Place appointed for Immortals only, and the Spirits of just Men made perfeet*. The Reader will be fully fatisfied of the Justness of this Interpretation, by consulting the learned Heidegger: But as the Book is not fo common as one would wish it should be, I shall transcribe and subjoin what may be sufficient to support what is here offered +. But moreover, the other textual Word in Regimen

* Where the Soul of Christ, during the separate State of its Existence, made its abode; That Paradise to which the penitent Thief on the Cross was translated at his Diffolution, together with our Lord.

+ &quot;Ad Semen Mulieris pertinet ), omne Vivens, " nam Semen Mulieris non esse nisi Sanctos patet, quia

&quot;discernitur a Semine Serpentis; quod sunt improbi Fili 66 secundum Originem Carnis et Sanguinis ex Evâ, per

« Reputationem vero, et Ingenii Similitudinem, Filii

&quot; Maligni, Matth. XIII. 38. Filii Diaboli, 1 Jo. III. 10. " Progenies Serpentum, Matth. III. 7.

&quot; Semen Mulieris illud est, cujus illa per Promissionem " facta est Mater. At mox post Promissionem intel-

&quot; lexit Adamus factam esse Evam, ' , Matrem omnis Viventis, spiritualem Vitam. Nimis enim exile est, si de Vità naturali explicetur. Cur enim, si ob

&quot; Principium animalis Vitæ Eva dicta est, non ante

&quot; Lapfum hoc ei Nomen inditum? Cur statim post ce Promissionem, per quam et ipsa Eva vivificata, et re-

with Beth, and translated appointed, requires, I Chap. IV. presume, the Construction which I have offered. The Verb of this Noun, or Participle, fignifies to assemble upon a great and solemn Occasion. The hemantick Noun derived from it, here used after Beth, fignifies both the Place, Bufiness, or Perfons appointed or convened, ex condicto, upon the Appointment, Command, and Defignation of fome Perfons having full Authority to call fuch Assemblies, and make such Appointments: The States of Kingdoms fo convened, the Maunyvers, Conventus publicus, or national Congregations of the People are described by this Word. So here it must denote that Place and those Persons, all Living, who shall be summoned by their Creator and Redeemer to meet him, when he shall call them, and to attend him at the last Day, accompanied with the Angels and illustrious Host of Heaven. Our Lord is the true * Asaph, who will gather the Elect together from every Quar-Cc 4

"
verà facta est Mater omnis Viventis in Spiritu, cum ante ipsum etiam Adamum videatur Promissionem amplexa, ac ita, ut ex Promissione captatam Occasionem Nomenclaturæ appareat? Eva igitur facta Mater Se minis viventis, quod duplex est, vivissicans et vivissica tum, sanctificans et sanctificatum; vivissicans et sancti ficans est Christus, vivissicatum et sanctificatum Fideles,

Utrique ex uno. Heb. XI. 11." Heideg. Hist. Pa-

The converted Jew cited in the Prel. Difc. in his 23d Page has made the following Remark, 'That Eve was 'called the Mother of All Living, as being the primitive.

triarch. Exercit. III. p. 86. See likewise Romans IX. 8.

Mother of the LORD of Life."

* This Word is, by Interpretation, I will gather.

Chap.IV. ter under Heaven at the Time and Place appointed ed, and has likewise appointed for * All Living a proper

* The Reader will observe from what is said in this Place, that this Phrase of the House appointed for All Living must be understood of two different States of Existence, and that the Word Living admits of two Senses. The first State of Existence, which these Expressions refer us to, is that of departed Souls in general, where they remain or are kept for their final Trial and Sentence. And this was well known to the ancient Jews by the Name of Scol, Now, comprehending Paradise, the supposed Apartment of good Men, and Geenna, the Place of the Wicked. Bochart's Pars Posterior Hierozoic cites Authorities from the Rabbies to confirm this Account of the Jewish Opinions upon this Subject, as they are here set down, which the curious Reader may read, for farther Satisfaction, at Page 801, 802. Edit. Cadomi, 1663.

"Uno eodemque Momento Corpus Fossa ( TITE', ec expl. P. 152.) destinatur, et Anima to Seol. Cogor " Hebraice loqui, faith Bochart, quia Latina vox nulla " fuppetit, quæ Hebraicam fatis exprimit." From the Tewish Notions of Seal, above given, the Word Living must require two Senses, applicable to the two different Conditions here supposed of Good and Bad. The Good. only, in whom the spiritual Life was never extinguished, are to be called, in the truest and highest Sense, The Living, and most properly styled Immortals, as the second Death has no Power over them. The Bad may be called Living in a secondary Sense, as they have a Soul that cannot die, though they have lost the Spirit or spiritual Life, which is the first and most noble Part of the human Compolition, and the only One whereby Man may be properly said to Live.

But 2dly, By the House, &c. is meant the Place appointed for the general Rendezvous of the whole human Race at the Last Day, with their Souls and Bodies reunited, trembling, and expecting their final Doom.

O fave me, Pow'r

Of Pow'rs, supreme, in that tremendous Hour! Dr. Young on the Last Da. a proper Place of Residence during the interme- Chap.IV.

This Verse therefore, rightly rendered, must, I think, run thus, And the Place of Appointment, or what is solemnly appointed for the Reception of all Living. In common Reading the Sense is flat, not worthy the inspired Writer, saying only that Fob would die, and be buried. But supposing that this Construction be right, he afferts something more great, and confiftent with what he had before maintained; that after Death he should go to, and make one amongst the Good and Holy, departed this Life in the Faith and Fear of God, or in the true Sense of the Phrase, be gathered unto his Fathers, unto Abraham, and other good Men, then living; for God, who was their God, is not the God of the Dead, but of the Living: All fuch live unto him, and in their best Part never die. Wherefore our Saviour's Saying to the Jews (John VIII. 51, &c.) If a Man keep my Saying, be shall never see Death, understood in the Sense here given, is upon divine Authority literally true, without the Help of any Metaphor; for the spiritual Part of fuch as are fanctified, shall never taste of Death.

I must refer the Reader to one Passage more, if he should still be of Opinion that Elibu was a mere Man, and as such fallible: It is that remarkable Recapitulation of Job's Offence, and the Substance of the Dispute between God and

him,

Chap.IV. him, delivered by the Lord himself out of the Whirlwind.

XV. Chap. XI. Ver. 8. &c. Wilt thou also disanul my Judgment? wilt thou condenn me, that thou mayest be righteous? hast thou an Arm like God? or canst thou thunder with a Voice, like him? Deck thyself now with Majesty and Excellency, and array thyself with Glory and Beauty. Cast abroad the Rage of thy Wrath; and behold every one that is proud, and abase him. Look on every one that is proud, and bring him low; and tread down the Wicked in their Place. Hide them in the Dust together, and bind their Faces in secret. Then will I also confess unto thee, that thine own Right-Hand can save thee.

Can any reasonable Man, who reads these Verses with Attention, any longer doubt what was the Crime of Fob, and consequently the Defign of this Conference, and of the penning of this Book? To warrant the Propriety of this Conclusion in the 14th Verse, Job must have asferted, that his own Right-Hand, i.e. his own Strength and Abilities, could fave him, without the Affistance of Him who was Ben-jamin, the Son of the Right-Hand of Power, the only one, whose peculiar Office and Glory it was to fave, in the Scripture Phrase, mighty to save; which no one but he who was God, as well as Man, could do, which is fuggested in the Questions contained in the Verses above cited. And now I may affume and apply the Words of St. John, ufed used upon another Occasion, in his ist Epistle, Chap. IV. Chap. V. Ver. 9. If we-receive the Witness of Men, the Witness of God is greater.

The Confistency of the general Tenor of the Book of Job, with the Hypothesis above advanced, must, I think, appear from the Texts now cited. The Opinion likewise of those Times concerning the fundamental and most important. Truths of Religion, with the prevailing Error of that Age, may, I think, be clearly seen in the Passages explained in this Chapter.

CHAP. V.

Objections answered.

HAVING already, in the Progress of this Chap. V. Work, cleared my Way, as well as I could, by the Removal of many lesser Difficulties, and the Solution of incidental Doubts as they occurred, and seemed to obstruct the Passage to my purposed End, I proceed now to answer some capital Objections which will probably, and may plausibly be made to what is here supposed concerning the principal Design and Scope of the Book of Job. These I have reserved for a more particular and distinct Consideration; and I shall produce such as appear to me considerable enough to deserve more special Notice, after the most impartial Chap.V. impartial Review of this Argument, and what hath been faid upon it.

I. That which appears in the Front, and seems to be the most formidable of any, is this: Good and learned Men, ancient and modern Writers, have thought the first Scope and Use of this divine Book was the Exhibition of a perfect and illustrious Pattern of Patience, to encourage the Constancy, and support the Spirits, of all good Men under the Trial of Afflictions. The learned Cocceius introduces his Comment upon Job with this Declaration, as though it was a settled and agreed Point, and claims the Authority of St. James, as he was understood and quoted by St. Cyprian, &c. in support of this Opinion.

As the Stress of this Objection seems to rest upon the Authority of St. James, if the Foundation fails, the Superstructure must sink. This I think will be the Case upon Examination. Let us hear what St. James faith:

* Take, my Brethren, the Prophets, who have spoken in the Name of the Lord, for an Example of suffering Affliction, and Patience. Behold we count them happy which endure. Ye have heard of the Patience of Job, &c. St. James was comforting the sinking Spirits of the new Converts to Christianity under a Variety of Discouragements and Sufferings, under which they groaned, being hourly threatned with the Loss of every temporal Possession, and Life itself: And as Examples have generally a more forcible Weight than mere Chap.V. speculative Reasonings or Arguments, unsupported by pertinent Instances, the Apostle refers them to the most illustrious Patterns, for their Comfort and Imitation, to be viewed in the faithful History of the Holy Books. After placing the Prophets before them, as deferving the first Place and Notice, he adds, Ye have heard of the Patience of Fob. Upon a Parity of Reason it may be said, that the principal Thing to be learned from the Prophets is an Example of Suffering Affliction, and Patience: Nay these seem to be the Examples chiefly recommended by the Apostle for this Purpose; whereas 700, by the more indirect Manner of mentioning him in the Expressions, ye have heard of, &c. feems to be added as an After-thought (humanly speaking) or for some particular View, arifing from the then Circumstances of Things, and Persons. * Job seems to have

* James V. 10, 11.

* For the like Reason Fob seems to be named as one of the celebrated Triumvirate with Noah and Daniel, viz. to comprehend the whole human Race till that Time. Noah was the Representative of the antediluvian and postdiluvian Church in the holy Line from Shem; Daniel represented the People of God under the Mosaic Occonomy; and Job is added as the principal Person amongst, or Representative of the Gentiles, or such as were without the Pale of the Church, or Covenant, though occasionally admitted to share in the Blessings of the right Line, or covenanted Sons of God: So that the Argument drawn from the Order wherein these Three are named, to prove that Job lived after Daniel, feems to be founded upon what was no way intimated or intended here. Upon fuch Kind of Reasoning we may say, that Job lived not · long Chap.V. have been mentioned upon this Occasion, not as though he was to be marked out folely and principally for this Purpose (for the Prophets stand before him,) but he was superadded to the Prophets, as the most eminent Instance of suffering Affliction, and Patience, in the Patriarchal State, or amongst the Nations. Some of the new Chriflians, the Gentile Converts might probably be more attentive to an Example taken from amongst the Nations. The Apostle may be likewise supposed hereby, in citing such an Example, to provoke the Fewish Converts to an holy Jealousy and Emulation, taking from them at the same Time an Occasion of boasting that such heroic Virtue was not to be found without the Limits of Judea, or unless amongst the direct Descendants of Abraham. These, I think, may be fairly supposed to be St. James's Reasons, or some of them, for alledging the Example of Job here in the Manner he does, and what he had chiefly in View in the Course of his Argument and Exhortation. That this indeed was the Whole of his Defign with regard to Job, and the Argument of the Book of Job, will appear the more probable when it is confidered, that the exemplary Patience of Job makes but a small Part of the Book. Accordingly, the marginal Note of the long before the Nativity of our Lord, inasmuch as he is mentioned by St. James after the Prophets, who, according to St. Matthew XI. 13. prophesied, and according to St. Luke XVI. 16. were until John.

the English Bible upon this Scripture of St. James, Chap. V. refers only to the former Part of the first and fecond Chapters of that Book. Job's Steadiness indeed, and Patience under the accumulated Evils there recited, render him an Instance and Example deserving the high Honour of an Apostle's Praise and especial Recommendation: But even the divine Declaration and Testimony of his unblameable Behaviour upon these severe Trials leave Room to suppose, that his whole Conduct, and all his Speeches, were not fo commendable or defensible. At the End of the first Chapter it is faid, In all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly. In the second Chapter, after his enduring fo bravely the Infliction of the Boils, and refifting strong Temptations, it is faid, In all this did not Job sin with his Lips; and surprizing it is that Flesh and Blood could endure so much without finning with the Lips, when a fortieth Part of his Sufferings would, I fear, provoke many a nominal Christian to utter the most profane Remonstrances and direful Imprecations. But these Words plainly direct us to a farther Search, to know whether Job upon any other Occasion charged God foolishly, or sinned with his Lips: I followed this Direction; how fuccessfully must be fubmitted to my Reader's Judgment. But we may as well form a Judgment of the first Defign and principal Use of a superb Edifice from a View of the Portico only, as of fo august an History from the Introduction to it. By the Rules

Chap.V. Rules indeed of Symmetry and Proportion, the Grandeur and Magnificence of both may be eftimated by fkilful Judges: Such will not be deceived in their Expectation in the Application of these Rules to the Introduction of the History of the Book of Job. But in that, or any other Introduction, we must not expect to find the diftinguishing Character and principal Aim of the Historian. One Use, and a great one, of this Book, is certainly an Example of fuffering Affliction and Patience, particularly taught in the Introduction; but many others, and a more general and important one is to be looked after in the Body of the Work. Afflictions, we know, are fent for various good Reasons; not from any Delight taken by God in punishing Man, but for the Correction of some hidden Vice, for bringing to Light fome great, referved Virtue, which could not be placed in a proper Exposition, or receive so fine a Polish, without being cast into the Furnace of Affliction. By taking the Method just mentioned, and the Enquiry here made, I have traced, I think, this intricate and troubled Stream to the Fountain-Head, and found a Key to open the principal Meaning and Scope of this History.

II. Another Objection may be taken from what the infallible Judge of all Men declares concerning Job, that he was * perfett and upright, and that feared God, and eschewed Evil. How Chap.V. then can this Character be reconciled with the Charge supposed to be exhibited against him by Elibu, and with the Punishments, due only to Sinners, inflicted upon him?

* Upon Mr. Hutchinson's, &c. Supposition, that one, and perhaps the primary Occasion of this Book, was to convince

This feemingly strong Objection will, I think, foon appear, upon a short Examination, to assist and confirm the present Argument.

This high and divine Testimony of the distinguished, superior Excellencies of this eminent Patriarch will not, I hope, be understood to imply absolute Persection, that Job was without Sin, or in an impeccable State. Cocceius, who speaks of him in the highest Terms, thinks it necessary to interpose a Caution in this Respect, "Dicere autem ullum "Hominem absque peccato fuisse aut esse, maximum "Mendacium est," are the Words of this learned Writer: And if Cocceius were silent, we have Apostolical Authority for afferting that such humans convince the People of that Age, that the true God was superior to the supposed Deities of that Time, or that the God of Heaven was above the Operations of the Air and Elements, or the Prince of those Powers, the Character of perfect and upright is absolutely and literally true. Mr. Hutchinson therefore says truly, that *"in "this Case Job was perfect and upright," as he resisted Satan's Temptations, by refusing to pay Homage to the Heavens, or Fire, Light and Spirit, though Satan, by the Permission of God, had employed the Artillery of those Agents to terrify him into an Obedience to, and Worship of them, by the dreadful Havock made by them in the Family and Fortune of Job, as described in the first Part of the History.

* Essay towards a Natural History of the Bible.

Chap. V. man Pretensions are false and arrogant. But 70b was doubtless, compared with other Men, perfect and upright. He was probably the best, as well as one of the greatest Men of the East, was not stained with any scandalous Immoralities, and was constant in attending the public Worship of God. His Disposition was good, and his Conduct exemplary. And fuch a Character was necessary to support and establish the Point, which was intended to be proved by the Course and Progress of this Narrative. The Inference more particularly pointed out hereby was plainly this; if the most perfect and most upright Man within our Knowlege, or the Reach of Tradition, or History, I may add (if so much be not implied in perfett) if a Person of the most extenfive Capacity and Knowlege of Things human and divine, be notwithstanding a Sinner, and an ignorant Pretender to Science in the Sight of THE Creator, what Authority can any mere Mortal have for fetting any high Value upon himself on account of his intellectual, moral, or religious Attainments? A Person less distinguished, or of an inferior Character, could not have answered the Design of Providence in this Matter, and Nothing less than such a Hero, who had carried human Virtue to the highest Pitch it had arrived to, or would probably ever reach, one Instance alone excepted, could have taken away all Foundation of boafting, or trufting in personal Righteousness, and the Excellency of human 4 human Understanding, called by some the Per-Chap. V. fection of Reason. Poor modern Self-Idolaters, compared with this illustrious Pattern, might, if that were possible, be humbled by such a Representation; though perhaps some of the pert Ones may say they could answer some of the * Questions that puzzled Job. I wish they deserved such a Testimony of being upright, fearing God, and eschewing Evil: But whether this Character, or the Picture of Job's Adversary, the external and eschewars †, as drawn by Cocceius, describes them more truly, must be submitted to impartial Judges.

There is no Occasion, I think, to take particular Notice of what is said of Job in the 7th Verse of the last Chapter, where the Lord declares that Job bad spoken of bim the Thing that was right: This Declaration can relate only, I presume, to Job's Confession and Acknowlege-

D d 2 ment,

* Such as think themselves to be philosophical Adepts, long initiated into the Mysteries of Nature, and speak from sure Experience, may be apt to say that Job was only pro illis Temporibus eruditus.

† &quot;Vult Satanas nos ex Sede nostrâ, quantum in se est, depellere: Eò sunt comparata, τα σνεύμαθικα της ωνουρειας, spirituales Nequitiæ, h. e. omnis Subtilitas, μεθοδεια, Versutia, omne Stratagema, omne Telum, non corporale sed spirituale, omnis Strenuitas, Vis, Potentia, Diligentia Nequitiæ exercendæ et patrandæ idonea; quæ non vulgaris est, et humi serpens, sed efferens in Cælum, usque ad ipsum Tribunal Dei, et omni Occasione, si indormescamus, et Latus ei nudemus, per horribiles Criminationes nos seos agens." Cocc. in 70b, p. 24.

Chap.V. ment, contained in the 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, and above all 6th Verse of the last Chapter, which the three Friends had not submitted to, or joined in; on which account the Wrath of God was kindled against them. No Argument therefore can be drawn from hence to prove that Job had not been a Sinner with his Lips.

III. A third Objection may feem to arise from the Facts above stated (which are, I humbly think, vindicated, and sufficiently established) concerning the Doctrines of Righteousness, a future State, the two Natures of Christ, &c. being known and revealed in the early Ages we have been considering: If they enjoyed so full a Revelation, so strong a Light as to see clearly these great mysterious Truths, to look into the other World, and to behold, as it were, the Heavens opening, and discovering the Messiah, as he was to appear and act in the Fulness of Time, what Advantage hath the Christian above the Patriarchal, or Mosaical Dispensation?

I beg leave to answer in the Words of St. Paul upon a like Occasion, much every Way, chiefly because unto us are committed the Oracles of God; as well such as were delivered by the supreme Legislator himself and his Apostles, as what were contained in the Canon of the Old Testament, which God spake by the Mouth of all his boly Prophets since the World began.

To be a little more particular concerning the Benefits and Excellency of the Christian Dispen-4 fation. fation. We have thereby an Exemplification of Chap. V. what was before in Type, Figure, Prophecy, and Promise only. The History of the Incarnation, Sufferings, Death, Resurrection, and Ascension of our Blessed Saviour give a satisfactory Evolution of what was before in a great Measure folded up, and covered by a Veil, opening what was wrapped up as to the Manner of its Publication. Without this Revelation, the grand Scheme of our Redemption must have been left quite rude and impersect, like the Ichnography of a Building, or an unfinished Plan, never carried into Execution.

One Instance may suffice here to prove this Point. Had not the Resurrection of Christ been verified and realized, according to the Predictions of the Prophets concerning this grand and important Event, all the Morality of Religion, and the most careful Conformity to the Duties and Precepts of the fecond Table would have been ineffectual towards taking away Transgreffion, or giving any Title to immortal Happiness *. If Christ be not risen, then is our Preaching vain, and your Faith is also vain. The last Dispensation is a Dispensation of Facts, and therefore Truth is faid to come by Jesus Christ, and in bim, or in the feveral Parts of what he did and suffered, the Promises, &c. were Yea and Amen. Doctrinal Points, properly fo called, as necessary
D d 3 for

* If Jesus be not risen, says an Apostle, ye are yet in your Sins.

Chap. V. for the Faith and Direction of all, were, with fome circumftantial Variations, revealed originally to all. But the Sins of Man made it as necessary, as it was merciful, to contract the Rays of infpired Light, that, instead of its being totally lost in an universal Darkness, it might be preserved for the Benefit of Mankind, and shine forth again in some suture convenient Season with renewed and univerfal Lustre. This happened when Grace, as well as Truth, came by Jesus Christ. To him we owe the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, who enabled the Apostles by their Preaching to enlighten the dark Corners of the Earth, whose Sound went into all the Earth, and their Words unto the Ends of the World, as expressly predicted, Pf. XIX. 4.

Some indeed have supposed, that the great doctrinal Point concerning a future State, whereupon Religion rests most securely, as its surest Foundation, and riseth most triumphantly, was not revealed till the last Days, because it is said that Life and Immortality were brought to Light by the Gospel. But the Words by no means carry such a Sense, or justify such an Opinion.

Bringing to Light aptly fignifies taking Things out of the Shades and Obscurity of the prophetic Dress, and Expression, and giving them all the Illustration of Reality and a full Exposition*.

Though

* Cyrus, and what he was to do with relation to God's People, were foretold two hundred Years before the Birth

Though a Refurrection had been taught, yet it Chap. V. was more fully explained and demonstrated by the Refurrection of our Saviour, and of the Bodies of fuch Saints as then arose and appeared unto many.

Hence St. Paul reasons, If Christ be risen, how say some among you that there is no Resurrection of the Dead? This explained the Doctrine so fully, as to leave no Room for Doubt and Scruple, though * Moses had shewn before that the Dead should be raised. But now this Light was to spread, and to be a Light to lighten the Gentiles, of whom this Text, according to many learned Commentators, is therefore † principally to be understood; as to them likewise, at the same Time, the Doctrine of Righteousness was to be revealed for their Comfort and Reliance, according to the Prediction, his Righteousness hath he openly shewed (or revealed) in the Sight of the Heathen, Ps. XCVIII. 2.

. D.d 4

If

of Cyrus. But the Prophecy was brought to Light when he appeared, and by his Actions explained every Prediction concerning him.

* St. Luke XX. 27, 28, &c.

† Supposing that the general Doctrine of a future State be intimated by the Words of 2 Tim. I. 10. what follows makes it very clear that this Revelation was for the Use of the Gentiles, as ως ο ετεθην εγω—διδασκαλος εθνων, says the Apostle in the immediately following Words of Verse II. whereunto, or for which Purpose, viz. the Declaration of this Doctrine, I am appointed a Preacher, and an Apostle, and a Teacher of the Gentiles.

Chap.V. * If by Life and Immortality be meant the Author of Life and Immortality, then we know the Meaning, and a great one it is, viz. God manifest in the Flesh: This Manifestation accounts for the feemingly wide and different Meanings of the Hebrew Word BoSHaR, Flesh, and good Tidings or Gospel. M. de Calasso says, "I. Sig"nificat Nuntium. Piel, nunciavit Rem bonam
"et lætam, evangelizavit. Nuntius bonus, "Evangelista. Nuntium bonum, Evangelium.
"Deinde, Merces læta nunciantibus, Præmium
"quod

* The Original seems to favour greatly, if not to authorize, and fix this Interpretation, our incorruction, not some in a section of the second interpretation, our incorruction, not adarcasa, which is the Word used by St. Paul for Immortality. And what is enlightening, or throwing Light upon Incorruption, but explaining what had been said about it more obscurely before? The Psalmist's Prediction, that the holy One should not see Corruption, greatly wanted Light, and could not have been explained without that particular Circumstance attending our Saviour's Body in its being raised before it was any way corrupted. The Hebrew Word for Corruption is Pille, translated by Pagninus, Fovea, signifying that fort of Corruption, which happens to dead Bodies in the Grave or Pit. See this Word explained above.

Now as our Saviour was the Person, who, by dying himself, had abolished Death (as mentioned just before) or taken away its Sting, so cassam reddidit, as the Original signifies, and appeared to be Life itself by raising himself and others from the Dead, and was besides the only Person who died, and yet did not see Corruption; this Passage seems to be applicable, if not solely, yet principally to him, and refers to the particular Prophecies of the Royal Prophet, and others, concerning him in these Particulars, without any Regard to the general Dectrine of a future State,

" quod bonæ Rei Nuncio exhibetur. II. Signi-Chap.V. " ficat Carnem."

It may be here observed, that this Manisestation and Apostolical Description, thus interpreted, fulfilled what was predicted Gen. III. 20. where we read in our Translation, Adam called bis Wife's Name Eve, because she was the Mother of all Living. The Words, I think, ought to be rendered, Adam (upon the Promise being given) called bis Wife's Name CHaVaH, because she was to be (futura esset, says a Commentator cited by Poole) the Mother * of All, or UNIVERSAL LIFE, as the Original may, I had almost said, must be rendered.

The Rabbies seem to have obscured this prophetic Description of the peculiar Manner of the Incarnation of the Son of God, by giving the wrong Root or Etymology of Eve's Name. For this Purpose, and to justify the Sense necessarily suggested in our Version, the Word Eve is derived from a Verb which signifies to live, &c. which begins with an He in; whereas it is undoubtedly derived from the Verb CH aVaH, as our Translators inform us in the Margin, which begins with a CHeth in, and is a Root of a different Signification, whose Exposition, according * The Semen fanctificans is here understood, as the Semen fanctificatum was in another Passage cited above, See what is observed under N. XIII. in the preceding Chapter,

Chap. V. cording to Marius, is to make manifest, shew forth, declare, demonstrate, exhibit, &c. and is used in Daniel for a particular Exhibition and Declaration of those eventual Realities, which were adumbrated, and enigmatically represented in Nebuchadnezzar's Dream. It is evident, I think, that the Words, when first delivered, were understood by Eve in this Sense, from what she says upon the Birth of Cain, I have gotten the Man, The Jehovah, as the Words are rendered by very learned Men. See Glassius, Poole, Hutchinson, &c.

·Had Eve attended to every Particular of this Prophecy, she would have looked farther for the Completion of it. A Mother only being mentioned, as being to have the fole Honour and Bleffing of producing this universal Life (who was properly fo called, as he was the Author and Giver of Life) she might have inferred that Cain could not be the promifed Seed, fince he was conceived by Adam's knowing her. A future Eve was therefore pointed out, who should produce a Man without the Assistance of Man, and so be a Mother in an exclusive Sense. This Man, or Production, was likewise to be all, or univerfal Life, the Fountain of Life, and Restorer of Immortality: So that the Incarnation of our Lord explained and fulfilled this Prediction, by thus bringing Life and Immortality to Light. Comparing spiritual Things with spiritual is the fairest' fairest and surest Way of interpreting the Scrip-Chap. V. tures, and this Method will abundantly justify the Sense of this Text here given, and render every Thing and Part consistent. But to proceed:

Had not our Saviour * re-enacted, and reestablished the focial or moral Law, Men might probably have thought themselves quite at liberty in that Respect, and have let loose the Reins to the Violence of their strongest Passions; and most dangerous Appetites. It might plausibly enough have been urged, that the Jewish Difpenfation was quite abrogated by the Gospel, or perfect Law of Liberty, as there was no Exception of any Part: The Judicial and Ceremonial were confessedly repealed, and why might not the Moral be supposed to suffer the same Fate? This therefore, I humbly conceive, was one great Reason why our Saviour and his Apostles were fo large and particular in re-establishing and inculcating the moral Law. Libertines would otherwise have had a fine Opportunity of shaking off fo uneafy a Yoke, and + Few would have iudaized

+ Christianity, had it laid no Restraint upon irregular Appetites, would have had but sew Opponents, and its Truths

* I call it re-enacting, and re-publishing, because the moral Law, or Duty to our Neighbour, as well as our Duty to God, had been enacted and published before so fully, that our blessed Lord himself declares, On these two Commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets, Matt. XXII. 40.

Chap.V. judaized in this respect, or insisted upon the Observance of the moral, as they did upon that of the ceremonial Law. Another great View in re-establishing the moral Law was certainly to restore it to its primitive Beauty and Simplicity, purified from all Pharifaical Gloffes and Corruptions. By being retouched by that divine Hand which first formed it, it had the Advantage of an high and delicate Polish to recommend it to the Esteem and Admiration of Mankind. Add to this the Authority which accrued to this Law by its being declared by the Legislator himself, as well as by being settled beyond all Doubt by the clearest Rules and the brightest Example. To these distinguishing Excellencies of the Christian Dispensation may be added the inestimable Honour of seeing and converfing with God incarnate, as a Man talks with his Friend. If these Distinctions be not sufficient to give the Gospel-State a Superiority, and Priority of Rank over the former Difpen-

Truths would have been allowed to have had their proper Force, which some of them were not permitted to have, on account of their thwarting the most beloved Lusts and Demands of the carnal Mind. Mr. Hobbes, I think, observed, that " if the Demonstrations of Euclid" affected the Passions of Mankind as much as many of the Precepts of the Christian Religion, they would have as little Force;" so that Insidelity arises from the Corruption of the Heart, not Want of Evidence, which is implied in the Expression of the Apostle, an will Heart of Unbelief.

Dispensations, the Reader, upon a little Recol-Chap. V. lection, will find out many more, more than can be easily recited.

Upon the Whole, we fee that the feveral Periods of the Christian Church had proper and suitable Allotments, and Degrees of Light from above, assigned and communicated to it, for the better carrying into Execution the great Work of God in the Scheme of Redemption. Accordingly, each of the facred Codes had its particular Use and Design; and the Friends of Revelation will never attempt to weaken its Force, by sowing Discord between these two faithful and powerful Allies.

IV. The last Objection which I shall mention appeared to me so strong and well-sounded, that it had well nigh prevailed upon me to drop my Pen, and engage no farther in the Cause I had undertaken.

It might, I supposed, it would, I feared, be faid by many, who dislike the Matter or Form of this Enquiry, who are Adversaries to the Doctrines maintained in it, or who think the Author unequal to such an Attempt, that the Writer of this Book must be that vain Man whom he would seem to abhor, by imagining that he can give a better Account of such important Doubts and Difficulties, than so many learned and good Men have been able to do through many successive Ages.

The

Chap. V. The first Answer which occurred to my Thoughts was, that God Almighty has frequently employed very mean Instruments in his greatest Services, and has revealed to Babes in Learning and Understanding, what had escaped the Enquiry of the most Lettered and Sagacious. But this specious Defence, when thoroughly confidered and examined, appeared to be an Aggravation and fuller Proof of the supposed Charge exhibited against me, inasmuch as the Claim of a divine Direction betrays a higher, and a much worse Kind of Vanity, than any Pretension to superior human Wisdom. Enthusiasm frequently carries with it more Guilt, and always more Danger, than common Arrogance and Self-fufficiency.

The next Suggestion was more satisfactory, and will, I hope, remove a great Part of that general Odium, which the Objection above mentioned, when left to its full Force, never fails to bring along with it.

This Kind of Argumentation ought not to be conclusive, as it will prove too much. For if this Inference did necessarily follow from these Premisses, that is, if every Person who communicates his Thoughts to the Public must be declared guilty of Vanity and Arrogance, a Stop must be put to all Writing, as every serious Author is supposed to think, that he teaches or explains something either not known, or not sufficiently ficiently known before: Whereas Providence Chap. V. feems to have planted in the human Breast an active Appetite of Praise, and an useful Spark of Ambition, as a proper Incentive to encourage the Exertion of our Faculties, to promote the Glory of God, and the Good of Mankind. A nice Conduct indeed, and much Circumspection is necessary to guard against any undue Risings in the Mind, that we may not fuffer this heavenborn Principle, this celestial Fire to be abused, or foread itself into an ungovernable, destructive Flame. In these Cases the Heart of Man, especially a Man's own Heart, fitting in Judgment upon his own Actions, is deceitful above all Things. I have been as watchful as I could be over mine upon this Occasion; and as I pretend to no extraordinary Merit, no extraordinary Vanity will, I think, by candid Judges be imputed to me. Secretum Iter is that Path of Life which I have hitherto industriously proceeded in, asmost agreeable to my Inclinations. My Talents likewise, and Abilities advise a private, or rather an obscure Passage. Besides this Course, by being habitual, is become fo delightful, that I had no Defire of altering it; much less of inviting the malignant Eyes of an inquisitive and censorious Age, by a public Exposure of any mean, literary Disquisitions of mine. But meeting in my Way-(notwithstanding the Privacy of it) with many poor, wounded Fellow-Travellers, who Chap.V. who have fallen amongst the worst of Thieves, and been robbed of the most inestimable Treafure, the faving Truths of Christianity, I was willing to avoid the Reproach, and deteftable Character of the Priest and Levite, who have fuch an indelible Mark of Infamy fixed upon them by the facred Evangelist: This History feems aptly to describe such Christian Priests and Ministers, as are so far ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, as to go out of their Way, rather than administer such Medicines to the Sick and Languishing, as are deposited with them for fuch falutary Purpofes, and which will, when poured into the Wound, effectually relieve fuch great Diffress. The Oil, herein offered and applied will, I hope, by the Bleffing of God, have the intended Effect.

A farther Inducement to my Proceeding in this Undertaking was the Confideration of my being difabled, by a painful and incurable Diftemper, from a conftant and due Performance of that Part of the paftoral Duty which confifts in inftructing the People from the Pulpit. For this Reason I thought myself to be under a greater Obligation to declare my Sentiments from the Press, at a Time when the Enemies of Christianity are covering over the Foundations of it with so much Art and Diligence, that the very Traces of it will soon disappear, and be irrecoverably lost, if its Friends neglect at proper Times to mark them out for Memory and Ob-Chap. V. fervation.

But after all, I must confess, that the most powerful Motive which pushed me forward, when I was at a Stand and in a State of Hesitation, was an ardent Defire of obtaining the greatest Reward and the highest Honour. One Verse in the Prophet Daniel, XII. 3. by frequently rolling in my Thoughts, removed all Obstacles, upon my being assured by Persons of Learning and approved Sincerity, with whom I confulted, that the Publication of these Sheets would probably contribute towards effecting that End for which fo high, fo inconceivable a Reward is promised. They that be wife, fays the Text (Teachers fays the marginal Version, upon which Construction my Hopes are built) shall shine as the Brightness of the Firmament, and they that * turn many to Righteousness as the Stars for ever and ever. After what hath been faid in this Book, the Reader need not be told in what Sense I understand the Word Righteousness, as it occurs in this Place: And if I am mistaken in

fuch

* V. Qui ad Justitiam erudivit. M. de Calasso. By the Mem prefixed to the Hebrew Word for justifying or turning to Righteousness (causing to be justified, by shewing the right Way to it) the Instruments of this great Blessings are, I think, plainly signified; namely, those Teachers, who direct their Hearers to the true and only Justifier, by whom alone Men can be made righteous in the Sight of God.

Chap. V. fuch an Interpretation, the Mistake, I hope, will be pardoned, as it has been one Occasion of an innocent, and perhaps useful Undertaking. And fince the Reward and Honour aimed at in this Attempt do not interfere with the Pursuits of worldly-minded Men, or any way incommode such as have other Prizes in View, I do not flatter myself, I think, in supposing that I am at sull Liberty to indulge myself in the Gratification of what may be called a laudable Self-Love, and an honest Ambition.

tue shilling tue shills

POSTSCRIPT.

Extract from a Book printed at Paris 1748, under the Title of Les MŒURS, referred to P. XLV.

I. PARTIE. CHAP. III. ARTICLE I. DU CULTE INTERIEUR.

E Culte intérieur réside dans l'Ame, & c'est le seul qui honore Dieu. Il est sondé sur l'Admiration qu' excite en nous l'Idée de sa Grandeur infinie, sur le Resentiment de ses Bienfaits, & l'Aveu de fa Souveraineté. Le Cœur, pénétré de ces Sentimens, les lui exprime par des Extases d'Admiration, des Saillies d'Amour, & des Protestations de Reconnoissance & de Soumission. Voilà le Langage du Cœur, voilà ses Hymnes, ses Prieres, & ses Sacrifices; voilà le Culte dont il est capable, & le seul digne de la divine Majesté. C'est aussi celui que vouloit rétablir dans le Monde, le Destructeur des Cérémonies Judaïques, comme il paroît par cette belle Réponse qu'il fit à une Femme Samaritaine, lorsqu' elle lui demanda si c'étoit sur la Montagne de Sion, ou fur celle de Semeron qu'il falloit adorer : Le Tems vient, lui dit-il, que les vrais Adorateurs adoreront en Esprit & en Verité. C'est Ee 2 ainfi ainsi qu' avoient adoré les premiers Peres du Genre humain, & ces Hommes renommés dans les Archives du Peuple Juif, qu'on appelle Patriarches. Ils n'avoient ni Temples, ni Oratoires, point d'Heures fixés pour la Priere, point de Formules d'Oraisons dressées, point de Rites ni de Cérémonies, point de Prosternemens ni de Génussexions. Le Cœur peut adorer en tout Tems & en tous Lieux, en toutes Postures & en toutes Situations. Toute le Face de la Terre étoit leur Temple, la Voute céleste en étoit le Lambris. Quelque Merveille opérée par le Tout-puissant frappoit leur Vûe: c'étoit-là pour eux le Moment d'admirer sa Grandeur. Un Bienfait, un Secours, une Consolation que la Providence leur envoyoit, leur marquoit l'Instant de se répandre en Actions de Graces. Lorsque le Soin de leurs Affaires, & les Besoins du Corps satisfaits leur laissoient goûter les Charmes de la Solitude, ils étoient avec Dieu, ils s'entretenoient confidemment avec lui, le louoient, le bénissoient, lui protestoient leur Attachement & leur Fidélité, & ne l'ayant point enfermé dans des Murailles, ils le voyoient partout. Debout, assis, couchés, la Tête découverte ou voilée, ils étoient fûrs d'être entendus, & il les entendoit en Effet.

Ce Culte saint, & dégagé des Sens, ne subsista pas long-tems dans toute sa Pureté: On y joignit des Pratiques exterieures & des Cérémonies; & ce su là l'Epoque de sa Décadence.

ARTI-

ARTICLE II. DU CULTE EXTERIEUR.

Dans les premiers Siécles du Monde, les Hommes, justement convaincus que tout ce qu'ils possidoient appartenoit à Dieu, comme étant le Créateur & le Maître de l'Univers, lui en consacrerent une Partie, pour lui faire Hommage du tout: De-là les Sacrifices, les Libations & les Offrandes.

D'abord, ces Actes de Religion se faisoient en pleine Campagne, par la raison qu'il n'y avoit encore ni Villes ni Maisons. Dans la suite l'Inconstance de l'Air & l'Intempérie des Saisons obligerent à les faire dans des Cavernes, dans des Antres, ou dans des Huttes construites exprès: De là l'Origine des Temples.

Chacun dans les Commencemens faisoit luimême à Dieu son Sacrifice & son Oblation. Dans la suite on choisit des Hommes, qu'on destina singulierement à cette Fonction: De-là l'Origine des Prêtres. Or, les Prêtres une sois institués, la Religion, ou, pour mieux dire, l'Appareil du Culte extérieur, grossit de jour en jour à vûe d'œil: Ils crurent le perfectionner en l'ornant; & le rendre plus agréable à Dieu, en le surchargeant de Cérémonies. Ils imaginerent donc des Jeux, des Danses, & des Processions, des Impuretés légales & des Expiations superflues. La Religion dégénéra chez toutes les Nations en de vains
E e 2 Spectacles:

Spectacles: Ce qui n'en étoit que l'Ombre & l'Ecorce, en parut l'essentiel aux Yeux des Hommes grossiers; il n'y eut plus qu'un petit Nombre de Sages qui en conservassent l'Esprit.

L'Origine du Culte extérieur paroît pur & innocente: On se plaît à communiquer ses Sentimens; & plus on les croit justes, plus on aime à les inspirer aux autres. Ce fut sans doute par ce Motif que les premiers Hommes sirent en public quelques Actes extérieurs de Religion. Ils comptoient par des Cérémonies significatives faire naître dans les Cœurs les Sentimens qu'elles exprimoient. Il en arriva tout autrement, on prit les Symboles pour la Chose même: On ne sit plus consister la Religion que dans les Sacrisices, les Offrandes, & les Encensemens; & ce qui avoit été imaginé pour exciter ou affermir la Piété, servit à l'affoiblir & à l'éteindre.

Comme les Lumieres de la Raison ne dictoient rien de précis sur la Maniere d'honorer Dieu extérieurement, on ne sut pas long-tems d'accord sur cette Matiere. C'est à la seule Religion naturelle qu'il appartient d'être unisorme & invariable; toute autre est infailliblement sujette à des Partages, des Divisions, & des Vicissitudes. Chaque Peuple se fit un Culte à sa Guise. De ce Partage naquit un autre Désordre, également contraire à la Sainteté de la Loi primitive & au Bonheur de la Société: Les differentes Sectes, que forma la Diversité du Culte, conçurent les unes pour les autres du Mépris & de l'Animosité; celles celles surtout qui se piquerent du plus scrupuleux Rigorisme eurent grand Soin d'établir, que quiconque rendoit à Dieu des Honneurs qu'elles proscrivoient, ou ne lui rendoit pas ceux qu'elles avoient mis en vogue, étoit l'Objet de son Couroux, & le seroit un Jour de ses Vengeances. Delà ces Haines irréconciliables, qui firent tant de fois couler le Sang des Sectaires, sans jamais afsouvir leur barbare Acharnement. On a beau saire des Efforts généreux pour la Paix; quoi qu'ordonne la Religion Chrétienne elle-même, la plus pacifique de toutes dans la Théorie, on ne se fait point à aimer des Damnés: Cette Méthode sanatique de dévoüer des Hommes vivans à l'Enfer n'est propre qu'à les faire massacre.

Le Culte intérieur est unique; il fut d'Obligation dans tous les Tems, il l'est dans tous les Lieux. & par une Conséquence nécessaire, il est connu de tous les Hommes. Point de Choix par conféquent à faire par Rapport au Culte intérieur. Il n'est point deux Manieres d'aimer Dieu, d'être sensible à ses Bienfaits, soumis à son Autorité, pénétré de Respect à la Vûe de sa Grandeur; mais il est un Infinité de Signes arbitraires, par lesquels on peut marquer ces Sentimens. Tous ceux qui font institués à cette, Fin sont innocens: S'il est un Choix à faire, c'est de préférer les plus clairs & les plus intelligibles; encore ce Choix n'est-il pas d'une Nécessité indispensable, attendu que la seule Convention suffit pour donner de l'Energie à des Signes, & les rendre expressifs. Un Serpent tourné Ee 4

tourné en Cercle, la Queue rentrant dans la Tête, étoit chez les Egyptiens un Symbole clair de l'Eternité, parce qu'ils étoient convenus de la désigner par cette Figure. Le Cercle ailleurs représentoit la Divinité: Chez les Hébreux elle étoit figurée par une Triangle. Les Cananéens se purificient par les Flammes; les Juifs par des Ablutions. Qu'importe, en Effet, qu'on peigne Dieu, rond ou triangulaire; pourvu qu'on entende exprimer, soit par le Cercle ou par le Triangle, qu'il est plus parfait de tous les Etres? Qu'importe qu'on exprime la Pureté, par l'Eau ou par le Feu, si l'on est persuadé également, que sans la Sainteté des Mœurs on ne peut jamais plaire à Dieu? Qu'importe qu'on immole à l'Etre suprème, un Bæuf ou un Elephant, une Brebis ou un Bouc, un Merle ou un Cygne? Qu'importe même qu'on lui sacrifie des Animaux, ou qu'on ne lui offre que des Légumes; pouvû qu'on reconnoisse ne rien tenir que de sa Main? Qu'importe enfin qu'on le prie la Tête tournée vers le Ciel, ou les Yeux baissés vers la Terre, debout ou prosterné, assis ou à Genoux; pourvû que le Cœur soit devant lui dans un parfait Anéantissement?

La Nécessité de rendre à Dieu un Culte extérieur, ne prouve rien en faveur de tel ou tel Culte particulier. Peut-être Dieu n'est il pas plus mécontent de la Diversité des Hommages qu'on lui rend dans les différentes Religions, qu'il ne l'est de ce que dans l'Eglise Romaine quelques quelques religieux récitent les Matines à Minuit, & d'autres le Matin; de ce que quelques-uns les chantent, & d'autres les psalmodient.

—— S'il est une Sorte d'Hommage, que Dieu exige des Hommes par Préférence à tout autre, il faut bien qu'il ait pris soin de les en informer tous: Ou croira-t'on qu'il attende après nos Prêtres & nos Docteurs, pour nous donner des Idées justes en Matiere de Religion.

Un Homme qui vivoit seul sur la Terre seroit dispensé du Culte extérieur; ce n'est point par Rapport à Dieu qu'il a été institué; il l'a été pour unir les Membres de la Société par la Profession ouverte d'une seule & même Religion.

A LET-

A

LETTER

FROM

My very learned Friend Mr. Holloway, Rector of Middleton-stony, Oxfordshire, concerning the Word HaRUM.

Think the Task you have given me hereupon, is to return my Opinion of the Name Hermes, whether it may not as well have a theological Relation to ערום, as a phyfical to הרם; as alfo, whether the Temple at Mecca, called Haram, may not have been denominated from, or have Reference to the same. Now, y and 7, the initial Letters in these Words, are, as you observe, of the same Organ, and do, I believe, often give to the Words in which they occur some Affinity with one another; though they still keep their feveral Derivatives in their own original Language distinct and clear: And therefore in etymologizing Hebrew Words, I myself do not use to suppose the radical Letters, or the fervile, where used as Radicals, divide Stocks with one another. so as that a Word, suppose, with a may be derived rived from another with a D or II in the same Order: So, of אַ הַה לּ contrà. But this, in the Instance before us, is not the Case: For you are not here confidering Hebrew Words as Derivatives from their own Hebrew Roots, but Egyptian, Arabic, and Greek, as Corruptions of Hebrew; and, among fuch, I dare affirm, that Nothing is more common than for the Daughterdialects to form their Words, in that Manner, from mere Corruptions of Hebrew ones; as by putting one Letter for another of like Power, or by jumbling the Senses of feveral like Words in one. Thus, in the particular Example of Hermes, you are certainly right, that it is fetched from a Mixture of the two Words wird and man, to which I must add a third, , because the Mabometans write their Haram with Hha, , in the first Order, which stands in their Alphabet for 7 in the Hebrew. Moreover, the latter Members in ערום and הרם are, as you also observe, one and the fame, whether the Root be DIT, DDT, or סרמה, or a Mixture of all these: And your Account of the two former Members או and אנד with your Supposition of their Derivation, or Relation, is not to be disputed. To which add, that Hermes's Attributes of Interpretation, Eloquence, Cunning, &c. as also some of his Images exhibited quite naked, others, with filthy Nudities exposed; with his Infignia, viz. a Wand with Serpents twifted about it, even as the old Serpent is usually represented winding about the fatal Tree:

Tree; a Goat, the swelling Animal, and a Cock, the vigilant One, which two are often placed on either Side of his Idols; nay some of his said Idols, dressed in a slowing Garment, with the Bosom full of Apples: All these, I say, are pretty plain Evidence of the Relation of his Name to the Hebrew Root yellow, and Dy also; and we are much obliged to you for it.

As for that Haram of the Arabs, they write it, as I have faid, with their Hha = in the first Order, as if it were taken from the Hebrew But, I don't allow them to know any thing of the Orthography and Ratio of the Hebrew Words from which theirs are taken; and therefore believe, their Temple Haram was originally called by this Name [Haram] as being made of a Mixture of this, and your two Roots, taken together. As they themselves are a Monument of Commixtion, fo have they confounded these Roots with one another, as indeed they have done all other Roots; and fo have given the Critics in their Language an infinite Fund of Arabisins, literally, in the appellative Sense of the Word, ad dandum ex Fulgore Fumum.

I will now lay before you a short Table of the three Words חרם, חרם, and ערום, (as they are blended in the several Dialects, from the Chaldee to the Arabic,) out of Castel's Lexicon.

ו. שולה איל with הרם וו.

The Name of a Damon. Syriac בים, "Eguns. In Syriac Letters בים, "Eguns. In Syriac Letters".

Arab. בים, "Eguns. To magnify, elevate, or raife up.

A Pyramid, fuch as those in Egypt,

i. e. a Kind of Temple, שניים "Eguns.

Hermes Trismegistus.*

But these Names for Hermes are of no great Authority in any Respect, being, comparatively, but lately taken from the Greek 'Equins.

* To countenance the Conjecture mentioned in the Preliminary Discourse, p. 13, &c. concerning Hermes Trismegistus, the Reader is desired to peruse the following short Extract from Suidas.

Egunv. Mercurium. Hunc Jovis et Maiæ filium esse dicunt; quasi dicas Mentis et Prudentiæ. Ex Mente enim et Prudentia nascitur Oratio. Quamobrem etiam alatum eum faciunt. Ninil enim Oratione velocius. Item auctorem Lucri, et Mercaturæ Præsidem eundum statuunt.

(†) Equas o Teiomerisos. Mercurius Trismegistus. Hic suit sapiens Ægyptius, et ante Pharaonem storuit: vocatusque suit Trismegistus, quod de Trinitate locutus suerit, dicens, in Trinitate unam esse Deitatem. Sic autem satus suisse set Mens Mentis lucida, neque quidquam erat aliud, quam hujus (Mentis) Unitas. Ea cum semper in sese ipsa sit, semper sua ipsius Mente, Luce, atque Spiritu universa continet. Extra eam (Mentem) neque Deus est, neque Angelus, neque ulla alia Essentia. Omnium enim est Dominus, et Pater, et Deus, et omnia sub ipso et in ipso sunt. Nam sermo ipsius, qui persectus omnibus Modis est, et seccundus, et Opisex, cum in Aquam, cujus seccunda Natura est, incidisset, eam sætam reddi(†) De hoc Hermete et scriptis, quæ sub ejus Nomine hodie adhuc circumferuntur, prolixe agit Lambec, in Comm. de Bibl. Cæs, lib. 7. pag. 24. et seq.

2. בחת with ח.

Chald. הורכון. Some Serpent, a Kind of Asp, or a Basilisk.

Syriac Live. An Asp, Basilisk, &c.

Sama. אבות Craft, Subtilty, from the Hebrew שרום.

Arab. Names for a Bafilisk; Libidinous; a Goat.

Ætbi. A Name for any Idol-Temple.

Arab. The Name for their Temple of Mecca.

Also Names for an Heap, an Hill; also

Craft, Subtilty: In which they confound
it with both הררם, and ערם

3. שרש with "צר with "צר.

Chald. ערמונה. A Bafilisk. ערמונה. An Heap. Crafty. Syriac An Heap. Crafty.

Arab. ערכה. A Serpent with black and white Spots; a Nudity.

Sama. Miraw. A Goat. All which are Hermes's Hieroglyphics, Attributes, or Attitudes.

Now,

dit." Hæc fatus Hermes, fic precatus est: Adjuro te Cælum, magni Dei sapientissimum Opus. Adjuro te Vocem Patris, quam locutus est primam cum totum Mundum condidit. Adjuro te per unigenitum Sermonem, et Patrem omnia continentem: Propitius, propitius esto mihi.

Here we see that a Trinity in Unity was supposed to be intimated in this Title, though the Usurper by appearing in an human Shape or Name durst not claim it for himfelf.

Now, who does not hence fee the Confusion of the three Roots? But, the said Insignia rather give the last of the three a Title to Hermes: And I think, they have all an equal Share in the Haram at Mecca.

If any Part of this has your Approbation, you have a Right to make what use of it you please, the whole only flowing from the Line you yourself had drawn. I am, Sir,

Your ever most affectionate, and obliged bumble Servant,

B. HOLLOWAY.

The Reader is defired to add what follows to Page 92, of the Preliminary Discourse.

If the Words, in process of Time or the End of Days, occurring Gen. IV. 3. may in the Judgment of learned Men have a limited Sense, and be a synonymous Phrase for the Sabbath-Day, when a more solemn Commemoration of the Blessings of Creation and Redemption was commanded to be observed, and proper Sacrifices and public Rites appointed for these great Purposes, I shall not oppose the Assertors of such an Opinion. The Hebrew Word for Days, when used without any Addition, may be supposed, I conceive, to stand for that periodical Revolution of Days, called a Week; and the Word joined here with it, and rendered Process or at the End. fignifies Terminus, ad quem & à quo (as the Schoolmen speak) Boundary, and so is peculiarly descriptive of this Day placed between two Weeks, the End of one and Beginning of another. From this Sense of the Word Days, we need not call in the Samaritan Pentateuch to supply any Defect in Gen. XXIV. 55. where the Original must be literally rendered, Let the Damsel abide with us Days, IMIM (there is no Hebrew for a few) that is a Week, or fays the Text Ten, that is Days, the immediate Substantive or Antecedent to which the Word Ten should grammatically relate, and thereby proves that in this Place the Word I M I M, Days, put absolutely without Addition, fignifies a Week or Seven Days. And this was a reasonable Time for a Visit, and as long as can be supposed, confidering how many Persons and Cattle were to be provided for,

I take this Opportunity of observing from the LXX Translation of Gen. IV. 7. that the Jews themselves at that Time must have acknowleded, that there was a known, prescribed Form of Sa. crificing or Worship given by God to his Church so early as this Sacrifice of Cain and Abel. The LXX Version is in these Words, Ex Ear og Our προσενεγκης, ορθως δε μη διελης, ημαρίες; which Words are set down in Origen's Hexapla, p. 19. Ed. Monts. يناؤا ريانا with the Latin Translation of them thus: Nonne fi reste offeras, non autem recte dividas peccasti?

This is cited not to defend or justify this Translation of the Hebrew Text; but as an incontestable Evidence of the * Opinion of the fewish

* The Reader will observe what this Version of the LXX is here produced principally to prove. At the same Time I must confess, that the Objections made to the Reality of Cain's incurring the divine Displeasure for want of a right Division, or dividing the Sacrifice according to the instituted Rites, founded chiefly upon fulian's Reasonings, and Cyril's Silence in his Answer to Julian, have no Weight with me. Deists and Apostates might set aside the divine Institution of a great Part of the Mosaic Ritual, to say nothing of Christian positive Laws, if a Conformity to the Sentiments and Approbation of every Man's Reason be the necessary Test of Divine Laws. From such Rules of trying the Veracity of Facts recorded in the Bible, how might the History of Abram's Sacrifice have been exposed and ridiculed by the Blasphemies and Scoffs of a Julian or a Lucian, where the Divisions of the Sacrifice are described fo circumstantially, as though a great Stress was laid upon its being rightly divided? Why then should this Interpretation of the LXX be treated as ridiculous, and fuch a Fact be given up by Believers, upon so despicable and weak an Attack, as untenable and indefensible? The End and Designs of God's Laws are not always to be fathomed by, or wholly laid open before, the human Understanding. It is sufficient that we may be affured that they are ordained for wife Purposes, and the Benefit of God's People. The Julians of this Age may, perhaps, ask what Connection there is between eating Bread and drinking Wine with any peculiar Rites, and the Forgiveness of Sin, upon the Principles of right Reason? Should they flart fuch an impious Question, we shall do well to imitate St. Cyril, by a contemptuous Silence.

Jewish Church (if these Translators may be supposed to comment or translate according to it) with regard to a revealed or positive, though unwritten Law, concerning the Modes of Public Worship, or an instituted Ceremonial ordained to be observed by all true Worshippers and Believers: So that the Levitical Laws concerning these

But however what is faid in Gen. XV. compared with Levit. I. and Jeremiah XXXIV. 18, 19. will be fufficient to convince any Believer, That a right Division, was no immaterial or trivial Form, but an effential Rite, necessary to bring down that heavenly Flame, which was the infallible Token of the Divine Acceptance. Without a right Division indeed of the Sacrifice, the People could not have passed between the Parts thereof, which was necessary to fignify and witness their Consent to the Covenant or the Performance and Execution of their Part, in order to be entitled to a Fœderal Right to what was promifed on God's Part. These Scriptures are likewise, I think, an undeniable Proof, that the Church of God was the same, and governed in a good Measure by the same Laws and Rules of public Worship under the Patriarchal and Mosaical Dispensations, since it is evident that the fame facrifical Observances were in Use and Force in the Time of Abram, and in the Days of Feremiah; that is, from the Year before Christ 1913 to 590, or 1323 Years. And it may be fairly presumed, that the fame Ordinances were prescribed during the whole State of Sacrifice, as well before the Time of Abram, as after the Days of Feremiah. Why then should an Assertion or Supposition, that the Want of a right Division upon this Occasion was a sufficient Ground for rejecting the Offering and Offerer, be treated with Contempt, and given up, as fome weak Writers would perfuade, to the Scoffs of Apostates, as an indefensible Point, and a ridiculous Hypothesis? Let Men of Reason, ANSHI LeBaB, tell us why.

these Matters were probably, for the greater Part, the same that were commanded under the Patriarchal Dispensation. It was undeniably so in the present Case about dividing the Sacrifice, as the Reader may see in what is said of Abram's Sacrifice, Gen. XV. 10. And if this be justly observable in so minute a Particular, it may sairly be presumed to be the Case in what may comparatively, in our view of Things, be called the Bagulega, weightier Matters of the Ceremonial Law.

It appears likewise that this Judgment of the Fewish Church in the Time of the LXX, was a received Opinion among the Christians of the first Ages: For Theodotion, whose Version was written in the Reign of Commodus, renders the Hebrew לא שעה, Gen. IV. 5. (in our Translation, be bad not Respect) by the Words &x EVE TU QUOE. explained thus in Latin, Super Sacrificium ejus non inflammavit, as the Reader may find in Origen's Hexapla, Edit. Montfaucon, p. 19. Hereby I think it is clearly feen that the same Circumstances and Rites were supposed by the Christian Church in this Age to have accompanied the Sacrifice in the Days of Cain and Abel, as in the Sacrifices of Abraham and those under the Law given at Sinai, when the heavenly Fire falling upon and confuming the Sacrifice, was the demonstrative Proof and Token of God's Acceptance, therefore called by the best Interpreter of this Scripture, God's testifying of Gifts, Heb. XI. 4.

and a comfortable Assurance of the Pardon of him or them, in whose Behalf the expiatory Sacrifice was offered. St. Jerom's Comment upon this Part of Theodotion's Version, as cited by the very learned Editor of the Hexapla, sufficiently authorizing this Remark, shall be set down for public Satisfaction. "Unde scire poterat Cain, quod fratris munera suscepisses Deus, & sua respuisset; nisi Interpretatio illa vera est, quam Theodotio posuit: Et instanciamit Deus super Abel & super Sacrificium ejus; super Cain verò & super Sacrificium ejus; super Cain verò & super Sacrificium ejus; super Cain verò & super Sacrificium

FINIS.

